BOYS RAID CHICAGO BANK

BANDITS GET SOME $15,000

Youthful Robbers Hold Up Bank's Officials and Awe Depositors.

ESCAPE IN AUTO AFTER RICH RAID

Patrons Forced to Face the Wall While Thieves Work Rapidly.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Four robbers, armed with revolvers, entered the Washington Park National bank in the East Sixty-third street today, threatened the lives of the cashier, clerks and twenty depositors and escaped with between $12,000 and $15,000.

None of the depositors, who were ordered to stand facing a wall, was searched by the bandits, who gave their sole attention to the money in the teller's cage.

After grabbing the money the four hastily backed to the door and escaped in an automobile. Policemen and detectives were quickly summoned and search for the bandits was begun.

J. Garland Stahl, manager of the Boston Americans, when that club won the championship in 1912, is vice president of the Washington Park National bank, with which he became connected upon leaving the Boston team.

Every detail of the robbery seemed carefully planned, according to Mr. Stahl, who was forced to remain at his desk facing a revolver while one of the robbers entered the teller's cage and took the money from a drawer.

As Stahl describes it, "I was sitting at my desk," said Mr.

FORT WAYNE IS OUT OF BASEBALL

No Forfeit to Be Posted at Friday's Meeting Here.

With the Central league baseball meeting scheduled for the Anthony hotel Friday afternoon, and the owners of all clubs expecting representation in the league ordered to report, Fort Wayne seems as far from professional ball next year as it was two months ago. Louis Heilbroner has been appointed by President Kittake of the Fort Wayne club, to represent him at the meeting, and Mr. Heilbroner stated positively Thursday afternoon that as far as he is concerned Fort Wayne will not be one of the cities in the league's make-up.

"The present company will under no circumstances remain in the league," he said Thursday. "We are expected to put up a $2,000 forfeit at tomorrow's meeting, and I say on authority of President Kittake that not one cent will be put up. If any other company wants to take over the club and put up the money all very well, but we certainly do not. I may add that we have not received a single offer for the club and have not put a price on it, even though stories have been circulated to the effect that we turned down an offer."

POOLROOM KEEPER SENT TO JAIL FOR ALLOWING GIRLS AND BOYS IN PLACE

Upon conviction in the city court, Thursday morning of permitting minors to loiter in his pool room, 222 Broadway, Charles Mungovan was fined $20 and costs and given thirty days in jail. It was shown that Mungovan had been allowing minors in his place and that Wednesday afternoon Dewey Sandmeier and two or three other lads under age, and two girls—one 16 and the other 17 years old—had possession of the pool room with the front door locked when Police Lieutenant Harry Grimme and Police Matron Fannie M. Winch raided the place.

The party had two bottles of beer and the youngsters were drinking in the rear part of the room with a curtain drawn to obstruct a view from the street. Mungovan was not in his place, having come down town to attend a theater, leaving his resort in charge of Sandmeier and the other boys.

Mungovan said he had not allowed minors to loiter in his place, though boys occasionally stepped in. Sandmeier testified that he went there frequently and that he had played in the pool room, as had other boys who are minors. Mungovan stated that he has been running the pool room about three weeks. He denied permitting girls in his resort, though people in the neighborhood had complained to the police that young women were going there and furnished the information Wednesday afternoon upon which the police raid was planned. Sandmeier said there had been girls in the place Tuesday. The young women caught in the raid were taken to headquarters and promised to quit their quest for "high life" if not dealt with at this time. Both are employed in a factory and were out Wednesday afternoon seeking pleasure.

WILL GIVE VALUE OF ONE HOUR'S LABOR

Union Men Have Plan to Save Homes of Hatters at Danbury.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 27.—Organized labor throughout the United States today is expected to give the value of an hour's labor to the cause of the hatters of Danbury, Conn., whose homes are about to be sold at auction in foreclosure proceedings.

The money will go into a fund being raised by the American Federation of Labor for the relief of the 180 defendants in the famous suit of D. E. Loeve & Co. vs. Martin Lawler and others, which began in 1903, reached its final stage in the United States district court here last week when an order was issued relative to the sale of property taken under attachment in the boycott suit. There are 153 parcels of property, mostly the modest little homes of men who were named among the defendants. Counsel for the hatters obtained the privilege of having each piece of real estate sold separately on the premises instead of in bulk.

On January 3, in conformity with the vote of the American Federation of Labor convention held in San Francisco recently, President Samuel Gompers issued an appeal to organized labor in this form, "Will you give an hour of your labor in a righteous cause on hatters' day, January 27, 1916?"

The responses are already coming in. The Bridgeport unions in Connecticut have set aside the second hour of today's working day for the cause. The New Haven trolley men last night gave $250 to the fund.

WILSON EXPLAINS CHANGE IN VIEWS

Letter to Kitchin Tells Why Tariff Board is Favored.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, chairman of the house ways and means had before him today a letter from President Wilson setting forth considerations which had most weight in urging him to withdraw his opposition to the creation of a tariff commission by congress and urge such a body.

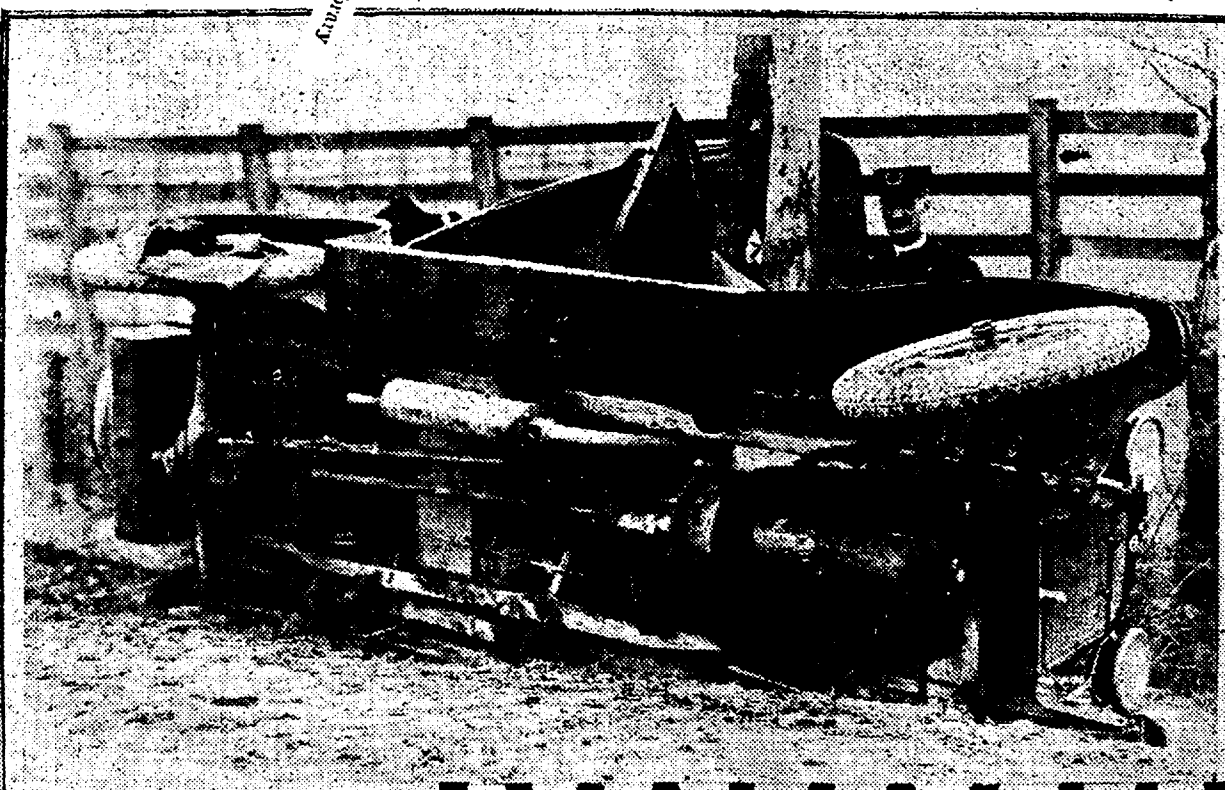

The president frankly admitted that he had changed his mind because "all the circumstances of the world had changed, but declared that he had no thought whatever of a change in attitude toward the so-called protective question. The proposed commission the president said would have nothing to do with theories of policy but would be charged only with the duty of seeking facts to guide congress in legislation.

The letter was supplemental to one the president sent Mr. Kitchin Monday in which he gave his ideas of what a tariff commission should be and urged that the committee consider the matter immediately. He favored a non-partisan expert body.

GARRETT LADY VERY ILL

Garrett, Ind., Jan. 27.—Mrs. Harry Brown, wife of Cashier Harry Brown, of the National bank in this city, who was taken to Sacred Heart hospital early Monday morning, is still in a very critical condition and the attending physicians have little hopes of her recovery.

FIVE HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Three Seriously Injured When Machine Skids and Turns Over.

ONE MAN HAS NOSE SEVERED BY GLASS

Leo Schnee and Frank Klotz Are Pinioned Until Rescued by Police.

LIST OF THE INJURED.

Albert F. Brase, grocer at 2202 Calhoun street, nose almost cut off and badly bruised about face and body. Possibly internal injuries.

Frank Klotz, who conducts fish market at 1219 Calhoun street, deep wound in forehead, possibly fracturing the skull.

Leo Schnee, saloonkeeper at 1830 Calhoun street, right side of face badly bruised and injuries about both legs.

Edward Krommiller, plumber at 1807 Harrison street, slightly bruised about the eyes.

Henry W. Reinewalt, 1908 Harrison street, mail clerk, slightly bruised.

Three Fort Wayne business men were seriously injured and two others slightly bruised when the large Westcott seven passenger touring car belonging to Leo Schnee, saloonkeeper at 1830 Calhoun street, skidded in going around a sharp curve on the Leesburg road, a quarter of a mile north of the Mayflower mills, shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday morning, and turned over, pinioning the five occupants beneath. They will all recover, in the opinion of the attending physicians.

Albert F. Brase, grocer at 2202 Calhoun street, and residing at 121 East Williams street, was the most seriously injured, his nose being almost completely severed by broken glass as he plunged headlong through the windshield. He was also badly cut and bruised about the face and body. Frank Klotz, who conducts a fish market at 1219 Calhoun street, is believed to have a fractured skull, which will be determined by an X-ray examination. Leo Schnee, saloonkeeper at 1830 Calhoun street, received a bad gash on the right side of the face and serious injuries about the legs. H. W. Reinewalt, railway mail clerk for a number of years, living at 1908 Harrison street, and Edward Krommiller, plumber at 1807 Harrison street, were not seriously hurt. All were removed to the St. Joseph hospital, where their injuries were dressed by Drs. J. Frank and James M. Dinnen.

Children Only Witnesses.

The accident occurred directly in front of the residence of Fred H. Glusenkamp, the scene of three or four automobile accidents within the past year, and within a short distance of the plant of the Day-Life Gas company, which was blown to atoms some weeks ago, killing two men. Mrs. Glusenkamp's children were playing in the front yard and saw the car skid to the north side of the road, strike a telephone pole and turn over. Mrs. Glusenkamp was attracted by their screams and Louis

URGING GREY TO ACTUAL BLOCKADE

English Press Would Knock Bottom Out of U. S. Arguments.

London, Jan. 27.—The Manchester Guardian, commenting editorially on the speech of Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, delivered yesterday in the house of commons on the blockade policy of Great Britain says that he demolished both the statistical attack against the government's policy and charges of interference with the work of the navy. It argues, however, that the orders in council should be succeeded by the declaration of an actual blockade in order to meet the legal obligations raised by neutral states. The editorial concludes:

"Blockade, the doctrine of continuous voyage and an enlarged district of contraband are all recognized means of carrying on naval warfare and their employment would not only knock the bottom out of the legal arguments which the United States is now presenting against our present policy, but would give us even greater power than we now have of injuring the enemy. This was the criticism we made of the policy of the orders in council when Mr. Asquith first explained it and we have never seen a completely satisfactory answer to the criticism.

"It is maintained that by meeting the American view, which we could do without in any way compromising our war on Germany's trade at sea, we should get rid of one set of difficulties only to fall into another. That would be an intelligible line of argument and, if it is influencing the government there is no reason why it should not state quite frankly what its grounds for hesitation are. To do so would not only strengthen our position but would also, we think, greatly improve our relations with neutral powers."

TRUCK CROP EXPERT IS COMING FRIDAY

H. S. Jackson, of the extension department of Purdue university, a truck crop disease specialist, will come to Allen county next Friday and will address two meetings of farmers. The first meeting will be held at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Fox school on the Sandpoint road, Wayne township, and in the evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Riverside school in Washington town.

WILSON SAYS NO ONCE MORE

Refuses to Support Constitutional Amendment for Equal Suffrage.

STILL HOLDS IT STATE QUESTION

President in New York to Make First Speech on Preparedness.

New York, Jan. 27.—President Wilson refused today to support the movement for an amendment to the federal constitution providing for woman suffrage. He spoke briefly to 200 members of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and told them that he felt the suffrage question should be dealt with by each individual state.

The president received the suffragettes after they had waited for him for more than one hour at the Waldorf-Astoria, which he made his headquarters on his arrival here this morning from Washington prepared to make three addresses during the day.

KIDNAPED AMERICAN SOLDIERS RESCUED

Brownsville, Texas, Jan. 27.—Privates Wm. C. Wheeler and Viggo Pederson, of battery D, Fourth field artillery, who were kidnaped yesterday by Mexicans and taken south from the border, were rescued by Carranza soldiers and brought to Matamoros today. They were turned over to American authorities dressed in Mexican clothes. No word had been heard from the men since their crossing the river. They wore no clothes. A searching party was sent out from Matamoros by Col. J. R. Quintanilla, commander of the border in the absence of Gen. Alfredo Ricarte, and at about 10 o'clock located the Americans in a small town near the border.

MISSING GIRL IN CINCINNATI

Rocella Asbury, Aged 13, in Same Hotel With Actor Friend.

EVIDENTLY FLED TO JOIN DANCER

Sheriff Gladieux Locates Girl Whose Disappearance Causes Alarm.

Rocella Asbury, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan E. Asbury, 1106 Columbia avenue, whose disappearance from the city Wednesday plunged her parents into most painful alarm and caused a sensation here, was located Thursday about 11 o'clock by Sheriff A. C. Gladieux, who was informed by the chief of detectives in the Cincinnati police department that the girl had been discovered at the Monroe baths, a hotel in that city.

In the same hotel as a guest was found Will Fields, a song and dance man who concluded a vaudeville engagement at the Temple theater in Fort Wayne, January 22, and at once left here for Cincinnati. The Cincinnati official told Sheriff Gladieux over the long distance telephone that the girl and the actor were occupying separate rooms and that he could not state that the child had come there at the instance of the man.

Will Be Brought Home. Mr. Asbury left for Cincinnati Thursday afternoon to be with his daughter.

CHARLES BOEHRER LEAVES HOSPITAL

Man Who Fell from Tower of Kerr-Murray Plant Home for a Visit.

Charles Boehrer, the young man who fell from the water tower of the Kerr-Murray plant at noon on Wednesday, September 15, 1915, and who has been a patient at St. Joseph's hospital ever since, left the hospital Thursday afternoon to visit with his parents, at 2311 Weisser Park avenue. He will return to the institution, however, in a few days to resume treatments.

This was one of the most remarkable cases ever treated in Fort Wayne. When the young man was taken to the hospital after the accident there was little hope for his recovery but he made a strong fight for life and seemingly has won the battle. His injuries consisted of broken and splintered bones in his lower limbs, a compound fracture of the bone in his arm, a broken hip, and other internal injuries which made it seem improbable that he would survive them.

The misfortune in which Boehrer was so severely injured occurred when he was at work painting the water tower at the Kerr-Murray plant. No one was near when he fell the distance of 75 feet but was found nearly a half hour later with but minor visible signs of life. For several days he remained in an unconscious condition. He was on the operating table three or four times during his long stay at the hospital.

LAST MINUTE NEWS

HEAVY MAJORITY FOR DEMAND ON RAILROADS

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Returns from the vote now being taken among the 400,000 employees of the 528 railroads in the United States which will be completed March 1, indicate that more than ninety per cent. of the men will demand an eight-hour day, and time and a half for overtime in the freight and yard service, according to executive officials of the unions today.

OPPOSES MILITARY SERVICE MEASURE

Bristol, Eng., Jan. 27.—(5:45 p. m.)—The labor congress adopted by a vote of 1,716,000 against 360,000 a declaration opposing the military service bill which has been passed by parliament. A proposal to agitate for the repeal was defeated by 544,000 against 614,000.

FRENCH LOSS MOUNTS HIGH

800,000 Killed, 1,400,000 Wounded, 300,000 Taken Prisoner.

LABOR IS AGAINST ALL CONSCRIPTION

Today's War News Given in Summary

British possession of territory protecting the Suez canal route at its southern end is imperilled by attacks made by large bodies of Arabs and Turks on the British forces in southwestern Arabia, according to advices from German sources. The British have been driven from all the territory they held in that section of the country and have suffered extremely heavy losses in the fighting, the reports declare, the figures being given at 15,000 killed and 20,000 wounded.

The implication from the Berlin dispatch carrying these reports is that the British army of 20,000 men is now virtually cooped up in Aden, near the entrance to the Red sea, which must be held if the southerly approach to the Suez canal is to be protected.

The Austrians, having secured possession of virtually all of Montenegro, whose remaining defenders, according to Vienna, are fast laying down their arms, are pushing southward in Albania, but are moving deliberately, although without encountering much resistance.

At last accounts the Bulgarian forces co-operating with the Austrians had encountered the Albanian troops under Essad Pasha and, according to unofficial advices, had met with a defeat at the latter's hands.

According to a statement made by M. Louquet, a French socialist deputy at the British trade union conference in Bristol today, the French losses in the war have been 800,000 killed, 1,400,000 wounded and 300,000 captured.

Vatican circles, according to a Rome dispatch, have received reports that Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, who was taken ill recently, is rapidly growing worse.

Bristol, Eng., Jan. 27.—(2:50 p. m.)—M. Louquet, a French socialist deputy who addressed the labor conference today, on being questioned regarding the French losses said that "800,000 soldiers had been killed, and that 1,400,000 had been wounded and that 300,000 had been taken prisoner."

A resolution protesting in the name of the National labor party against the adoption of conscription in any form was passed by the labor congress today.

HEAPED IN FRONT OF MR. MARSHALL'S DESK

Thousand Bundles of Petitions Urge Embargo on War Munitions.

Washington, Jan. 27.—When the senate convened today a thousand bundles of petitions urging an American embargo on war munitions to European belligerents and signed by a million men and women from every state, were piled in front of the vice president's desk.

The petitions, resulting from an embargo campaign of the organization of American women for strict neutrality, were brought early in the day from Baltimore, headquarters of the organization in automobiles, and moving vans. A committee of women representing the movement superintended their delivery to the senate chamber.

The petitions expressed "earnest protest for humanitarian reasons against the exportation from this country of the things which kill for the use of the nations engaged in the present conflict."

For more than an hour today the senate debated, indirectly, the proposal to put an embargo on shipments of war munitions, and then without a vote referred it to the foreign relations committee as the administration leaders wished the thousand bundles of petitions bearing a million names and signatures to be kept in the senate chamber.

FIVE HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Bohne, brother of one of the victims of the Day-Lite Gas company's explosion, who lives with the Glusenkamps, came rushing out. He was the first to reach the injured men, who were groaning and pleading for help. Brasc, Kronmiller and Reinewalt were able to crawl out with the assistance of Bohne, but Schne and Klotz were beneath the debris and were held prisoners. The injured men who had crawled out away from the wreck were stunned and unable to give Bohne any help in lifting the car.

Police Are Called.
In the meantime Mrs. Glusenkamp had called the police department, the police making a run in the boat of works car and in the police wagon being out of commission. Not until the arrival of the police was the heavy car lifted from Schne and Klotz. Both had been rendered unconscious.

Early Morning Joy Ride.
The men were out for an early morning joy ride, it is said, and were on their way to Arcola, expecting to return to Fort Wayne within an hour or two. Klotz explains the circumstances leading up to the accident in the following language:

"Early Thursday morning the four men drove up to my place and asked me to take a ride. I told them I would if they would take me up around Arcola so that I could buy some chickens and eggs. Schne told me to jump in and I did, with the result that I am now in a hospital."

Auto a Total Wreck.
Schnee was not driving fast. All the occupants of the car are positive on this point. The children playing in the yard and both Mrs. Glusenkamp and Bohne agree that the car was not running more than ten or fifteen miles an hour. The road was slippery as a result of Wednesday night's rain and as the machine went to go around the curve it skidded, causing it to go over on its left side. The automobile is almost a total wreck and, according to Schne, cost $1,505.

Two ambulances hurried to the scene of the accident belonging to Klotz and Melching and Schone & Ankenbruck. A couple of the injured were taken to the hospital in the police car.

Didn't Want Wife to Know.
Reinewalt was willing to give full details of the accident, but was restrained by Kronmiller, who did not want his wife to learn what had happened. Both were able to leave the hospital soon after their injuries, which consisted of nothing more serious than a few bruises, had been dressed.

Wrecked Ford Found.
A badly wrecked Ford automobile bearing Indiana license No. M90, was found early Thursday morning in front of L. H. McAfee's establishment on Wells street, near the Wells street bridge. The front axle was broken and it was otherwise badly damaged. The police did not learn the name of the owner of the car. It was ordered taken to the Ford service station.

BANDITS GET

Stahl, "shortly before 9 o'clock when four men entered. Their faces were masked in black and each carried two revolvers. There were about ten persons in line at the cashier's wicket. Ten clerks, the bank officers and two stenographers were in the room. Three of the men threatened us with their weapons while the fourth entered the cage and took the money. As soon as they got the cash they backed to the door and ran to their automobile. The engines had not been stopped and they went down the street at about forty miles an hour. They got more than $12,000."

Municipal Judge Sheridan E. Frye was among the depositors who was forced to witness the robbery.

The bandits paid special attention to Mr. Stahl. Two revolvers were poked within an inch of his face and he was ordered to hold up his hands.

"I obeyed without any hesitation," said Mr. Stahl, "and the fellow kept his guns pointed at me and the cashier while his companion got the money."

Others Get Same Command.
The same command was given to all the others in the bank and not a hand was dropped until the last robber backed out of the door. Then there was a rush for the telephones to notify the police.

A. W. McCauley, assistant cashier, ran quickly to the street and jumped into an automobile standing at the curb. He attempted to follow the robbers but they outdistanced him and turning several corners disappeared. Officials of the bank said that none of the robbers appeared to be more than twenty years old.

The bank is situated in one of the busiest sections of Chicago outside of the downtown district.

NO ONCE MORE

Declines Cross-Examination.
Efforts made by Mrs. Mary Beard, wife of a Columbia university professor, to cross-examine the president met with failure. He refused courteously to reply to her queries. The president apologized to the women for not seeing them earlier, but told them he had been at work since arriving in New York. He added that it "may be that my mind works slowly, but I have always thought that there were things which should be built slowly and therefore made more lasting. I may be a little old in fashion in my view that the suffrage question should be handled by the state."

The president frankly admitted to the suffragettes that he had promised several months ago to discuss with leaders of congress the suffrage question, but that other matters of legislation had come up which he thought should take preference over everything else.

Must Be Deliberate.
"There are things that cannot wait," said the president. "Action in great constitutional matters must be deliberate."

Mr. Wilson promised again that he would discuss the subject with members of congress as soon as possible. He declared, however, that he was still convinced that the suffrage issue should be worked out by the states. He added that he saw no reason for the women to be discouraged by the progress made.

Deep silence greeted his reiteration of his opposition to the federal amendment but other portions of his address were marked by applause.
Mrs. Tiffany Dyer, Mrs. Henry Bruere and Mrs. Beard spoke before the president. They asked that while he was working out his preparedness program he should remember that no scheme of defense would be adequate which did not include the mobilization of women. While speaking in the middle west for national defense they asked that he also advocate woman suffrage. The president reminded the women that he had voted for suffrage in New Jersey and promised that if the question came to a vote there again he would again vote for it. As the president completed his address several women shook hands with him and he returned to his apartments.

READY FOR FIRST SPEECH

New York, Jan. 27.—President Wilson arrived here at 6 o'clock this morning.

Altogether the president looked forward to a busy day. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, his secretary, Joseph Tamm, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson.

The party remained on board the train in the Pennsylvania station until 8 a. m., when a committee from the railroad and messengers arrived to escort him to the Waldorf Astoria hotel. A delegation of women suffragists had promised to await his arrival at the hotel to ask him for his support for the Susan B. Anthony amendment in congress. They had been informed by associates in Washington that the president was willing to meet them, but had appointed no definite hour for the meeting.

Mr. Wilson planned to remain at the hotel until noon and then go to Aeolian hall to receive a large number of clergymen who desired to present an address expressing their appreciation for his efforts for peace.

The main purpose of the president's visit is to deliver before the Railway Business association tonight the speech which is to open his campaign for preparedness, the first of a series of addresses on that subject which he will make while on a trip through the middle west. Although only 1,272 seats are available for the dinner at which he is to speak, more than five thousand applications have been received by the committee in charge.

After addressing the railway men the president has arranged to speak at a banquet of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. Mr. Wilson expects to leave New York for Washington at midnight tonight and to leave the capital for his western tour.

Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. George F. Fessner, of Toronto, Canada, are the proud parents of a baby daughter, Mr. Fessner resided in Fort Wayne up to one year ago. He is a half-brother of W. D. Stutz, of the Indiana Lighting company.

The resolution follows: "Resolve, that this national labor party protests emphatically against the adoption of conscription in any form, as it is against the spirit of British democracy and full of danger to the liberties of the people."

When the delegates assembled today for the second day's session they found their resolution on their tables and also one on the military service bill, which were designed to take the place of the numerous proposals which have been made on these subjects. The other resolution placed before the conference was: "This conference declares its opposition to the military service bill and in the event of it becoming law decides to agitate for its repeal."

HEAVY FIGHTING IN WEST.

Berlin is Celebrating 57th Birthday of Emperor William.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—Reports from France and Flanders say that a favorable turn in the weather has been followed by active fighting on the entire western front. Along nearly the whole line the roar of artillery is heard and the heaviest fighting has been in the vicinity of Neuport to the north of Ypres and in the Argonne.

The German attack on the French positions near Neuville was resumed yesterday and according to the war office statement of today, between 500 and 600 yards of the French lines were captured.

Flags were out everywhere in Berlin today in celebration of the 57th birthday of Emperor William. The only formal observance consisted of religious services. The emperor granted amnesties in several cases. The principal celebration was held at the general headquarters yesterday. Congratulations were extended to the emperor by representatives of Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey. Emperor William thanked them for their felicitations and expressed conviction that final victory in the war would rest with the central powers. All the newspapers of Berlin published eulogistic articles concerning the emperor, recalling the fact that he was able to maintain peace for 25 years.

IN CINCINNATI

and Sheriff Gladieux will leave at 1 o'clock Friday morning for the same city to conduct an inquiry into the relations of the girl with Fields and to accompany her home with her father.

Fields, it was stated, was now playing an engagement in the Empire theater in Cincinnati. Should it prove that he enticed the girl to Cincinnati for immoral purposes he will be liable under the Mann white slave act. It is suggested that Fields might have come to Fort Wayne Wednesday morning and met the girl to accompany her away, but Sheriff Gladieux does not entertain such a theory. The girl met Fields at the theater here.

Started for School.
Rocella left home Wednesday morning ostensibly to attend the Clay school, where she is a pupil. She did not go to school, but is known to have been about the city with some companions about her own age during the forenoon, visiting some confectionery store. Mrs. Asbury says she thinks Rocella had money to the amount of about $7 when she left home.

At the Temple theater, about which the child had been lingering much recently, it is learned that she had been there about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and had attempted to borrow $2 or $3 from some of the younger men employed about the play house, but had been refused by them and later was told by an employee in the box office to leave when she was loitering about the lobby. She is believed to have left Fort Wayne over the Grand Rapids railroad Wednesday afternoon.

Attaches of the theater state that the girl had been much about the theater lately and had attempted to frequently visit the stage despite orders to the contrary, that she was prominently ordered out and told to keep away. It was while resorting about the theater that she met Fields. The men about the theater had come to regard the girl as not mentally sound, owing to her conduct and stories she told.

Absence is Reported.
When Rocella did not return home to luncheon at noon Wednesday and inquiry during the afternoon disclosed that she had not been in school that day, Mr. Asbury reported her disappearance to Sheriff Gladieux. The sheriff and his men could gain no trace of the girl and later Mr. Asbury reported his daughter's disappearance to the police department. A search about the city throughout the night developed no clue and the parents of the missing child were distracted.

Late Wednesday night Sheriff Gladieux learned from companions of the girl that she had been hanging much about the Temple theater and inquiries brought the information that she had made the acquaintance of Fields and of another vaudeville actor named

Frank Wilbur, a juggler, who went from here to Hartford City and thence to Toledo. The sheriff started inquiries for the girl through the police of that city and of Cincinnati, where it was learned Fields had gone. The result was the finding of Rocella in Cincinnati at the hotel where Fields was a guest. How she could so quickly have found him without previous knowledge of where he was stopping raises an interesting question for the vaudeville dancer to explain.

Girl a Good Student.
The principal and teachers at the Clay school say that Rocella has been punctual in attendance this year and was making good progress in her studies. She is said by them to have been normal in all ways, though highly nervous. The girl had a severe attack of typhoid fever a few years ago and she is slightly crippled in one hip as a result. She is rather pretty and though not large, looks older than her thirteen years.

ALLEGED FORGER WAS
JEFFERSONVILLE MAN

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 27.—Edwin L. Thacker, an alleged forger, located by wireman on a steamer which sailed from New York, January 20, for Buenos Aires, left his home in Jeffersonville, Ind., on the Ohio river opposite Louisville, twenty years ago. He was a bookkeeper in the employ of a Louisville firm. His father, William Thacker, was a ship carpenter, later employed by the quartermaster's department, U. S. A., at the army depot in Jeffersonville. Thacker, sr., died a number of years ago. His widow, the stepmother of Edwin Thacker, still resides in Jeffersonville.

Examination of police records fails to disclose that young Thacker had a criminal record here.

SHORT OF OFFICERS AND MEN, SAYS WOOD

Washington, Jan. 27.—The United States army is so short of officers and men, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the department of the east, today told the house military committee, that were it ordered to invade Mexico at the present time, infantry, cavalry and artillery would take the field at less than half their full strength. The standing army, he continued, should consist of 220,000 men.

"Before a reserve is enrolled," Gen. Wood said, "the army should be brought up to its full strength." Powerful invading forces, he continued, would find it easy to land on either the Atlantic or Pacific coast.

TELLS OF DOCTOR'S
DUAL PERSONALITY

Providence, R. I., Jan. 27.—The recital of her marital experience was continued today by Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr as a witness in her own defense against the charge that she hired two negroes to murder her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr. Yesterday she told of the physician's attention to other women and the abuse she received when she accused him of faithlessness.

Today she explained her relations with the negroes, her alleged accomplices, which she said were innocent. She ascribed to her husband a dual personality—at his best a kind and generous husband; otherwise a drug-crazed wife beater. Through it all she loved him she said, and remained firm in her faith that he would some time restore her to her proper place in his affections. She denied that she wished him any harm, had ever threatened him, or failed to love him.

Vindication Before Action.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The United Mine Workers of America in convention today "advised" Alex Howat, of Pittsburgh, Kan., who has been re-elected president of the Kansas miners, and who is accused of taking money from coal operators in the negotiation of a wage scale in the southwestern coal fields, that he refrain from assuming his official duties and from participating in social conferences in his jurisdiction until he is vindicated in the suits now pending in Kansas courts. The entire morning session was taken up with its consideration.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

DESCENDENT OF ROGER WILLIAMS

Dr. O. B. Williams, of Andrews, Dies at Age of 88.

Andrews, Ind., Jan. 27.—Dr. Orlando B. Williams, a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, founder of the colony of Rhode Island, almost three centuries ago, is dead at his home here, following an illness of eight years. Dr. Williams was born June 18, 1848, in Warren, Ind., to Dr. William H. and Susan Fox Williams. At the age of 15 years he enlisted in one of the companies that made up the regiment known as "Hovey's Babies" and served two years in the civil war. When he returned home he had saved about $400 and with this money to back him he determined to adopt the profession of his father. By exercising the strictest economy he managed to attend the Indianapolis medical school and a series of medical lectures during the winter of 1869 and 1870. When he had completed his collegiate course Dr. Williams located in Lancaster, where he practiced for three years and then went to Andrews. During the twenty-seven years of his practice in Andrews the doctor built up an extensive circle of friends. Miss Louise Shaffer became his bride February 12, 1871. There were no children born to the marriage.

YOUNG TEACHER IN TROUBLE

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 27.—Faced by the accusation of a fourteen year old pupil, Leslie Brown, teacher of the Loon Creek school in Lancaster township, has handed County Superintendent of Schools Clifford Funderburg his resignation. A short time before that he had been served with a warrant by Deputy Sheriff Edward Haley, charging him with assault and battery against Cecil Louthan, an orphan girl and a pupil in his school. Mr. Brown answered the summons by coming directly to Huntington and immediately went into conference with Superintendent Funderburg and Prosecutor A. H. Sapp. The resignation is understood to be the result of this meeting, which was held behind closed doors.

TOWN OF AVILLA WINS SUIT.

Kendallville, Ind., Jan. 27.—One of the important cases of the present term of the Noble circuit court was tried at Albion in a jury trial before Judge L. H. Wrigley, when the case of Joe Vanderbosch vs. Town of Avilla, a suit for an account of $800, was disposed of by a verdict for the defendant. According to the evidence introduced Vanderbosch was suing the town of Avilla for $800 on salary which he claimed was due him for his services as marshal in 1913. During the examination of witnesses it was shown that Vanderbosch was assigned the duty of looking after the waterworks plant at Avilla, according to the provisions of an ordinance. After assuming the double duty he later put in a bill for $800, which the town board refused to pay.

His body was found opposite the station here in the New York Central yards at 9:15 o'clock Tuesday evening. His brains were oozing from his fractured skull and he was hurried to the hospital with no hopes of recovery. His father has arrived from Stroh. The body will be taken to Lagrange Friday for burial.

HEAVY WASTE OF CRUDE OIL

The break occurred near the Nutt farm, just north of town. The leak has been repaired and the oil is now going through the lines as usual.

RAT'S GNAWING CAUSES ALARM.

Warsaw, Ind., Jan. 27.—A rat gnawing at the front door of the Leibrock & Gerard hardware store on West Market street caused considerable excitement for a time last evening. People passing the store heard the noise and thinking that burglars were working inside summoned the police. While a number of men stood guard at the front door, others broke in the back door hoping to catch the intruders red-handed, but a thorough investigation of the place failed to disclose anyone in hiding. Wednesday morning a thorough investigation was made and the work of the rodent was discovered at the bottom of the door.

SEASON'S FIRST SNAKE STORY

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 27.—Along with the May-like breezes and just before the spring poets bestir themselves always comes the annual snake story. This snake, however, made a mistake and believed that spring was here, so it ventured out near Markle yesterday morning. At the same time Clarence Lantis, 11 years old, son of Oscar Lantis, was on his way to school and he spotted the blue racer. The meeting ended the snake's hopes for an early spring but the little boy proceeded in triumph with his trophy to school.

Resinol Soap

Any soap will clean your skin—a bar of laundry soap will do if you do not care what becomes of your complexion. But you know that laundry soap contains harsh, drying alkali that would ruin your skin and hair, so you never think of using it for your toilet.

Manyill-made toilet soaps contain this same injurious alkali. Resinol Soap contains absolutely no free alkali, and it is added the soothing, healing Resinol medication, which doctors have used for over 20 years in treating skin troubles. Thus it comforts tender skins, and helps nature, clear the complexion and keep the hair rich, lustrous and free from dandruff. Sold by all druggists.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

If cross, feverish or bilious give "California Syrup of Figs."

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given. If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother, see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs" and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they thereby lose its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save 5c. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only 54 cents—a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract in gelatin, which is so healing to the membrane.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Hoggs, Ind., Jan. 27.—The John H. Hogg sale, held Tuesday, was attended by a great crowd, the largest gathering reported for a sale this season in Wells county, and the total of receipts for the sale was $1,000. The sale was held on the Hogg farm, about 20 miles north of Wells.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Proverbs 27:1-12.

- 1 Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.
- 2 Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips.
- 3 A stone is heavy, and the sand weighty; but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both.
- 4 Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous; but who is able to stand before envy?
- 5 Open rebuke is better than secret love.
- 6 Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful.
- 7 The full soul loatheth a honeycomb; but to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.
- 8 As a bird that wandereth from her nest, so is a man that wandereth from his place.
- 9 Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart: so doth the sweetness of a man's friend by hearty counsel.
- 10 Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not; neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity; for better is a neighbor that is near than a brother far off.
- 11 My son, be wise, and make my heart glad, that I may answer him that reproacheth me.
- 12 A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished.

Another Pennant for Fort Wayne.

The award to Fort Wayne for the second year in succession of the Indiana Class A pennant for the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals which supply much of the financial ammunition for the nationwide war on tuberculosis is a distinction in which this city may well have some degree of pride. The record of sales made here during the holiday season just closed placed Fort Wayne well in advance of Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Evansville and South Bend, the other Indiana cities with which Fort Wayne was classed. The finding is based upon the per capita sales—that is while the actual total of stamps sold at Indianapolis was larger than that purchased by Fort Wayne people, the latter city in proportion to its population responded more generously in this good work than did any of her highly-esteemed neighbors.

With the pennant honors, also, comes the distinction and the pleasure of entertaining the next annual convention of the Indiana Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, which has voted to come to this city next January. It will be the first time the convention has ever been held outside of Indianapolis.

The sale of Red Cross seals in Fort Wayne has always been strikingly successful because of the devoted effort bestowed upon it by the local society and the enthusiastic assistance of those who were quick to recognize it as a very worthy and very practical cause. It affords everybody an opportunity to make some contribution to the conservation of human life. The work has shown results here in the cure of no inconsiderable number of persons upon whom the White Plague had laid its deadly hand in threat, and the colony established north of the city has but fairly begun its splendid work. All this, as well as the work of skilled counsel, advice and direction given in the private homes and elsewhere, is but a part of the vast total of splendid return Fort Wayne is receiving in return for its generosity in the purchase of the Red Cross seals each year.

President Wilson announces frankly that the conditions arising out of the war have led him to change his views regarding the desirability of a non-partisan tariff commission, and that he now favors the creation of such a board to collect information for the proper guidance of congress in making tariff changes. He insists that the change does not involve his attitude toward the question of protection; that the commission should not deal with theory or policy, but with facts as experts may determine them. The president does not go far enough, of course, to completely satisfy those who believe the entire matter of the tariff should be placed in the hands of a commission and taken wholly out of the hands of congress, and they will contend that his plan will fail to meet the emergency. Whether this position be well taken or not, the candor of President Wilson in admitting his belief that changed conditions warrant a change in views, and that he has made the change accordingly will raise him still higher in public estimation. It shows again that he does not consider himself infallible, and that he is responsive to any demand that seems best for the country he is serving through very trying times.

The house has smilingly passed along to the senate the Shackelford good roads bill carrying $25,000,000 to be apportioned to the various states for highway improvement in proportion to the funds of their own which they expend in similar way. There is strong opposition to the measure in the senate, and that body will in all probability either kill it or mutilate it beyond recognition. Perhaps, too, that will be entirely satisfactory to the house, for it will save the money for the government and in no wise discount the profession of the house members to the folks back home that they did the best they could to provide the improvement. This is one of the standard tricks in legislative legdemain.

It develops that there are occasionally still found those whose idea of a capital practical joke consists in turning in a false alarm of fire merely "to see the horses run." They doubtless fail to appreciate the fact that the act occasions not only expense to the city and unnecessary danger for the firemen who make the run, but that it leaves a section of the city unprotected while the apparatus is engaged in answering the fake calls. If the officers are successful in their quest, the law will doubtless provide an impressive lesson for those who tamper with the fire alarm signal system in this fashion.

The ballot to be used in the primaries in Allen county is going to be a whopper because of the large number of candidates for the various nominations, and as yet nobody seems inclined to get out of the race merely to save white paper and reduce the size of the ballot from that of a bed-quilt to that of merely an ordinary bath towel. There are some sacrifices which man accounts too great to be made for the public weal, after all.

GONE, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

To the Editor of The Sentinel:—Gone but not forgotten are the flood prevention propositions. With the will of a progressive people locked up behind the iron doors of state legislation and the key thrown in the well, the patient, law-abiding citizenship of a resourceful and would-be progressive city can only look upon the threatening cloud and wonder whether this week or next will demonstrate the inevitable fact that history repeats. Our dream of a repetition of 1913 is not all a dream, while preparation to meet the emergency is much more distant than the muttering of far-off thunder training its forces. We are simply waiting with idle indifference as to the result of witnessing an important part of our city domain converted into a devastating sea and her homes subjected to a pitiless element of destruction. Here let our readers stop short and, going over the valuable asset to our city, draw a picture of the ruin that is sure to follow the trail of procrastination. To some it may seem that the blockade is unsurmountable. There is a way out. With an iron will ready to support the right we can easily conquer every obstacle, gain the right of way to success and save to our city a valuable asset in property, contentment and honor. Look well to the present.

WHERE NO COMPENSATION IS.

(South Bend Tribune).

The Indiana industrial board has just handed down a decision which should be considered by workmen with thoughtfulness. The board has held that where death or accident results from the drunken condition of the workman, the employer is not liable for compensation.

Few will care to question the validity of the decision. The compensation law says explicitly that "no industry shall be charged with the burden of indemnifying an injured employee whose injury is the result of his own intoxication." The provision, however hard it may bear upon the dependents of the injured man, is eminently wise and sound.

The import of the decision is that every man who drinks and goes to work runs his own chances. He has put himself, or is in danger of putting himself, to an extraordinary hazard. If a man will drink himself intoxicated he or his dependents must bear the burden, not the employer.

No workman can afford to fool with the stuff that robs him of his brains, subjects him to increased risks and then leaves him and his dependents alone to bear the burden of his death or incapacitation. Workmen should think this matter over carefully.

The street lighting bill of the city of New York for 1915 was $400,000 less than for 1914. A goodly part of the saving is said to have been effected by the use of nitrogen filled tungsten lamps in place of the arc lamps.

ADAIR SPEAKS AT LAGRANGE MEETING

Congressman Cline and Harry Hilgemann Also Are Speakers.

Lagrange, Ind., Jan. 27.—Congressman John A. M. Adair, democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, was the principal speaker last evening at an enthusiastic democratic meeting held in the assembly room of the court house. Congressman Cyrus Cline and Harry H. Hilgemann also spoke.

Congressman Cline declared he was in full sympathy with the administration's policy in Mexico and that he favored a larger navy, but not a larger army. He gave it as his opinion that the people were going to stand by the administration and predicted democratic success at the polls next November.

Mr. Hilgemann was the first speaker. He also predicted a democratic victory next fall. Lewis Price presided as chairman.

Congressman Adair delivered the principal address of the evening. He declared that the republican senators who are censuring administration policies in Mexico are doing it purely and solely for political purposes.

Offering No Remedy.
"They are not offering any remedy for conditions in Mexico," he continued. "Neither would any of them vote to declare war against that unfortunate country. Their action is unpatriotic. They are making the interest of their party paramount to the interest of the country. The American people, regardless of party, are already resenting the efforts of republican senators to make political capital out of an unfortunate situation over which the administration has no control and for which it can in no way be blamed. Some senators are but the mouth pieces of a few American millionaires who have large money interests in Mexico and who are willing to sacrifice the lives of our American boys and create a debt of millions of dollars for which the people would be taxed to pay in order that they may put value into their questionable investments and give them a title to property that does not rightfully belong to them. The American people are not so greatly interested in the investment of this mercenary class that they are willing to sacrifice our boys and our money only to add to the wealth of a few of our millionaires."

In closing Mr. Adair said: "I feel certain that we will carry Indiana by a larger plurality than we did two years ago—and because of our splendid record in both state and nation, we deserve to win and will win in 1916."

REFUSES TO PROSECUTE.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Irving and Herbert Uplike, recently indicted for conspiracy to murder their father, mother and sister, were released from the county jail in bonds of $30,000 each yesterday. Furman D. Uplike, the father of the defendants, and Henry C. Hanson were sureties on the bond. The father has asked State's Attorney Hoyne to quash the indictments as he does not wish to prosecute his sons.

Broken bones are now quickly healed by an injection of bofe dust in petroleum around the ruptured ends.

EACH

Juanita Miller

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 25.—"No woman should think of marriage until she has established economic independence."

"Matrimony is a business proposition, not a venture."

"The woman who marries on the impulse of the moment or because she has nothing else to do is poorly employed."

"Home happiness springs first from an equality of the sexes in all things."

In these terse words Juanita Miller, daughter of the late "Poet of the Sierra," places her estimate on marriage.

"Leap year won't lure me into matrimony," declared Miss Miller.

"Not until I have proved my ability to be economically independent will I entertain designs upon any man."

"I have mapped out a career on the concert stage to test my capabilities," she explained. "Until I can accomplish this feat, I shall feel unfitted to marry."

"I do not mean to say that the first duty of a woman is not to make a home and rear a family, but I do maintain she should qualify as a business woman before undertaking her life work."

A woman whose only idea of existence is to rely solely on the means provided by her husband is poorly equipped to bring up a family. She must be mentally and economically her husband's equal as well as physically.

"No woman should let her art interfere with her prior duty to bear children, but mothers should not devote all their time to their young. Over-care and over-attention oftentimes suppress a child's individuality and unfit him for after life."

Miss Miller is to leave Oakland soon for a concert tour of the large eastern cities.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION"

When Gen. Robert E. Lee at Appomattox wished to make some marginal notes on the papers of the final surrender, he asked the bystanders for a pencil. Strange to say not one of the numerous officers of Lee's staff was able to offer him one. At last an aide-de-camp extracted a pocket inkstand and feather quill from his kit, and with the aid of these historic documents was written and the names of Grant and Lee affixed at the bottom.

The above bit of history was dug up by David W. Griffith during his staging of Lee's surrender to Grant, one of the most striking historical facsimile scenes in "The Birth of a Nation," now in its last performances at the Majestic theater.

General Grant is correctly represented in his fatigues, dusty and travel-stained, while General Lee is shown in the complete panoply of military dress. "My aim," said Mr. Griffith in speaking recently of such scenes, "has been to introduce as little acting as possible. I have tried to be accurate in every detail and keep away from the artificialism."

The accuracy of the historical scenes in "The Birth of a Nation" has stood the acid test of criticism by the foremost critics and historians of the United States. Not a single flaw has been found and there have been none who have not written in eulogy of the faithfulness of the historical scenes. To see "The Birth of a Nation" is an education in itself besides being wonderfully entertaining.

The present engagement will be the last in this vicinity this season. The next two days will therefore afford the last opportunities to witness this superb spectacle.

"Bringing Up Father"

In the course of human frailty and emulation there is nothing more common-place than the aping of the newly rich of the foibles of their betters. This is particularly exemplified in the new singing and dancing comedy, "Bringing Up Father," which is to be the attraction at the Majestic on Monday matinee and night. The production, which is under the direction of that astute manager, Gus Hill, was suggested by the cartoons of George McManus, the well known artist. It is in three acts and the characters are those found in every-day life and not the exaggerated types one is accustomed to see in certain stage of ferings. Constructively the piece is one of the best witnessed hereabouts in seasons. The fun is fast and infectious, contains an interesting and plausible plot and in addition is interpreted by a cast noted for its competence and capability. At least a dozen special numbers are introduced during the action of the comedy.

Mrs. Jennie Dickey of the White apartment, has gone to Columbus, O., where her place, Mrs. Harry B. Townsend, will undergo an operation Friday at the M. Carroll hospital.

AT KEITH PALACE

"THE VOLUNTEERS"

Amusing Singing Novelty on the New Palace Bill.

The singing novelty by George Botsford and Jean C. Hayes, entitled "The Volunteers," is one of the feature hits on the bill that opened a three day engagement at the New Palace this afternoon. It's a funny conglomeration with a "single," a booby, a stage hand and a leader mixed up in a jodge-podge of absurdities.

Wilmer Walter and company will present their celebrated laugh exciting skit, "The Late Van Camp," in which Walter is supported by Alice Parks Warren and a cast of three people. Grace Fisher, the sunshine girl in an abundance of songs and stories; the Dancing Kennedys, doing a series of whirlwind high speed dances; the LeGros, sensational contortionist act, and the Kolb and Harland 1860 to 1925 evolution are other big features on this bill.

AT THE TEMPLE.

"Is Marriage a Failure?" will be seen at the Temple theater this evening. It opened with a well-filled house this afternoon.

The play is one of stock's best. It is full of life, human interest and a hundred and one of those little fine incidents that make up a play. It is not of the cloudy, rainy-day type, with a sob after each act, but full of humor and yet containing many a lesson.

Stock has been better received in Fort Wayne this week than for many months. "The Frame Up," the first bill of this week, drew large crowds, and still more is expected of the bill for the latter part of the week. Everybody likes comedy; that is, if it is produced properly. Fort Wayne stock lovers know that the play will be presented in the very best style, and with the assurance that the play is worth while, they are more than satisfied.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

A Splendid Production at Jefferson.

Life's problem vividly depicted on the Jefferson screen in the Paramount production, "The Ragamuffin," featuring Blanche Sweet in the role of Jenny, a child of the slums. This is a new departure for Miss Sweet, who heretofore has always worn "society clothes" and had, "dressed up parts," but to her credit she acquires herself most admirably in her rags and makes a great impression. A child, a boy, is born in wealth and at an early age is left an orphan and is reared by an aunt. On the same day a child, a girl, is born in poverty and an early age is left an orphan and is reared by a kind old woman who is a member of a high society. The contrast between the two children is shown in a most interesting and dramatic way.

NEW YORK HOTELS CROWDED.

Situation Forces Hotel Men Into Co-operative Scheme.

New York, Jan. 27.—Owing to the unusually large number of persons staying at New York hotels, the hotel association today put in operation a plan for co-operation never before attempted here.

The association has opened a registry where hotels having vacant rooms can register in order to provide accommodation for the overflow of guests who cannot obtain rooms in the more crowded hotels.

The problem of housing visitors to the city has become serious for hotel managers.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 68 B. Marcellus avenue, Manhattan, N. Y. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—Advertisement.

BRITISH IMPERILED BY ARABS AND TURKS

Berlin, Jan. 27.—The Cologne Volks-Zeitung publishes a dispatch from Cairo stating that the British in southern Arabia are in a dangerous position as a result of fierce attacks by Arabs and Turks. It is stated the British casualties up to December amounted to 15,000 killed and 20,000 wounded. The number of British troops now at Aden is given as 20,000.

Quoting from Volks-Zeitung the Overseas News Agency says: "A wounded British major declared that at the beginning of the war the British were in possession of 250,000 square kilometres in southern and southwestern Arabia, all of which has been lost. All the Arab chiefs joined the Turks, and are now using successfully against the British the arms supplied by them."

Expel Women in Reprisal. Fifty English women who have been employed in various occupations in Berlin have been ordered to leave the country not later than February 6. The authorities say that this action is taken in reprisal for the expulsion of German women who had been employed in England.

How Suspended Sentence Law is Working in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—In the eight and one-half years the suspended sentence law has been in force in Indiana, 33.67 per cent. of those under suspended sentence have become delinquent, according to announcement today by the board of state charities.

The judges of the circuit and criminal courts are authorized by this law to suspend the sentence of persons convicted of felony or misdemeanor or who have pleaded guilty to such a charge, except for the crimes of murder, arson, burglary, rape, treason and kidnapping. So far as the law applies to misdemeanants, no available statistics of results are obtainable. The statute is based on the assumption that it is possible to reclaim many law breakers without fixing on them the stigma of prison life.

Paroles Granted, 1,794. During the time the law has been in force sentences were suspended in the case of 1,794 men and women charged with felonies. Of these 556 would have had to go to the state prison, 1,194 to the reformatory and forty-four to the woman's prison, if the law had not been in operation. The law provides that if persons on probation violate their parole, the original sentence shall be carried out. This was done in the case of 203 prisoners, while 401 others who were delinquent had not been apprehended at the close of the fiscal year of 1915.

The percentage of violations reported from the institutions was as follows: state prison, 26.97; reformatory, 36.93; woman's prison, 29.53; of the remaining 1,190, nine died, 315 were under supervision, 863 had been discharged, and three had been pardoned by the governor.

What the Reports Show. The reports from the state prison show that of 556 men whose sentences to that institution were suspended, seventy-five were reporting at the close of the year, four had died, 512 had been discharged. There were 150 delinquents, of whom sixty-seven were apprehended and taken to prison.

The reformatory reported 1,194 men placed under its supervision, 234 of whom were reporting at the close of the year, four had died, 512 had been discharged and 441 were delinquent. One hundred and twenty-eight of these delinquent men had been sent to the reformatory.

From the woman's prison the reports indicated forty-four women under supervision, of whom six were reporting at the close of the year, twenty-four had been discharged and thirteen were delinquent.

ROADS SCHOOL AT PURDUE IS ENDED

West Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 27.—The third annual state school at Purdue university was brought to a close yesterday afternoon after a two days' session. The enrollment was 170 as against 75 last year, showing the increased interest in the school. Almost every county in the state was represented at the meeting by its highway superintendent or engineer.

Dr. L. I. Hewes, of the office of public roads, department of agriculture, remained for yesterday's school and gave an illustrated lecture on roads, bridges and culverts. Among those who took part in the discussion were James Hendricks, of Adams county; O. W. Lytle, of Porter county; O. A. King, of Miami county; W. B. Newman, of Lake county; and Isaiah Hoover, of Wabash county.

"Dust Prevention" was another important topic of the day. Alva Lisky, of Putnam county; William Tonkel, of Allen county and David M. Boyle, of Tippecanoe county, road superintendents, spoke upon the subject. In the afternoon the men were taken on a tour of inspection of Purdue university. "Concrete Roads," illustrated with moving pictures, was the subject of an address by C. D. Franks. Bert Winters, a deputy of the state board of accounts, spoke on "Legal Aspects of the Road Problem."

SUMMER HOTEL IS BURNED.

Old Marshall House on Maine Coast Is Prey of Flames.

York Harbor, Maine, Jan. 27.—The Marshall house, one of the oldest summer hotels on the Maine coast, known to visitors from all parts of the country, was burned last night. It was being prepared for the opening of the season and was occupied only by a caretaker. The loss is estimated at $200,000, part of which is covered by insurance. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

FILLED CARS EXTEND TRANSFER TIME LIMIT

Court at Indianapolis Decides Point of Interest to Passengers.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—A passenger does not lose the privilege of riding on a street car transfer if he allows cars to pass that are so crowded that he can not get aboard without unreasonable discomfort. Judge Moll, of superior court, room 5, instructed a jury to this effect Tuesday, making a restriction that it is necessary for the passenger to mount the first car which is not crowded. The passenger, however, under the court's instructions, can not demand a seat every time. What is unreasonable discomfort or danger is a matter of proof in each case.

The suit was brought by Bert C. McMillan, 503 Marion avenue, against the Indianapolis Traction and Terminal company for $1,000 damages. McMillan alleged he obtained a transfer on an Illinois car to a West Indianapolis car, punched for 6:10 o'clock in the evening and that he had to let several cars pass because they were so crowded he could not get on them. He was ejected from the car he got on because the transfer time had expired and he refused to pay another fare. The company pleaded in defense the franchise and city ordinance which provide that a transfer must be used on the first car passing after it is given. The jury returned a verdict for $50 in favor of McMillan.

CITY ORGANIZED FOR JEWISH RELIEF WORK

Rabbi Weinstein, who has been appointed the local chairman of the Indiana section of the American Jewish Relief committee, has organized the work for the local Jewish community. A number of committees have been canvassing the city today and it is expected that every adult member of the Jewish faith will pledge themselves to contribute definite sums monthly throughout the year 1916, or as long as the war conditions exist. The whole state of Indiana is being organized along these lines. Rabbi Weinstein will shortly visit the cities of Huntington, Columbia City, Peru, Wabash, Logansport and Kokomo for this purpose.

OKLAHOMA TOWN IS HIT BY A TORNADO

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 27.—At least one life was lost, several persons injured and a dozen houses destroyed in a tornado that last night struck Hartshorne, Okla., about forty miles from Fort Smith. Gowen, another town several miles distant, was also hit but owing to wire trouble no particulars of the damage there were available there early today. Tony Annanias and a companion took refuge under a church when they saw the approaching storm at Hartshorne. When they felt the building moving from its foundation they tried to get out. Annanias was ground under the heavy timbers and instantly killed while his companion escaped.

ONE DEAD; ONE BADLY INJURED.

Low-Pressure Hot Water Heater Explodes at Hoopston, Ill.

Hoopston, Ill., Jan. 27.—As the result of the explosion of a low pressure water heater in the plant of the Duff-Bruhl Chemical works here yesterday afternoon, one man is dead and another seriously injured. Frank Cook, the engineer, was badly burned about the face and neck and will recover. A foreigner whose name is unknown was fatally burned about the head, face, chest and abdomen and died at 7:30 o'clock last evening at St. Elizabeth hospital in Lafayette, Ind., where he was taken for treatment. The dead man was buried beneath the debris from the wrecked boiler room and it was some time before he was rescued. He went to work at the plant last Saturday and was only known by his first name, Stanley. He is a Pole.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieves congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely reliable, therefore harmless.—Advertisement.

HAD LEAPED TO HIS DEATH

Nathan Pullman, Sought for Wife Murder, Jumps from Hotel Window.

MAN BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN INSANE

Disappeared Shortly Before Double Tragedy is Discovered.

New York, Jan. 27.—Police today identified the body of a man who died in a hospital shortly after jumping from the third floor of an uptown hotel as that of Nathan Pullman, the retired Chicago insurance agent who was being sought on the charge of having murdered his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Pullman, and daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Bazel, in a Bronx apartment yesterday.

The man died without regaining consciousness but police said they found a number of papers, notes and letters in his clothing which proved his identification and later a relative made the identification positive. Three of the letters contained the phrase: "The wages of sin is death."

Pullman registered at the hotel early last evening, as "Mr. Jones and wife," telling a clerk that "Mrs. Jones" would join him about eight o'clock. No one went to the man's room, however, and he was not seen again until his body was found on the sidewalk.

Pullman was seen leaving the Bronx apartment about four hours before the bodies of his wife and daughter were found. The skulls of both women had been crushed in with a small hatchet which was found under a bed. Friends said Pullman had come here from Chicago for a reunion with his family and was believed to have carried $5,000 in currency when he left the apartment. Police expressed the opinion, after an investigation that the man had murdered the two women after suddenly going insane.

One letter found in Pullman's clothing, addressed to the "Newspapers and everybody" said: "Good bye, ta ta everybody. I guess I will make good. I am going away on a long journey. Ta ta again and ta ta once more."

In a rambling, disjointed manner, the writer advised the people "not to worry over these two," as they were "not better off, and there is no good in making a fuss over something that can't be helped."

There was no signature to the note.

WHEN SEARCH BEGAN.

New York, Jan. 27.—Detectives are searching for Nathan Pullman, a well-to-do and retired real estate and insurance agent, who disappeared from his home in the Bronx yesterday four hours before the discovery that his wife, Mrs. Rebecca Pullman, and Gertrude Bazel had been murdered.

Other occupants of the house told the police that Nathan Pullman left the lodging house at 3 o'clock yesterday telling the landlady, whom he met in the hall, that his wife was ill and that he was going for a physician. Four hours later when Pullman had not returned the landlady went to the rooms occupied by the Pullmans and found the body of Mrs. Pullman on the bed with her skull crushed apparently with an ax that was thrown under the bed. The body of Mrs. Bazel lay near the door to the room, indicating that she had been struck down as she entered, evidently with a hatchet, which was found on the floor nearby.

Pullman is believed to have had from $3,000 to $5,000 when he left the house.

WOLFESSAUER Here's Something New Under the Sun and It's Made Right Here in Ft. Wayne THE ECONOMY KLEAN HAND DUSTER

It isn't always the big things that are the most important in housekeeping. Sometimes the smallest thing, of itself, is the greatest factor in scientific labor saving.

Such is the case with these new Klean Hand Dust Cloth Mittens, which are made here in Fort Wayne.

The illustration will show how they are made and every woman's good reasoning will grasp the advantage of such a duster. The dust cloth proper, of generous size, is shirred around the outer edge of a mitten which slips snugly over the hand.

The cloth is chemically treated and holds the dust, not scatters it.

It cleans while it dusts, and polishes while it dusts.

To introduce the Economy Dustless Dusters, they will be on Special Sale the balance of the week at 19c and 39c.

—Regularly 25c and 50c; the 50c duster being made of champps fabric.

Enjoy the Luxury of Shower Bathing With a KENNEY NEEDLE SHOWER

The Kenney Four-stream Needle Shower is an inexpensive bath-tub fixture providing a new and better way to bathe—a more healthful, more invigorating and more sanitary way. It is the greatest step ahead since the introduction of the modern bath tub.

The Kenney Shower has come on the market just when the old-way of bathing—filling a tub and finishing in the same water you start with—is being denounced as fearfully insubstantial. Physicians and health authorities everywhere are advocating shower bathing—bathing in running water with every drop that touches you absolutely fresh and clean—as the only sanitary way to bathe.

Shower bathing is not only advocated as the only sanitary way to bathe, but it is also indorsed as the most healthful way.

Every up-to-date home should be equipped with a Shower. Aside from its superior cleanliness, the physiological effect of a Shower bath is superior. It stimulates the heart action, benefits normal nerves, starts up the circulation and sends blood to every portion of the body.

MRS. GOODRICH IN CHARGE.

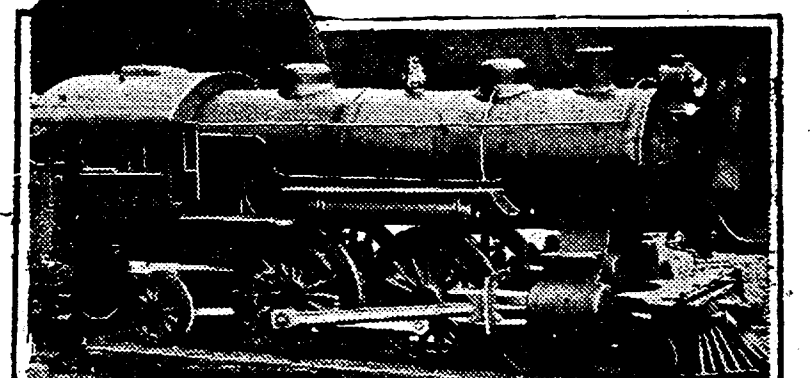

Day Nursery is Still Open at Rescue Home Mission.

Opportunity circle of Kings' Daughters has secured a new matron, a Mrs. Goodrich, to take charge of its day nursery and the institution is still open at the Rescue Home Mission building.

The young ladies, however, are still on the lookout for a small home which they can lease for the purpose of the nursery, and those aware of a suitable property that may be available are invited to telephone Miss Edith Heit. The removal is desirable because the room is needed for the mission work and from the additional fact that it is desired to secure quarters better suited to the care of the children.

CREAM EXTINGUISHES FIRE.

Farmer's Wife, Near Wabash, Finds Experiment Successful.

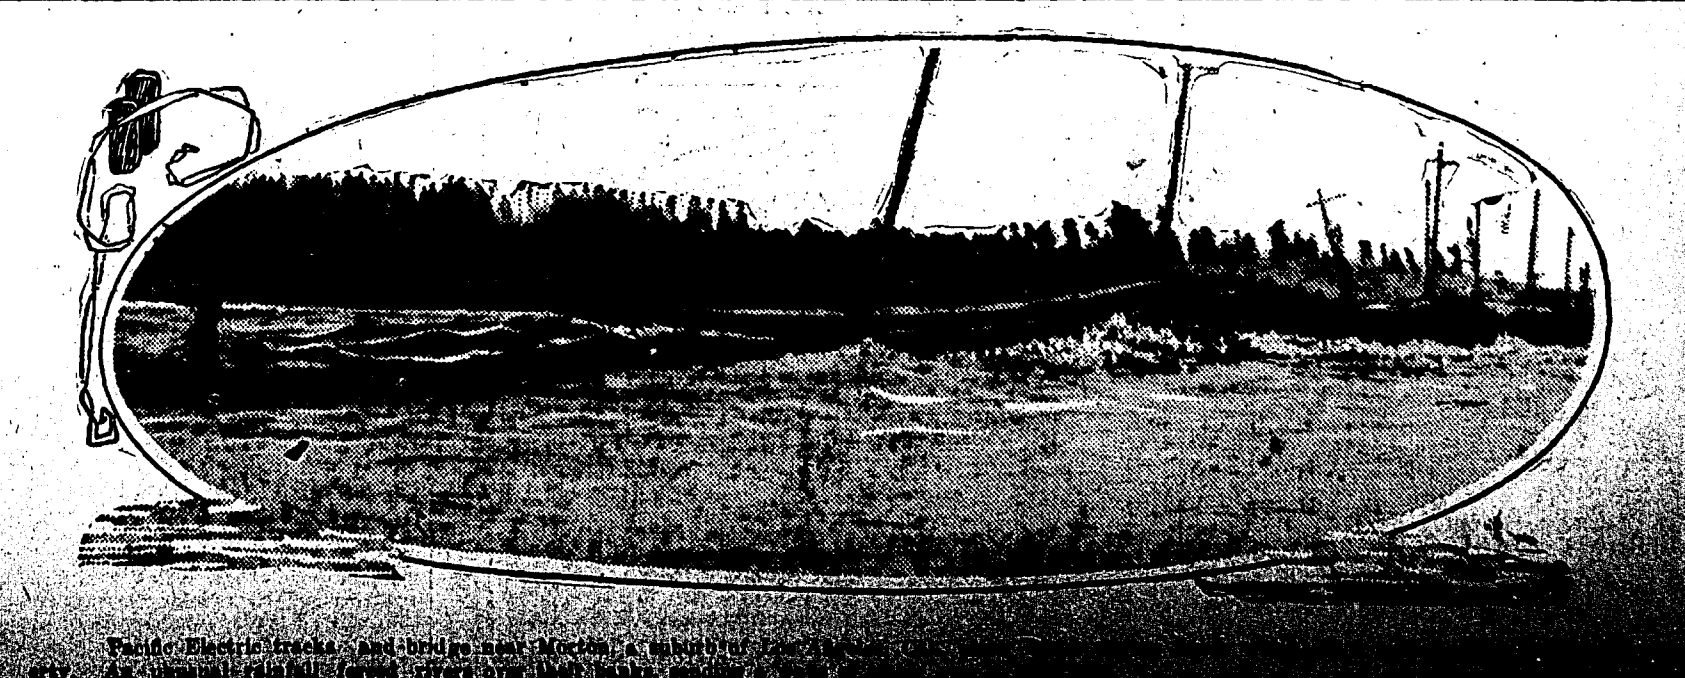

Wabash, Ind., Jan. 27.—One can of condensed cream saved the home of C. E. Eiler, a farmer, from destruction when the structure seemed doomed by fire, and it was found impossible to summon neighbors. The telephone was out of commission and a rope attached to a large dinner bell broke as Mrs. Eiler attempted to use it to sound the alarm. A coal oil lamp was upset, scattering oil about the room, and the flame from the lamp ignited it. Fearing to use water lest it spread the oil, Mrs. Eiler thought of a quart of cream in the kitchen. With it she was able to extinguish the blaze.

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 27.—The disappointment of Charles Gallione's life is that he didn't become a railroad engineer.

When he was in his teens his mother wouldn't let him start in as a fireman. Too dangerous, she said.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

ST. PAULS DEFEAT
SORIN HALL FIVE

Pugilistic Touch in the Midst of Things Helped
Thrills.

St. Paul spilled the Sorin hall boys from Notre Dame all over the floor and took last night's game by a score of 35 and 17. Except for an affair of honor and fists between Kennedy and Coffall in the midst of a perfectly ladylike game, it was good sport, and both players were ruled off the floor after their little set-to.

The visitors opened with a basket but the St. Paul boys soon climbed up beside them and then passed them, remaining ahead practically throughout the game, and always keeping an upper hand of the stuff. The game was spectacular throughout, with a series of brilliant plays by White Gerberding predominating as the high spots.

But to return to the battle that really added the thrill to the match. Coffall whizzed up to Kennedy and swung on him with his sturdy right, catching the Fort Wayne boy across the face. Those who know Kennedy need not be told that he swatted back. Referee Island ruled both of them off the floor. Island again last night proved his ability as a referee and bawled several players at the mere suggestion of rough stuff. The lineup and scores:

St. Paul, 35—Stroup, R. F.; Gerberding, L. F.; Bauer-Benz-Trebra, C.; Dietrich, R. G.; Kennedy-Benz, L. G.; Sorin Hall, 17—Fitzpatrick, R. F.; Kennedy, L. F.; Coffall-O'Donnell, C.; Slackford, R. G.; Bauhan, L. G. Field goals—Stroup, 2; Gerberding, 8; Bauer, 2; Fitzpatrick, 4; Kennedy, 1; Coffall, 1; Slackford, 1. Foul goals—Gerberding, 3; Kennedy, 3. Referee—Island.

NATIONALS WIN.
In the preliminary the Nationals won from the Aeolians. The lineup and scores:

Nationals—Hoffman-Adams, R. F.; Stenger, L. F.; Doerfler, C.; Linnemeier, R. G.; Walda, L. G. Aeolians—Doriot, R. F.; Rulo-Loss, L. F.; McGuire, C.; DeWald, R. G.; Daley, L. G. Field goals—Hoffman, 4; Stenger, 5; Doerfler, 2; Walda, 1; Doriot, 4; McGuire, 5. Foul goals—Walda, 3.

PURDUE IS SELECTED.
Indiana College Track and Field Meet to Be Held May 27.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The Indiana College Athletic association track and field meet will be held at Lafayette, Ind., May 27. It was decided at a meeting of the organization here last night. Oliver Cutts, of Purdue university, was re-elected president. It was announced that I. C. A. L. rules would govern the I. C. A. L. colleges at the meet, while Purdue, Indiana and Notre Dame would be governed by western conference rules, which prohibit the participation of freshmen athletes.

Rajah Bresnahan Ain't Got
Nothin'.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—The exact status of Roger Bresnahan in baseball is still undecided today, although at a conference yesterday with Charles Weeghman he was officially informed that he is no longer manager of the Chicago Nationals. Weeghman said he would pay Bresnahan his salary as provided in Roger's contract, which has two years to run, but that Joseph Tinker would pilot the club. Bresnahan is said to have told the new Cub president that this arrangement did not meet with his approval and to have hinted at possible legal proceedings to force the fulfillment of his contract to the letter.

IT'S TIME TO TAKE TO CYCLONE CELLARS

Zanesville Giants on the Job
Against St. Mary's
Tonight.

St. Mary's and the Zanesville busters meet tonight at the Shrine auditorium and one of the very best little battles of the winter ought to result. The local boys are ready for any brand of anarchy the visitors are likely to spring, and Louis Island, the referee, has been chosen because of his ability to keep dirt out of a game. If he wants to make a hit with Fort Wayne fans tonight, Island will keep the Zanesville boys down, not half way down, but all the way, making them play as clean a game as the next one. It has been the custom to forgive and forget some of Zanesville's small town stuff because it was Zanesville, but tonight if Island has a head on his shoulders he will see to it that rough stuff is absolutely barred from both sides.

The game will be good, no matter who wins, for both sides are going into it with the well known determination to win or bust.

Clothing for the poor of Fort Wayne will be received at 1029 Fairfield avenue, and distributed to worthy people through the Fort Wayne Mother's club and the various charitable organizations. 11-15-tf

PERCY HAUGHTON QUILTS HIS HIGH-FALU-TIN WAYS.

Percy Haughton

(By Brown Holmes.)

Percy Haughton, the man who made Harvard famous for football, then became president and part owner of the Boston Braves, is a real baseball man now. He has tossed aside his wrist watch.

Tossed aside, did we say? That's a little tame. He heaved it. This is how it happened.

Haughton gave a banquet at which George Stallings, Brave manager, newspaper men and others were guests. There were, of course, speeches. One speaker referred to the wrist watch. Haughton grabbed at his left wrist, quickly unbuckled the little strap and heaved the watch at the speaker.

"Take that thing," he said, "I'm tired of hearing about it."

And so, the only wrist watch in baseball passed out of the game. Haughton's entrance into baseball not only disclosed that he wore a wrist watch but other things. He's a real fellow, a big man with a big brain. And he can talk.

Through all his years as head football at Harvard, Haughton was disliked by newspaper men. He wouldn't talk to them. He treated them with cold disdain. Now, it is discovered, he was not himself then. He was working under rules.

The Harvard office has great fear of the commercialism of sport. The Harvard office does not like to see a football player get notorious while a student who takes honors as a scholar is ignored. Harvard requested Haughton to be silent. He was. But as soon as Percy got into baseball he became a conversationalist.

Haughton has offices on State street in Boston. One room is used by his stenographer. The other is Percy's thinking room. In this room he has built championship football teams. In this room he worked out the plays that beat Yale, Princeton and everybody else.

A visit to Haughton's thinking room reveals that he is the champion chain tilter of the country. If there is anyone who can tilt back in a chair and balance himself longer than Haughton can, he has not been advertised.

A visit also discloses that he is not the sort of man who would be suspected of wearing a wrist watch. He's a fighter. Woe to the man who, laboring under the impression he is dealing with a mamby-pamby individual, tries to put anything over on the new president of the Braves.

SEEK TO ENJOIN TREASURER.

Suit Filed in Lake County to Prevent Collection of Taxes.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26.—George A. Bittler, state treasurer, today received a letter from Newton A. Hembroff, of Indiana Harbor, county attorney, calling attention of state officials to a suit that has been filed at Hammond asking for a temporary injunction against the Lake county treasurer, to prevent the collection of taxes on a certain piece of ground, the appraised value of which was raised by the assessing officials of the township and county for taxation purposes in 1915.

Mr. Hembroff wrote Bittler that on the outcome of this case, he understood would depend to a large extent whether a general increase in property values in certain Lake county townships would be valid. The Lake county officials increased valuations of classes of property in Calumet township, Lake county, and the present suit, filed by Joseph, Fred, Frank and James Tittle, against Matthew J. Brown, county treasurer, is to test that increase, according to Hembroff.

Members of the state board of tax commissioners said today they had taken no official action in regard to the matter in question under the suit. The suit will be heard February 7 at Hammond. It seems to concern the collection of taxes and property values.

THE SAD CASE OF
MR. MATTY RICE

An Ugly Big Black Cat Steps Right in Between Him and Fame.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 27.—Morris Vasquez, known to coast fighters as Matty Rice, is in a fine fix.

He married "one of the best little women on the planet" recently. She thinks he can fight and wants him to whip ten men, just as a starter to a career. A black cat blasted Matty's hopes for greatness and now he doesn't know what to do. He's between two fires—his wife's love and the bother of superstition.

"I was in my dressing room just before my last fight," explains Matty, "when right in front of me jumps a big black cat. Right then and there I thought of losing the fight because of that cat. My thoughts came true, for my opponent slipped me a lucky punch and it curtains for me. It's been that way since."

"I swore off fighting and got married. But, to my surprise, my wife thinks I can fight. She wants me to whip ten men just as a starter. I guess I'll have to, for her sake. Her confidence in me is rather whipping the idea of that black cat and bad luck out of my mind. I am getting ready to meet any 118-pound boy who'll fight me."

HE COULD HARDLY GO

"About two years ago I got down on my back until I hardly could go," writes Solomon Bequette, Flat River, Mo. "I got a 50c box of Foley Kidney Pills and they straightened me right up."

Common symptoms of kidney trouble are backache, headache, rheumatic pains, soreness and stiffness, dullness under eyes, blurred vision, deep disturbing bladder troubles and a languid, tired feeling. Foley Kidney Pills help to eliminate the poisonous waste matter that causes these symptoms.

Governor Has No Successor for Wolcott on Tax Board.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 27.—Eben H. Wolcott, republican member of the state board of tax commissioners, has tendered his resignation from that office to Governor Ralston to take effect on April 3. The resignation was accepted as of that date. The governor said he would not take up the question of appointing Wolcott's successor until he returned from a trip to Miami, Fla., on which he and Mrs. Ralston will start next Friday.

Among the men who already have been mentioned to the governor for the appointment are W. H. Hart and James Henry, of Indianapolis, and Preston Smith, former state senator, of Paragou, Ind. The name of Winfield T. Miller, of Indianapolis, also is heard in connection with the place.

EX-PUG LOSES ARM IN BATTLE

JACK MUNROE

Jack Monroe, former fighter who enlisted in the British army, is in a London hospital recovering from an operation performed after a German shell took off his right arm at the elbow.

The arm was the one that gained fame for Jack when he knocked down Jim Jeffries while Jeff was champion.

Monroe was sergeant in the "Princess Pat" regiment, which was almost entirely wiped out in the second battle of Ypres.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 27.—Dick Hooper, of Texas university, has only one arm, but is one of the best college baseball players in the country. He is captain of his team.

Hooper is an outfielder. He wears a glove on his right hand, the only one he has. After he catches a ball he tosses it into the air and slaps the glove under what is left of his left arm. Then he grabs the ball out of the air and throws it. Hooper goes through the whole operation with such speed he can get a ball started toward the diamond, after making a catch, almost as quickly as an outfielder with two hands.

Last season Hooper threw out ten runners at the plate. He had 105 chances in the field and did not make an error.

He is a good batter. He uses a short, thick bat. Last season he hit safely in sixteen consecutive games, making a better record than most of his teammates.

This is Hooper's last year at Texas university. He plans to enter Dartmouth next year.

QUARTER CENTURY CLUB ORGANIZING

Big General Electric Social Body Will Be Born at Banquet.

A Fort Wayne branch of the Quarter Century club of the General Electric company will be organized at an informal dinner and reception given at the Anthony tonight in honor of A. L. Rohrer, electrical superintendent of the General Electric company, of Schenectady, who is president of the parent Quarter Century club of that city. Mr. Rohrer, who arrived in the city this morning, came on business with the officers of the Fort Wayne Electric works and to deliver an address before the Electro-Technic club at the high school auditorium Friday night.

A year ago the movement for a Fort Wayne branch of the Quarter Century club was started, but was not carried to a completion, and when it was learned that Mr. Rohrer was coming here this week, men back of the movement conceived the idea of a dinner in his honor, at which the thirty-one eligible people who had signed the membership roll for a local branch of the club would be the hosts. The dinner will be given at the Anthony hotel tonight, commencing at 7 o'clock, and following it the local Quarter Century club will be fully organized.

At a preliminary meeting it was decided that Factory Superintendent E. A. Barnes will be the chairman and M. S. Willson, William Schultz and Harry Beers a general committee to act until officers are selected. As stated this will be a branch of the General Electric Quarter Century club, whose membership is now over 400 and whose headquarters are in Schenectady, and it will not be necessary to have a complete roster as would be the case under different circumstances. The organization is a purely social affair, designed to keep old employees of the company in touch with each other, and the membership requirements are twenty-five years continuous service with the General Electric company or the companies absorbed and controlled by it.

The list of members is as follows: E. A. Barnes, William Brennan, H. C. Beers, Samuel Brownberger, William Dornell, H. W. Drifmeyer, Harry J. Evans, J. E. Hall, J. P. Kiehlhaber, W. P. Knidit, John F. Kless, John Kress, Fred Miller, William J. Murphy, A. T. Miller, Darwin S. Myers, Herman P. Rehm, William Raily, S. W. Richards, W. Stuart Reher, C. S. Reher, William H. FIFTY-TWO YEARS AT WORK.

John Shuttis Has Spent Half Century on Wabash.

John Shuttis, the veteran agent for the Wabash railroad at Danville, Ill., fifty-two years ago began his railroad career in Lafayette. He was at that time appointed chief clerk in the office of Samuel M. Vancian, master mechanic of the Lafayette and Indianapolis road, with headquarters in that city. Mr. Shuttis was for some time timekeeper for the road. Later Mr. Vancian resigned and went to Philadelphia to take a position with the Baldwin Locomotive works. Mr. Shuttis was for a time employed as an operator on a western road and later resigned to accept a position as cashier for the Wabash road at Quincy. He was later appointed agent at Attica, where he was stationed until 1881, when he was appointed agent at Danville. He was one of the best known agents in the employ of the Banner line.

NEW ASSEMBLERS AT LIGHTS.

Foreman W. H. Schultz, of the big dynamo assembling room at the Fort Wayne Electric works, is one of the busiest men at that big establishment, so great is the demand on the department. Mr. Schultz has just added several new men to his force and will probably take on others soon. In the list is W. A. Dickelhoff, who quit the works two years ago to take up farming. Other new assemblers are Alfred Noble, William Koestel, Fred Templeton, B. B. Tine, George Brann, August Busse and Ralph Latham. Victor Bradbury is a new messenger in the department.

REBUILT FOUNDRY IS OPENED.

The rebuilt foundry of the Western Gas works is practically complete and was thrown open to operations this morning with all the force available. One hundred men are at work in the department now and forty more moulders and coremakers and the necessary helpers will be set to work as soon as they can be secured. Supt. W. G. Kaiser states that the company has orders on the books now to keep the works busy several months and more orders are coming in.

SMALL STRIKE AT DUDLO'S PLANT

A misunderstanding regarding work conditions at the factory of the Dudlo Manufacturing company on Wall street, resulted in a strike of some of the employees. The trouble grew out of a notice that employees would not be paid for spoiled tools and if they did not quit the work. According to Manager G. Jacobs all but three have returned to work after a conference with him, and he does not expect any further trouble.

OLD CROSSING WATCHMAN DEAD.

Peter Trautman, crossing watchman for a number of years at Dunkirk, Ohio, died yesterday, following an illness extending over a period of three years. Mr. Trautman was sixty-one years old. He began service as a section hand with the Pennsylvania in 1881 and in 1899 was transferred to Captain Stoll's department and made a crossing watchman.

TAKES GOVERNMENT POSITION.

S. H. Harvey, of the wire department under Foreman F. G. Duryer, at the Fort Wayne Electric works, has received the appointment in the civil service as electrical engineer in the interstate commerce commission at Washington, D. C. He will leave Sunday for Washington and will take up the duties of his new office February 1.

NEW MESSENGER AT WABASH SHOPS.

P. L. Harris, of Auburn, arrived in the city last night and this morning assumed the duties of messenger in the office of General Foreman W. J. Welch, of the Wabash. Mr. Harris succeeds Neil Richards, who has taken a better position with the company at Delray.

J. J. WOOD RETURNS.

J. J. Wood, factory manager of the Fort Wayne Electric works, and his bride returned from their wedding trip last night and this morning Mr. Wood resumed active duties at the plant. His business was very good at the works and the outlook for even better times was bright.

HIS BROTHER DEAD IN LAPORTE.

Walter G. Zahrt, assistant general manager of S. F. Bowser & Co., has been called to Laporte, Ind., by news of the death of his brother, William Zahrt. Mr. Zahrt accompanied her to the funeral.

Atlantic City, Famous Playground, Becomes Duelling Place Between God and the Devil

DEFENSE OF CITY BY JOY TOWN'S MAYOR

Atlantic City is essentially a resort for health and recreation, and the people want to be entertained, not lectured.

As to Dr. Stough, he is the most potent evangelist I ever met, because his heart is kind. He has a very difficult task here, and I await with interest the result.

It is difficult for him to accomplish much because Atlantic City is a Christian community, and everybody hit the trail long before he came.

All this talk about the wickedness of Atlantic City is "Bunk." We have the happiest homes, the finest schools, the best churches, and the most devout people that I have ever lived with this side of Asbury Park. William Riddle, mayor of Atlantic City.

By Kenneth W. Payne

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 27.—Trapped in the tenderloin of what he calls the "world's widest-open city," tempted by beckoning beauties behind red draperies in a veritable palace of prostitution, outraged by his glimpses of the half-nude denizens of the notorious underworld in Atlantic City, America's glistening pleasure isle, the Rev. Henry W. Stough, hailed as the country's greatest corner in evangelism, has just launched out scorchingly here upon the most thrilling drama of city saving ever staged.

Face to face we have a preacher who damns even dancing, threatens you with hell for touching cards, and a wealthy, brilliant mayor who thinks 25 per cent of life is good booze," and advocates enlivening Atlantic City during Lent with imported gamblers, boxers and loads of chorus girls!

That's the antithesis that makes the drama tense. The drama is colored by as picturesque a group of actors and onlookers as was ever assembled; and it's laid in America's gayest year-round play spot; and the denouement is bound to be a thriller, but nobody knows yet what it is going to be. For all these reasons the great Stough revival that is getting up headway here in the lee of the Boardwalk is sure to cause as startling a national sensation as Billy Sunday has ever pulled.

"A city built on the skulls of dead souls!" That is how Evangelist Stough described to me this garish pleasure spot, with its ocean front facade of impeccably elegant hotels, the most palatial in America, and its backtown of saloons and brothels.

And then, toward 11 at night, he took us out to probe in person the raw underworld of Atlantic City, which he had thus described. Within a few blocks of the station whence the last train for Philadelphia had left, we found the row of houses, alight, welcoming, displaying their names brazenly.

Dr. Stough wore an elegant fur colored overcoat; the girls picked him out as the prime prey of the party; from the porches of the dollar house, a regular mansion, they beckoned. And Dr. Stough went, for he was out to get the real dope on the town before he ripped it up the back.

And so, amid the nightly drama of the tenderloin we probed, seeing the notorious "blood pit," where shortly before in a wild orgy a visitor had lost an eye.

The Rev. Henry W. Stough preaching a 42-centimeter sermon against the vice of America's widest-open city before great crowd in his tabernacle.

At last the party was sickened and turned homeward.

Dr. Stough stretched out on a couch back at the hotel, while ex-Pugilist Jack Cardiff, his trainer, tucked parts of him under a fancy coverlet and pummeled and rubbed and slapped the rest of him with alcohol—the only form in which any member of the party touches it—moralized to me upon his experiences.

"This state of New Jersey is as vile as hell on the booze question!" he said. "It is one of the three blackest in the union, and when I came to Atlantic City I was told the job here was hopeless. It was a good, old liquor city."

"I won't attack the respectable hotels, in so far as they are respectable!"

"Atlantic City isn't responsible for all these old rakes. They come down from New York or Philadelphia, and put up in a swell suite at a big hotel with some chippie picked up back home, and they try to pass her off as wife or daughter. For them, there ought to be one more big flashing sign on that gay white-lighted boardwalk, and that sign should flare the warning in letters: "Your sins will find you out!"

"The denizens of vice here are peering from red-curtained windows practically under the walls of the city hall! From the four corners of the nation the slickest gamblers in the world are swooping down upon the city."

"Atlantic City is a city which can send its poisons of gambling and lust coursing into ever corner of America!"

"The trouble with this city is," Dr. Stough spluttered through the witch hazel with which Jack Cardiff was massaging his face, "that there isn't a normal amount of home life."

"The very babies here are brought up on the boardwalk! Even their baby carriages mingle with the rolling chairs in which painted girls are lolling. No wonder some of the city's girls become themselves painted strumpets on the streets!"

PRAISES SCHOOLS OF ALLEN COUNTY

Dr. H. A. Adrian Delighted With What He Has Seen Here.

Dr. H. A. Adrian, of Santa Barbara, Cal., who was one of the instructors at the Allen County Teachers' institute in 1913 and 1914, visited the Monroeville and New Haven public schools Wednesday and speaks of them in words that are highly complimentary. Especially does he mention the manual training department in each case and told how much more efficient the method is that is used here than the one practiced in his home state.

Dr. Adrian stated that he was surprised to see the work and although he had not been enthusiastic about visiting the schools Wednesday morning, he was very glad now that he had gone. "In California," said the interesting speaker to a party of people gathered in the county superintendent's office, "we have drifted away from the making of practical things in the manual training departments. There the boys are compelled to make small useless things over and over and not only do they lose interest in the work, but they are not being taught anything which will be beneficial to them in later years."

"I saw in your schools here that the boys are being taught to mend broken articles of furniture and take things that are worn out and make something new with the old material. That is why I am complimenting and recommending them so highly. The boy is learning something which can be used to an advantage when he owns property of his own. It teaches him economy."

Many of the county teachers may be pleased to know that Dr. Adrian, who is a very talented speaker, is now on a lecture tour and leaves Friday for Louisville. He told his friends Thursday that he was caught in the great Nebraska blizzard ten days ago and that he was forced to walk several miles after the train had jumped the track and was caught fast in the high snow drifts. He succeeded in reaching a farm house after freezing both of his ears.

County Calls Attention to Coombs and Tennessee Bridges.

In a letter addressed to Mayor William J. Hoyer and the board of public works, the board of county commissioners calls attention to the fact that approaches to the Coombs street bridge over the Maumee river and the Tennessee avenue bridge, over the St. Joe river, remain in need of approaches and that the county board would like to know what the city can do this year toward putting these bridges in condition for traffic. The Tennessee avenue bridge has been completed almost four years, but the west approach has never been constructed. Tennessee avenue, west of the bridge, has not been improved. The Coombs street bridge has been completed almost three years, but the approaches have never been constructed. The board has been waiting upon a settlement of the matter of elevating the Nickel Plate railway tracks at Coombs and Canal streets, because that improvement will affect the approach to the bridge. The board of commissioners state in its letter that it is not attempting to dictate to the board of works, but would appreciate some action that will put these bridges in commission for traffic.

TO SETTLE PAVING MATTERS.

Park and Public Works Boards to Have a Consultation.

The board of park commissioners and the board of public works are to have an immediate consultation to discuss the part each shall take in bearing the expense of paving three streets that city property abuts upon extensively. These are Creighton avenue, along the south side of which Reservoir park has a frontage of two squares; Crescent avenue, upon which Lakeside park has a considerable frontage; and North Clinton street, where Lawton park has a frontage and upon which city property under jurisdiction of the board of works abuts. It is desired by the board to pave these streets this year and a controversy between the two boards as the park board's obligation to pay for paving along park frontages has never been settled.

STILL WAIT ON DECISION.

The board of works is still "up in the air" as to the paving program for this year because it does not yet know whether or not it will be obliged to include the paving of St. Joe boulevard from Lake avenue to State boulevard, City Attorney John C. Collins has announced that the city will not pay for the paving of the boulevard.

THE NATIVE PERSIMMON—METHOD OF PROPAGATING IT

The Persimmon Seems to Have Been the First Native American Fruit to Be Described and Praised by the Early Explorers—DeSoto Praised Its Food Value in a Published Account in 1557—John Smith's Narrative of the New World, Written Early in the Seventeenth Century, Included a Long Discussion of the Persimmon—He said: "If it Be Not Ripe, it Will Draw a Man's Mouth Awrie With Much Torment," Thus Well Characterizing the Puckering, Astringent Effect of the Immature Fruit.

By W. FLETCHER.

The persimmon tree has received more criticism, both and favorable, than almost any other known species. Those who have discussed the food value of the fruit, from the earliest chroniclers to recent writers, have prophesied that the tree would soon be accorded a place in our gardens and orchards. Those people, on the other hand, who have been acquainted only with the immature fruit or with the young sprouts in cultivated fields have had nothing to say in its favor and have bent their energies toward its destruction rather than its propagation and cultivation.

There are several factors which are responsible for the slow progress of persimmon development in this country. One reason for the neglect of this fruit seems to be the erroneous yet oft-repeated statement that persimmons are unfit to eat until they have either been touched by frost or frozen. Although this statement has been corrected by nearly every one who has studied the subject, nevertheless throughout the regions where persimmons are grown many of the best fruits are lost each year because they ripen and fall before frost or before they are supposed to be edible. The truth of the matter is that freezing is as detrimental to the quality of persimmons as to the quality of any other fruit. If persimmons are not eaten before frost, it is because the variety is a late one and the fruit has not yet matured.

The development of the persimmon, whether for orchard or ornamental purposes, has been retarded by the difficulty encountered in propagating and transplanting it. One grower has characterized it as the only tree that he could not kill in his cultivated fields and the only one that he could not make live in his garden. Failure in transplanting is usually due to a lack of knowledge concerning the characteristic root development of the persimmon. Under natural conditions, the roots penetrate much deeper into the soil than those of most other fruit trees, and unless great care is exercised when the tree is taken up it is almost impossible to get more than a small percentage of the root system, thus reducing the chance of making the tree live when transplanted.

From time to time valuable trees have been discovered, care for, and even in some cases transplanted or propagated. Most of these have been soon neglected or destroyed, until there are comparatively few varieties of marked value available for general distribution.

Both De Soto and Jan de Laet when describing the fruit of the native persimmon call it a "delicious little plum," and John Smith and other writers of the seventeenth century speak of it as a plum with the flavor of an apricot.

Roughly speaking, the persimmon is indigenous to the southeastern quarter of the United States, being found in large numbers in the fields and forests of that section. The more favored localities in Iowa and eastern Nebraska produce many fruits, but very few trees are found west of central Kansas. Scattering specimens in Connecticut and on Long Island mark the present northeastern limit of the species. A few trees in Rhode Island, New York, and Michigan which produce fairly well, indicate that the northern limit of cultivation may be extended whenever economic conditions (that is, the value of the fruit for food or of the tree for ornamental purposes) seem to warrant.

The zone of greatest productivity and adaptability, wherein appear by far the largest number of promising types, extends from Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolinas westward through Missouri and Arkansas. The persimmon thrives equally well on the sands of the Coastal Plain, the shales of the Allegheny Mountains, the muck of the river-bottom lands, and the chert of the Ozarks.

The season of the native persimmon is probably longer than that of any other wild fruit, both locally and over the country as a whole. In many sections the earliest and the latest varieties may be found growing side by side, or at least within a few miles of each other. The Bureau of Plant Industry has records for both early and late varieties from the southern part of Georgia and Florida. In the District of Columbia there are some trees which ripen their fruit in August and others on which it hangs until February.

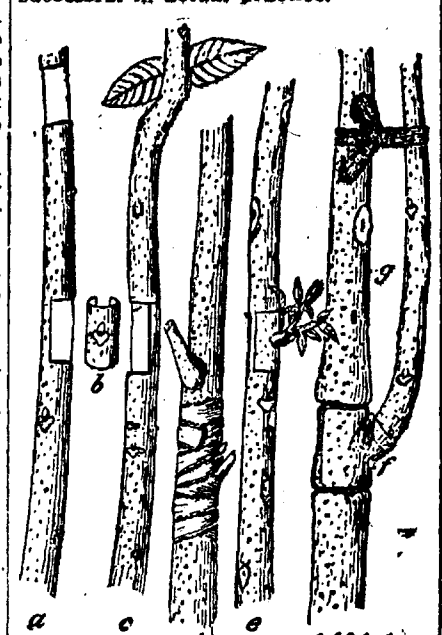

Generally speaking, the best fruits are neither the earliest nor the latest, but rather those that ripen just before the beginning of the tree's dormant season. The latest varieties are still immature when the leaves fall or when they are killed by frost, and they must complete the ripening process within themselves instead of drawing nourishment from the tree until they have grown to maturity. The largest as well as the best fruits are those that ripen about the time the trees shed their leaves. The early varieties are nearly all medium in size, and the late varieties which hang on until cold weather are generally small.

As is the case with most fruit trees, the persimmon does not reproduce its varietal characteristics through the seed, and other methods of propagation are, therefore, necessary to perpetuate desirable varieties. Propagation of the persimmon by the methods commonly employed with tree fruits is more difficult than for such fruits as the apple or the peach. The methods described herein have been found successful in actual practice.

Annular Budding: (a) Bud Stick from Which the Bud Has Been Removed; (b) Bud Ready for Insertion in the Matrix of the Stock; (c) The Stock Ready to Receive the Bud; (d) The Bud After Being Placed in Position and Carefully Wrapped; (e) Growth Taking Place, the Wrapping Having Been Removed; (f) Growth from the Bud Supported by Being Tied to the Stock; (g) Above the Union, Note the Scars Above the Union, Where the Buds Were Removed in Order to Direct the Flow of Sap to the New Bud.

The seeds of the persimmon are scattered by mammals and birds and in the natural sequence of events reach the ground in the fall or winter without becoming dry. They are lightly covered with grass or leaves and are subjected to the varying temperatures of winter, always remaining moist. The following spring the seeds sprout as soon as the soil becomes warm enough, provided that the conditions accompanying the rise in temperature do not dry them unduly. Seeds which fall under the trees are usually too much exposed to the atmosphere and dry too much to admit of germination.

Seeds that are gathered for propagating purposes should be stratified at once. If they are allowed to dry out it is often necessary to soak them for two or three days before they are planted, the water being renewed each day at a boiling temperature.

The seed bed in which persimmon seedlings are grown should be located on well-drained land where the soil is rather light and well supplied with humus. The ground should be plowed deep with a subsoil plow unless the subsoil is friable enough to permit the ready penetration of the long tap-roots which characterize the growth of persimmon seedlings.

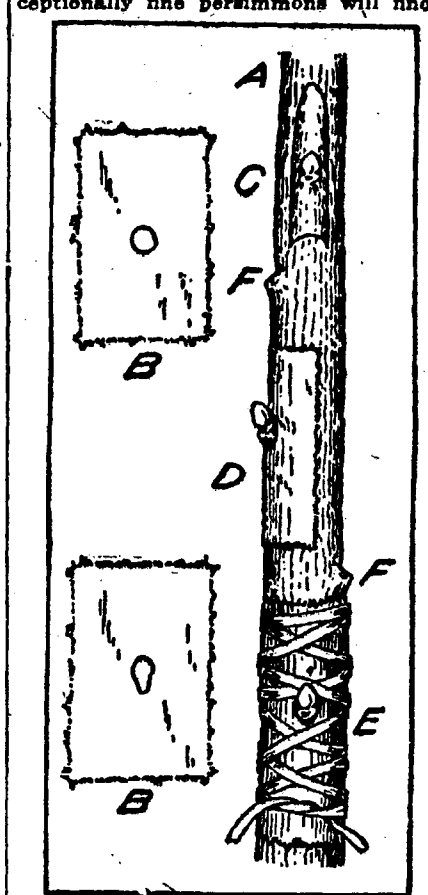

The seed may be planted either in the fall or spring, after being treated as described above. It is commonly planted in shallow drills and lightly covered with soil to a depth of one-half inch or a little more.

Cleft Grafting: (a) Stock Being Split by Special Grafting Tool; (b) Scion Ready for Insertion; (c) Scion in Place Ready for Waxing.

Roots the size of a lead pencil or larger can be used in propagating the persimmon. They should be cut into pieces 6 or 8 inches long, the ends sealed with grafting wax, hot bees wax, or pitch, in order to prevent the decay that develops rapidly in the soft, spongy wood, and the cuttings should then be buried over winter in sand or in a nursery row. They will grow readily the following spring, provided the moisture supply is plentiful until they become well established.

Those who have trees bearing exceptionally fine persimmons will find the different methods of grafting admirably adapted to top-working the worthless trees about the place with the better varieties, thus changing them to useful fruitfulness.

(A) Stock; (B) Waxed Cloth Protector; (C) Chip Bud Fitted into Notch in Stock; (D) Protector in Position Over the Bud; (E) Protector and Bud Wrapped and Tied; (F, G) Scars of Buds Removed from Stock. (Adapted from Drawing in American Fruit and Nut Journal.)

Top-worked, or grafted, portions of old trees will bear two or three years earlier than trees which come from buds or grafts on 1 or 2 year old stocks. These seedling stocks, budded or grafted with a selected variety, will bear one or two years earlier than those produced from cuttings.

The scions to be used in chip budding, cleft grafting, and whip grafting should be cut during late winter. All scions should be kept cool and moist until used. The budding and grafting should be done as soon as the trees which are to be grafted start to grow.

When selecting scions or bud sticks care must be exercised, just as when propagating by wood cuttings, to procure wood with strong, well-developed buds on two or three of the last season's growth. The best buds are generally near the base, where they are supported on more mature wood than those near the tip. In wood more than a year old, most of the buds near the tip have already produced branches, thus making this portion of the twig unsuitable for use in budding or grafting.

The method employed in budding persimmons largely determines the character of the wood that should be selected as a source of buds. For the common shield or "U" bud, the basal half of the new growth is preferable because the bark is thinner than that on older wood and the buds fit closer and better than where wood with older and thicker bark is used. Moreover, the buds near the base of the new wood are better than those toward the tip, because the latter are so irregular in outline that it is difficult to fit them closely to the stock.

When the chip-bud method is used it is essential that the bud stick have sufficient body to allow the removal of the bud with a clean, solid chip adhering thereto. A bud stick should never be larger than the stock on which the buds are to be worked. If it is too large in relation to the size of the stock which is to receive the bud, the chip will be so broad and flat that it can not be properly fitted into any notch which is possible to make in the stock.

Whip Graft: (a) Stock Prepared; (b) Scion Prepared; (c) Stock and Scion Fitted Together Ready for Tying.

For annular or patch budding, the most satisfactory buds are those taken from wood that is 2, 3, or even 4 years old.

Annular budding is also known as "ring" and "flute" budding. It consists merely in transferring a ring of the desired variety from a bud stick to the trunk or branch of another tree in place of a similar ring of bark previously removed.

Propagation by chip budding is performed in the early spring or late in the dormant period, hence is also known as "dormant" budding. With a sharp knife a downward cut is made below the bud on the bud stick to a depth of perhaps one-eighth of an inch. Raising the knife to a point above the bud, a long downward cut is made, which meets the lower end of the first cut, and the bud is removed from the stock, and the desired bud is put in its place. Cleft grafting is particularly adapted to large trees when for any reason it becomes necessary to change the variety. Branches too large to be worked by other methods can be cleft grafted. Cleft grafting has given satisfactory results with the persimmon, both on the branches and at the crown. Whip grafting is the style almost universally used in root grafting. It was the advantage of being well adapted to small plants.

The operation of grafting most fruits is generally successful if performed in the spring when the trees are still dormant, or even after growth has started slightly, provided the scions are entirely dormant. In the case of the persimmon, however, much more satisfactory results appear to be obtained when the grafting is delayed until the trees have definitely started into new growth. The scions must be kept dormant.

In all of the various methods of budding and grafting the persimmon it is of the utmost importance that the cut surfaces of both bark and wood be protected with as little delay as possible from chemical change due to exposure to the air. Protection is afforded by covering the wound with grafting wax, waxed cloth, or similar devices.

The transplanting of the young trees may be done at any time during the dormant period when the roots can be protected from freezing temperature and evaporation and when the soil is in a suitable condition for handling. The pruning of the persimmon varies with the variety. There is a tendency for the tree to prune itself, as many of the fruit-bearing twigs die and drop off with their fruit, thus making the natural open growth of the trees still more open and reducing to a minimum the necessity for pruning.

The persimmon is exceptionally free from the attacks of diseases and insect pests.

Protect Useful Birds

The Arkansas kingbird occupies during the breeding season the western portion of the United States from the Pacific Ocean eastward as far as Minnesota, Kansas, and Texas, though stragglers have been taken at points much farther east. In winter it retires southward entirely beyond the boundaries of the United States. It is a bird of the open country and avoids forests. A hilly country with frequent trees for nesting appears to be the most satisfactory location. It is said that it takes kindly to civilization and will live in the vicinity of gardens. For the investigation of the food of this bird, 109 stomachs were available. The food was found to consist of 90.61 per cent of animal matter and 9.39 per cent of vegetable. The harmful insects eaten far outweighed the useful beetles, and the bird should receive the fullest protection wherever found.

COMMON SENSE NECESSARY.

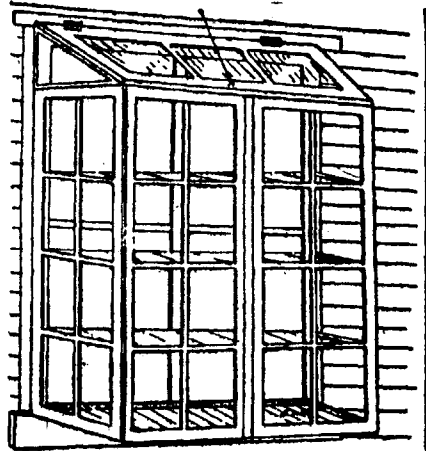

The sunniest day the farmers of our country have ever seen will be the day when they are awakened to the fact that it is not all of farming to dig in the earth. With our digging there must be mixed a lot of the good, sharp mind of thought and common sense.

In Norway a bucket of water is always placed beside each horse's allowance of hay. After each mouthful of the hay he takes a sip of water, and it is to this fact that it is attributed that a broken winded horse is very seldom found in Norway.—W. R. Gilbert.

HINTS FOR WINTER WINDOW GARDENERS

By EREN E. REXFORD.

Window Garden.

An almost universal complaint among those who grow house plants is that their plants begin to flag along about midwinter when they should be at their best and from that time on they fail to give any adequate returns for the care expended on them. Few of them bloom. Some of them grow, or try to, after a weak and spindly fashion, but none of them have that fresh sturdy look which delights the eye of the woman who loves flowers and growing plants. What's wrong?

In answer to the question I have to reply that in all probability no one cause is responsible for the failure. There are several reasons why house plants do not do well in winter, and perhaps the best way to get at the bottom of the difficulty is to tell what kind of care to give to avoid the dangers in the way, and from this the owners of unsatisfactory collections may be able to discover wherein they have made mistakes in caring for their plants.

One very important thing is to give the plants plenty of fresh air. The wonder to me is that some plants live through the winter at all for they are kept in rooms heated almost to the stifling point, and in which there is little or no moisture. A noted physician has said concerning moisture in the house, that a room in which plants will not live is not fit for human beings to live in.

Plants must have air. This may be obtained by lowering a window from the top on one side of the room and raising one from the bottom on the opposite side of the room, and let them remain open for about five minutes. This may be done while the housewife is busy about her other duties and no one need be in the room at the time the air is being accomplished, if the weather is too cold. Fresh air should be admitted into the room for a short time every day, no matter what kind of weather it is.

Last season I answered a letter from a woman who complained of declining health among her house plants by giving advice similar to that in the above paragraph and here is an extract from a letter she wrote me six weeks later.

"I have given your fresh-air treatment a careful trial and it has proven a complete success. I know now just what my plants needed. In less than a week after I began letting air into the room they began to improve and now they are the finest plants I ever had grow. They blossom and all my friends say 'What kind of fertilizer do you use?' When I tell them that fresh air is the fertilizer that has brought about the change they look at me as though they thought I was trying to have some fun at their expense. And let me say right here that we who use the room air feel a great deal better than we did. The languid, spiritless feeling that we complained of every night is gone and we attribute the change to better air."

As a general thing, if the plants were reported in the fall no fertilizer will be needed by them before midwinter.

Turn your plants at least once a week to give all sides of them a chance to grow. If you do this you can easily make them symmetrical in shape, but if it is not done they will become one-sided as their branches will grow toward the light.

Don't crowd your plants. It may oblige you to discard some of them if you attempt to follow this advice, but it will richly repay you to do it, for it is impossible to grow fine plants in a window where there is not room for free development. Do not have so many that there will not be room for each one to display its individuality. Meet of us make jungles of our window gardens in our eagerness to have a little of everything. This is one of the most serious mistakes it is possible for the amateur gardener to make. Bear in mind always that a few really fine plants will afford a vast deal of pleasure, while a great number of inferior ones—such as we may expect to grow in a crowded window—are mere disappointing things.

If you plants get frozen put them into a cool room as soon as their condition is discovered and shower them—drench them—with cold water. If this is done promptly the frost will be extracted so gradually from them that there will be no bursting of delicate tissues and often many of them may be saved. But if heat is made use of in any way in an effort to draw out the frost the result will be almost sure death. Allow the frosted plants to remain in cold storage for a day or two then bring them back to the window, but avoid a high temperature for some time. If any stalks show injury, cut them off at once.

Of late complaints come in from all quarters about trouble with the foliage of house plants. Yellow spots appear on it. These, after a while, become brown and by and by the leaf dies. Gradually the entire plant becomes affected and death ensues. The trouble is a fungus one. Spores of fungi floating in the atmosphere settle on the leaves and where they locate themselves the yellow spot is seen. There is but one remedy that I have any knowledge of and that is Bordeaux mixture, the same thing that our growers of small fruit are using to counteract the harm that fungus is doing in their garden. A paste preparation of this mixture can now be obtained of most dealers in plants and it should be gotten and used as soon as the disease appears in the window garden.

If you want a little variety in your window garden get a bulb or two of the Gladiolus. Plant them in pots or boxes six inches deep and three inches apart and place at once in the window.

Red spider and plant lice are the worst winter pests we have. The former may be dislodged by spraying with kerosene emulsion. Care should be taken to spray on the underside of the leaves.

The mistake of the window gardener in crowding her window now will result in disaster after. Plants that are crowded will not develop properly; they will be top-heavy, spindly or one-sided. They will hold up but few flowers. One plant properly grown is worth a hundred poorly grown ones.

Ferns obtained from the florist for indoor culture should be placed in a strong light, although they will do well without sunlight. They should be kept moist at all times but watered sparingly. Most fern difficulties arise either from keeping the plants soaked or, on the other hand, permitting them to get too dry. When the fern is in a jardiniere, it is especially difficult to avoid overwatering. In spring and summer, ferns require three times the amount of water that they do in the fall and winter.

If you can't get a competent blacksmith to shoe the horses, they are better off without any. The cause of most hoof troubles may be traced back to ill-fitted shoes.

A growing pig that is always full will hardly make the average it needs.

Field Peas as a Hay Crop

The field pea is commonly grown in Pennsylvania and New York for hay, and the larger part of the crop in the southern states is also used in this manner. When grown for hay the field pea is almost always sown in a mixture with oats or some other small grain. These mixtures with grain will stand up much better, causing less trouble in the harvest, and the presence of oats or barley in the crop also causes it to cure more quickly. The yield from a mixture of oats and peas is usually larger than that from timothy. The field pea works into a rotation very nicely, because the fact that when harvested for hay it is removed from the field early in the year, thus allowing time for a thorough preparation of the soil during the fall. The feeding value of pea hay is quite high, being apparently the same as that of alfalfa hay.

KEEP HOGS FREE FROM LICE.

I have found a very effective method of letting the hogs keep themselves free of lice. Set several short posts in the yards and pastures. Wrap the posts with old sacks, and then once a week saturate these sacks with crude oil or one of the coal tar oils. The louse bites the hog, he rubs the spot on the sack, and the oil or kerosene kills the louse. Simple, isn't it? The hogs soon learn to use the posts, and if the sacks are kept saturated, there will be little danger of lice sailing up the profits in hog raising.—J. Grant.

FEAR OF WHEAT CROP FAILURE UNFOUNDED

Says County Agent C. Henry in Speaking of Weather Conditions.

The rumors that have been spread the past few days that the present weather conditions are having deadly effects on the stand of the wheat in the fields of the county and that if the warm wave should continue to remain much longer that the crop would be a complete failure, have been denied by County Agent C. Henry, who declares that they are wholly unfounded.

People who are harboring this pessimistic thought are basing it on the belief that the wheat will begin to grow and when the cold weather arrives again the tender plants will freeze. This is only a supposition as the wheat blades have not shown any signs of life as yet.

County Agent Henry states, however, that should the nights turn cold and then warm up again during the days, that then the fears of many that the wheat crop would be ruined would be realized. "Freezing and thawing and freezing and thawing," says Mr. Henry, "is what is disastrous to the wheat plant and not this warm springlike weather."

You Can Now Make Dimples to Order

Elizabeth Jermaine.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25.—Miss Elizabeth Jermaine, a Los Angeles high school girl, has invented a dimple maker.

Elizabeth and some of her school friends worried because the other girls had enviable dimples. Dimples had a noticeable effect on impressionable youths, they noted.

"The dimple idea was on my mind," said Miss Jermaine. "I hunted up a ball from a lard bucket at home, put two corks on it and clamped it on my face where I wanted the dimples to grow. That was the start. A manufacturer friend of mine became interested and helped me complete the patent."

The dimple maker, now on the market, is made of a steel wire fitted with sanitary tips. It can be adjusted to the cheeks in any position desired. Girls who have tried it say they are "tickled to death about it."

Boys, too, if they desire, may use the dimple machine.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Profit-taking by holders continued today to weaken the wheat market. The disposition to make further realizing sales was largely due to reports from Liverpool that buyers were holding off in anticipation of reduced vessel rates, presumably from Argentina. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4c to 1 1/4c lower, with May at $1.35 to $1.36, and July at $1.25 to $1.26, were followed by a rally, but then a fresh decline. The close was steady at 1/4c to 1 1/4c, net advance, with May at $1.36 1/2 to $1.37 and July $1.27 1/2.

Unsettled weather then threatened to cut down receipts and to spoil the quality of some of the supply, made corn prices firm. After opening 1/4c to 1/2c off to a shade advance, the market scored moderate general gains.

Prices closed steady at 1/4c to 1 1/4c, net advance.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Jan. 27.—Further reactionary tendencies were manifested on the resumption of trading today, although declines, except in a few specialties, were limited to fractions. Rails were again the heaviest features, but U. S. Steel was under pressure. Initial offerings of Erie, Southern Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and Westinghouse were large. Steel was three-eighths lower than yesterday's close, but immediately rose a half point. Secondary prices showed slight recoveries. Selling was renewed on the first recovery, with increased offerings of railroad issues, Erie and Canadian Pacific being especially prominent. Later St. Paul, whose directors are expected to take action on the dividend today, also reflected liquidation, with recessions in Reading and other leaders. Union Pacific stood out for its relative strength and Mercantile Marine preferred and American Can were among the more active stocks. Feeble rallies occurred at noon. Bonds were steady.

Prices made substantial recoveries from lowest levels on the increase of the St. Paul dividend to the 5 per cent. basis. The closing was irregular.

THREE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY AILED

Mrs. A. Dixon Tells Tanlac's Aid for Husband, Son and Self.

Three members of a well known Fort Wayne family are receiving aid through the use of Tanlac, the Master Medicine that has gained countless friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. A. Dixon, who lives at 619 Wagner street, and her husband and their 14-year-old son, are the three people of the same family being benefited by Tanlac. Mrs. Dixon, whose husband is a well known Fort Wayne man, recently said:

"My system has been in a run down condition for a long time. Frequently of late I have suffered from attacks of severe nervousness. My husband had catarrh and he also suffered from stomach trouble.

"Mr. Dixon knew of a man who had been greatly benefited through the use of Tanlac so we decided to try it. I feel strong and well since taking the medicine and I am not nearly so nervous as I formerly was. I sleep much better and altogether I feel much better. I can see a great change for the better in my husband, too. His improvement is easily noticeable. Our 14-year-old son is starting to take the medicine now for catarrh.

"Tanalac is doing me a world of good and I am glad to recommend it to other women in a condition similar to that I was in."

Tanalac is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and the like and is a system builder and blood purifier.

Tanalac is now being introduced in Fort Wayne at the Wayne and Calhoun streets store of the Meyer Drug Co., where the Tanlac Man is explaining the new remedy. It also may be obtained at the other Meyer stores, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun, and Broadway and Taylor. Advertisement.

PETE DOENGES GETS TWO VIOLENT JOLTS

Thought He Was Being Condemned to Death at State Farm.

"If you send me down there again you are sentencing me to death—you are taking my life. I can never live through another term at that place," declared Pete Doenges with trembling voice while his cheeks paled with the thought of an ordeal so terrible.

"That's what I have decided to do with you, Pete; you're no good; you won't quit drinking and we'll have to keep you where you can't get anything to drink," said Judge H. Waveland Kerr in the city court Wednesday.

"My God, it is terrible! I will die—you'll be the death of me!"

"Well, I don't want to kill anybody and I am going to let you go. Clear out," said the court.

This shock was worse than the other and Pete came near falling off his chair. But he gathered himself with heroic effort and trotted from the court room, fearing the judge might change his mind again. Doenges got back from a four months' term at the state farm Monday evening and promptly celebrated the home-coming by getting drunk. He had not been in the city two hours before he was under arrest.

Other City Court Cases.

Remsey Baker, a youth who said he resides at Ferguson, a hamlet a few miles south of Fort Wayne, was arraigned on a drunk charge and drew $5 and costs, going to jail. Officer Hecke who arrested Baker, said the youth had thrown a perfectly good ham into the discard, Wednesday evening, and tried to beat it. Baker denied having a ham.

Louis Johnson, aged 16, was charged with disorderly conduct and was turned loose after admitting that he ascended to the roof of the Keystone block on Calhoun street, Wednesday afternoon, and was amusing himself by throwing pebbles picked from the gravel roof at pedestrians in the street below. He had pelleted several persons, injuring one man in the eye, when Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner's attention was called to Johnson's sport and he went up to the roof and arrested the lad.

George Parker, a negro charged with assault and battery on Nate Weinstein, a foreigner, told his story and was turned loose. He said Weinstein had persistently annoyed and insulted Mrs. Parker and their daughter at the Parker home on Hayden street and, getting tired of it, gave Weinstein a beating Wednesday, after the latter had attempted to follow Mrs. Parker into a closet. Weinstein reported to the police that he had been murdered by Parker and swore out a warrant.

Homer Young, brought here from Toledo by Detective Sergeant Walter Immel to face a charge of child neglect, was arraigned and continued until Saturday. His bond was fixed at $500.

Jim Cass, a repeater, was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness, and August Werstein, another drunk, drew $5 and costs.

Harry E. Hill, a jitney driver charged with assault and battery on Ed Hanley, into whom he ran his car at the transfer corner, was continued until February 10 under $200 bond. Hanley was worse injured than at first supposed and has had to undergo a serious surgical operation.

RESIDENCE IS BURGLARIZED.

The residence of Arthur Foellinger, 1117 Summit street, was burglarized Wednesday afternoon while all the family were absent and $30 in bills and the contents of the Foellinger baby's toy bank was rifled of its contents.

PREPARING FOR A GREAT WOLF DRIVE

Jasper County Farmers Call for Relief from Pests and Hunt is Coming.

Medaryville, Ind., Jan. 27.—Plans are being made here and in surrounding towns for one of the greatest wolf drives ever held in Indiana to take place Friday, February 4, in the wild swamps and timber regions in northern Jasper county near the Kankakee river. Word has been received here by local promoters, from hunters and sportsmen from all parts of Indiana and nearby states, expressing their intention of being present for the event, and taking part in this unusual form of sport that is disappearing so rapidly from the middle west. Further, moving picture men from Chicago have agreed to be present and photograph the roundup, while a trap shoot will follow in which all may take part in competing for a good purse.

The lines at the start will surround an area equal in extent to two townships. It is expected that at least two thousand men and boys will be on the lines at 9:30 a. m. ready to start promptly at 10:00 o'clock. Captains will patrol the lines to maintain their perfect formation, while the hunt will be in charge of Chas. W. Bussell, Ben Turner, J. E. Davis, Frank Hirschman, George Miller and other famous hunters.

It has been arranged that hot lunch with plenty to eat and drink will await the hunters at the roundup.

There can be no doubt of the presence of scores of wolves in this locality, for not only have they been seen and killed recently, but they have wantonly preyed upon the flocks and poultry of the scattered farmers of this region, until the farmers have called for relief.

Enthusiasm is at a high pitch all through this section in anticipation of a hunt of so novel a character, and one that will soon be an impossibility in one of the central states.

RED MEN HAVE BIG DISTRICT MEETING

Session Closes With Love Feast and General Good Time.

The largest district meeting in years was held in the Aldine building Wednesday by the Improved Order of Red Men when visitors were here from all the surrounding counties.

Reports from the various tribes were heard Wednesday afternoon and with a few exceptions all of them showed remarkable increases in membership. Several good talks were given by the great officers in attendance.

At 4:30 o'clock the great council degree was conferred on fifty-three past sachems, the degree being put on by Great Sachem Frank McConoughy and assistants.

At 7:30 o'clock the council fires were again kindled and the adoption, warriors and chief degrees were conferred on a large class of candidates.

After the degree work was over the members participated in a love feast at which Sachem William S. Groves presided as toastmaster. Great Sachem McConoughy responded to the toast, "Fraternalism," Great Senior Sagamore Clifford Crawford the motto of the order, "Fidelity, Friendship and Charity," and Great Chief of Records Arch Hobbs on the condition of the order. Sachem W. S. Groves gave a splendid talk on the condition of the local order. C. E. Howard, chairman of the meeting, spoke on "Disfranchisement," and C. E. Christensen "Troubles of a Collector of Wampum." F. H. Kleekamp was next called upon, but stated that he had troubles enough of his own, and the floor was given to Ray McAdams, who spoke from the viewpoint of a candidate.

BOYS RAID CHICAGO BANK

Youthful Robbers Hold Up Bank's Officials and Awe Depositors.

Patrons Forced to Face the Wall While Thieves Work Rapidly.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Four robbers, armed with revolvers, entered the Washington Park National bank in the East Sixty-third street today, threatened the lives of the cashier, clerks and twenty depositors and escaped with between $12,000 and $15,000.

None of the depositors, who were ordered to stand facing a wall, was hurt by the bandits, who gave no attention to the money in the vault.

Grabbing the money the four bandits backed to the door and escaped in an automobile. Policemen and detectives were quickly summoned and search for the bandits was begun.

J. Garland Stahl, manager of the Boston Americans, when that club won the championship in 1912, is vice president of the Washington Park National bank, with which he became connected upon leaving the Boston team.

Every detail of the robbery seemed carefully planned, according to Mr. Stahl, who was forced to remain at his desk facing a revolver while one of the robbers entered the teller's cage and took the money from a drawer.

As Stahl describes it:

"I was sitting at my desk," said Mr.

FORT WAYNE IS OUT OF BASEBALL

No Forfeit to Be Posted at Friday's Meeting Here.

With the Central league baseball meeting scheduled for the Anthony hotel Friday afternoon, and the owners of all clubs expecting representation in the league ordered to report, Fort Wayne seems as far from professional ball next year as it was two months ago. Louis Heilbroner has been appointed by President Kitzke, of the Fort Wayne club, to represent him at the meeting, and Mr. Heilbroner stated positively Thursday afternoon that as far as he is concerned Fort Wayne will not be one of the clubs in the league's make-up.

"The present company will under no circumstances remain in the league," he said Thursday. "We are expected to put up a $2,000 forfeit at tomorrow's meeting, and I say on authority of President Kitzke that not one cent will be put up. If any other company wants to take over the club and put up the money all very well, but we certainly do not. I may add that we have not received a single offer for the club and have not put a price on it, even though stories have been circulated to the effect that we turned down an offer."

POOLROOM KEEPER SENT TO JAIL FOR ALLOWING GIRLS AND BOYS IN PLACE

Upon conviction in the city court, Thursday morning of permitting minors to loiter in his pool room, 2217 Broadway, Charles Mungovan was fined $20 and costs and given thirty days in jail. It was shown that Mungovan had been allowing minors in his place and that Wednesday afternoon Dewey Sandmeier and two or three other lads under age, and two girls—one 16 and the other 17 years old—had possession of the pool room with the front door locked when Police Lieutenant Harry Grinnam and Police Matron Fannie M. Winch raided the place.

The party had two bottles of beer and the youngsters were drinking in the rear part of the room with a curtain drawn to obstruct a view from the street. Mungovan was not in his place, having come down town to attend a theater, leaving his resort in charge of Sandmeier and the other boys.

Mungovan said he had not allowed minors to loiter in his place, though boys occasionally stepped in. Sandmeier testified that he went there frequently and that he had played in the pool room, as had other boys who are minors. Mungovan stated that he has been running the pool room about three weeks. He denied permitting girls in his resort, though people in the neighborhood had complained to the police that young women were going there and furnished the information Wednesday afternoon upon which the police raid was planned. Sandmeier said there had been girls in the place Tuesday. The young women caught in the raid were taken to headquarters and promised to quit their quest for "high life" if not dealt with at this time. Both are employed in a factory and were out Wednesday afternoon seeking pleasure.

After the raid, the police learned from Sandmeier that he had purchased the beer the party was drinking from Peter Spillman, a bartender for Lohmeyer & Geller, corner Broadway and Taylor street, and an affidavit charging the sale of liquor to minors was placed against him. He pleaded guilty Wednesday morning and was fined $20 and costs, which was paid. Mungovan was sent for a lawyer to prepare an appeal for him when Judge H. W. Eversland Kerr firmly declined to entertain such a thing as suspending the sentence.

WILL GIVE VALUE OF ONE HOUR'S LABOR

Union Men Have Plan to Save Homes of Hatters at Danbury.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 27.—Organized labor throughout the United States today is expected to give the value of an hour's labor to the cause of the hatters of Danbury, Conn., whose homes are about to be sold at auction in foreclosure proceedings.

The money will go into a fund being raised by the American Federation of Labor for the relief of the 180 defendants in the famous suit of D. E. Loewe & Co. vs. Martin Lawler and others, which began in 1903, reached its final stage in the United States district court here last week when an order was issued relative to the sale of property taken under attachment in the boycott suit. There are 155 parcels of property, mostly the modest little homes of men who were named among the defendants. Counsel for the hatters obtained the privilege of having each piece of real estate sold separately on the premises instead of in bulk.

On January 8, in conformity with the vote of the American Federation of Labor convention held in San Francisco recently, President Samuel Gompers issued an appeal to organized labor in this form: "Will you give an hour of your labor in a righteous cause on hatters' day, January 27, 1916?"

The responses are already coming in. The Bridgeport unions in Connecticut have set aside the second hour of today's working day for the cause. The New Haven trolley men last night gave $250 to the fund.

WILSON EXPLAINS CHANGE IN VIEWS

Letter to Kitchin Tells Why Tariff Board is Favored.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, chairman of the house ways and means had before him today a letter from President Wilson setting forth consideration which had most weight in urging him to withdraw his opposition to the creation of a tariff commission by congress and urge such a body.

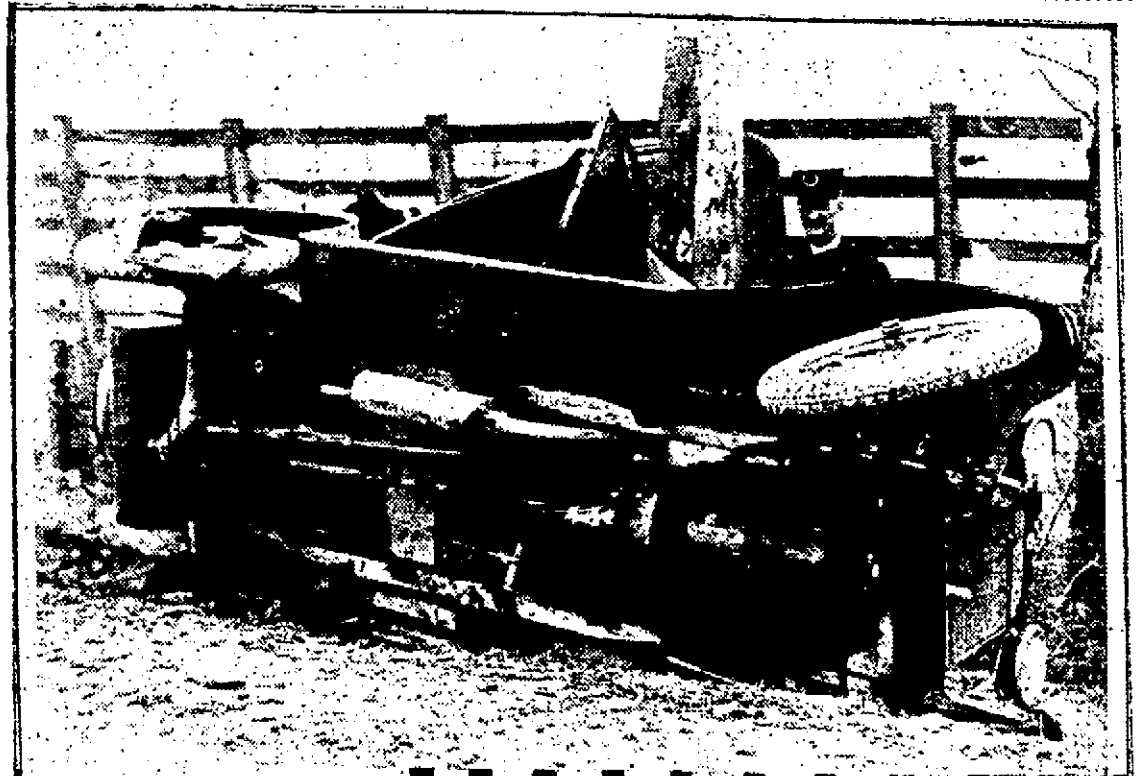

The president frankly admitted that he had changed his mind because "all the circumstances of the world had changed," but declared that he had no thought whatever of a change in attitude toward the so-called protective question. The proposed commission the president said would have nothing to do with theories of policy but would be charged only with the duty of seeking facts to guide congress in legislation.

The letter was supplemental to one the president sent Mr. Kitchin Monday in which he gave his ideas of what a tariff commission should be and urged that the committee consider the matter immediately. He favored a non-partisan expert body.

ONE MAN HAS NOSE SEVERED BY GLASS

Leo Schnee and Frank Klotz Are Pinioned Until Rescued by Police.

LIST OF THE INJURED.

Albert F. Brase, grocer at 2202 Calhoun street, nose almost cut off and badly bruised about face and body. Possibly internal injuries.

Frank Klotz, who conducts fish market at 1219 Calhoun street, deep wound in forehead, possibly fracturing the skull.

Leo Schnee, saloonkeeper at 1830 Calhoun street, right side of face badly bruised and injuries about both legs.

Edward Kronmiller, plumber at 1807 Harrison street, slightly bruised about the eyes.

Henry W. Reinewalt, 1908 Harrison street, mail clerk, slightly bruised.

Three Fort Wayne business men were seriously injured and two others slightly bruised when the large Westcott sedan passenger touring car belonging to Leo Schnee, saloonkeeper at 1830 Calhoun street, skidded in going around a sharp curve on the Leesburg road, a quarter of a mile north of the Mayflower mills, shortly after 7 o'clock Thursday morning, and turned over, pinioning the five occupants beneath. They will all recover, in the opinion of the attending physicians.

Albert F. Brase, grocer at 2202 Calhoun street, and residing at 121 East Williams street, was the most seriously injured, his nose being almost completely severed by broken glass as he plunged headlong through the windshield. He was also badly cut and bruised about the face and body. Frank Klotz, who conducts a fish market at 1219 Calhoun street, is believed to have a fractured skull, which will be determined by an X-ray examination. Leo Schnee, saloonkeeper at 1830 Calhoun street, received a bad gash on the right side of the face and serious injuries about the legs. H. W. Reinewalt, railway mail clerk for a number of years, living at 1908 Harrison street, and Edward Kronmiller, plumber at 1807 Harrison street, were not seriously hurt. All were removed to the St. Joseph hospital, where their injuries were dressed by Drs. J. Frank and James M. Dinnen.

Children Only Witnesses.

The accident occurred directly in front of the residence of Fred H. Glusenkamp, the scene of three or four automobile accidents within the past year, and within a short distance of the plant of the Day-Like Gas company, which was blown to atoms some weeks ago, killing two men. Mrs. Glusenkamp's children were playing in the front yard and saw the car skid to the north side of the road, strike a telephone pole and turn over. Mrs. Glusenkamp was attracted by their screams and Louis

URGING GREY TO ACTUAL BLOCKADE

English Press Would Knock Bottom Out of U. S. Arguments.

London, Jan. 27.—The Manchester Guardian, commenting editorially on the speech of Sir Edward Grey, the foreign minister, delivered yesterday in the house of commons on the blockade policy of Great Britain says that he demolished both the statistical attack against the government's policy and charges of interference with the work of the navy. It argues, however, that the orders in council should be succeeded by the declaration of an actual blockade in order to meet the legal obligations raised by neutral states. The editorial concludes:

"Blockade, the doctrine of continuous voyage and an enlarged district of contraband are all recognized means of carrying on naval warfare and their employment would not only knock the bottom out of the legal arguments which the United States is now presenting against our present policy, but would give us even greater power than we now have of injuring the enemy. This was the criticism we made of the policy of the orders in council when Mr. Asquith first explained it and we have never seen a completely satisfactory answer to the criticism.

"It is maintained that by meeting the American view, which we could do without in any way compromising our war on Germany's trade at sea, we should get rid of one set of difficulties only to fall into another. That would be an intelligible line of argument and, if it is influencing the government there is no reason why it should not state quite frankly what its grounds for hesitation are. To do so would not only strengthen our position but would also, we think, greatly improve our relations with neutral powers."

WILSON SAYS NO ONCE MORE

Refuses to Support Constitutional Amendment for Equal Suffrage.

President in New York to Make First Speech on Preparedness.

New York, Jan. 27.—President Wilson refused today to support the movement for an amendment to the federal constitution providing for woman suffrage. He spoke briefly to 200 members of the Congressional Union for Woman Suffrage and told them that he felt the suffrage question should be dealt with by each individual state.

The president received the suffragettes after they had waited for him for more than one hour at the Waldorf-Astoria, which he made his headquarters on his arrival here this morning from Washington prepared to make three addresses during the day.

KIDNAPED AMERICAN SOLDIERS RESCUED

Brownsville, Texas, Jan. 27.—Privates Wm. C. Wheeler and Viggo Pederson, of battery D, Fourth field artillery, who were kidnaped late yesterday by Mexicans and taken south from the border, were rescued by Carranza soldiers and brought to Matamoros today. They were turned over to American authorities dressed in Mexican clothes. No word had been heard from the men since their crossing the river. They wore no clothes. A searching party was sent out from Matamoros by Col. J. R. Quintanilla, commander of the border, in the absence of Gen. Alfredo Ricart, and at some early morning hour the Americans were found.

MISSING GIRL IN CINCINNATI

Rocella Asbury, Aged 13, in Same Hotel With Actor Friend.

EVIDENTLY FLED TO JOIN DANCER

Sheriff Gladieux Locates Girl Whose Disappearance Causes Alarm.

Rocella Asbury, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan E. Asbury, 1106 Columbia avenue, whose disappearance from the city Wednesday plunged her parents into most painful alarm and caused a sensation here, was located Thursday about 11 o'clock by Sheriff A. C. Gladieux, who was informed by the chief of detectives in the Cincinnati police department that the girl had been discovered at the Monroe baths, a hotel in that city.

In the same hotel as a guest was found Will Fields, a song and dance man who conducted a vaudeville engagement at the Temple theater in Fort Wayne, January 22, and at once left here for Cincinnati. The Cincinnati official told Sheriff Gladieux over the long distance telephone that the girl and the actor were occupying separate rooms and that he could not state that the child had come there at the instance of the man.

Will Be Brought Home.

Mr. Asbury left for Cincinnati Thursday afternoon to be with his daughter.

CHARLES BOEHRER LEAVES HOSPITAL

Man Who Fell from Tower of Kerr-Murray Plant Home for a Visit.

Charles Boehrer, the young man who fell from the water tower of the Kerr-Murray plant at noon on Wednesday, September 15, 1915, and who has been a patient at St. Joseph's hospital ever since, left the hospital Thursday afternoon to visit with his parents, at 2311 Weiser Park avenue. He will return to the institution, however, in a few days to resume treatments.

This was one of the most remarkable cases ever treated in Fort Wayne. When the young man was taken to the hospital after the accident there was little hope for his recovery but he made a strong fight for life and seemingly has won the battle. His injuries consisted of broken and splintered bones in his lower limbs, a compound fracture of the bone in his arm, a broken hip, and other internal injuries which made it seem improbable that he would survive them.

The misfortune in which Boehrer was so severely injured occurred when he was at work painting the water tower at the Kerr-Murray plant. No one was near when he fell the distance of 75 feet but was found nearly a half hour later with but minor visible signs of life. For several days he remained in an unconscious condition. He was on the operating table three or four times during his long stay at the hospital.

FRENCH LOSS MOUNTS HIGH

800,000 Killed, 1,400,000 Wounded, 300,000 Taken Prisoner.

Today's War News Given in Summary

British possession of territory protecting the Suez canal route at its southern end is imperilled by attacks made by large bodies of Arabs and Turks on the British forces in southwestern Arabia, according to advices from German sources. The British have been driven from all the territory they held in that section of the country and have suffered extremely heavy losses in the fighting, the reports declare, the figures being given at 15,000 killed and 20,000 wounded.

The implication from the Berlin dispatch carrying these reports is that the British army of 20,000 men is now virtually cooped up in Aden, near the entrance to the Red sea, which must be held if the southerly approach to the Suez canal is to be protected.

The Austrians, having secured possession of virtually all of Montenegro, whose remaining defenders, according to Vienna, are fast laying down their arms, are pushing southward in Albania, but are moving deliberately, although without encountering much resistance.

At last accounts the Bulgarian forces co-operating with the Austrians had encountered the Albanian troops under Essad Pasha and, according to unofficial advices, had met with a defeat at the latter's hands.

According to a statement made by M. Louquet, a French socialist deputy at the British trade union conference in Bristol today, the French losses in the war have been 800,000 killed, 1,400,000 wounded and 300,000 captured.

Vatican circles, according to a Rome dispatch, have received reports that Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, who was taken ill recently, is rapidly growing worse.

Bristol, Eng., Jan. 27.—(12:50 p. m.)—M. Louquet, a French socialist deputy who addressed the labor conference today, on being questioned regarding the French losses said that 800,000 soldiers had been killed, and that 1,400,000 had been wounded and that 300,000 had been taken prisoner.

A resolution protesting in the name of the National labor party against the adoption of conscription in any form was passed by the labor congress today.

HEAPED IN FRONT OF MR. MARSHALL'S DESK

Thousand Bundles of Petitions Urge Embargo on War Munitions.

Washington, Jan. 27.—When the senate convened today a thousand bundles of petitions urging an American embargo on war munitions to European belligerents and signed by a million men and women from every state, were piled in front of the vice president's desk.

The petitions, resulting from an embargo campaign of the organization of American women for strict neutrality, were brought early in the day from Baltimore, headquarters of the organization in automobiles, and moving vans. A committee of women representing the movement superintended their delivery to the senate chamber.

The petitions expressed "earnest protest for humanitarian reasons against the exportation from this country of the things which kill" for the use of the nations engaged in the present conflict.

For more than an hour today the senate debated, indirectly, the proposal to put an embargo on shipments of war munitions, and then without a vote referred it to the foreign relations committee as the administration leaders wished, the thousand bundles of petitions bearing a million names asking that such an embargo be established.

FIVE HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Bohne, brother of one of the victims of the Day-Lite gas company's explosion, who lives with the Glusenkamps, came rushing out. He was the first to reach the injured men, who were groaning and pleading for help. Brase, Krommiller and Reinwald were able to crawl out with the assistance of Bohne, but Schnee and Klotz were beneath the debris and were held prisoners. The injured men who had crawled out away from the wreck were stunned and unable to give Bohne any help in lifting the car.

Police Are Called.
In the meantime Mrs. Glusenkamp had called the police department, the police making a run in the board of works car and in the P. D., the patrol wagon being out of commission. Not until the arrival of the police was the heavy car lifted from Schnee and Klotz. Both had been rendered unconscious.

Early Morning Joy Ride.
The men were out for an early morning joy ride, it is said, and were on their way to Arcola, expecting to return to Fort Wayne within an hour or two. Klotz explains the circumstances leading up to the accident in the following language:

"Early Thursday morning the four men drove up to my place and asked me to take a ride. I told them I would if they would take me up around Arcola so that I could buy some chickens and eggs. Schnee told me to jump in and I did, with the result that I am now in a hospital."

Auto a Total Wreck.
Schnee was not driving fast. All the occupants of the car are positive on this point. The children playing in the yard and both Mrs. Glusenkamp and Bohne agree that the car was not running more than ten or fifteen miles an hour. The road was slippery as a result of Wednesday night's rain and as the machine went to go around the curve it skidded causing it to go over on its left side. The automobile is almost a total wreck and, according to Schnee, cost $1,500.

Two ambulances hurried to the scene of the accident belonging to Klotz and Melching and Schone & Ankenbruck. A couple of the injured were taken to the hospital in the police car.

Didn't Want Wife to Know.
Reinwald was willing to give full details of the accident, but was restrained by Krommiller, who did not want his wife to learn what had happened. Both were able to leave the hospital soon after their injuries, which consisted of nothing more serious than a few bruises, had been dressed.

Wrecked Ford Found.
A badly wrecked Ford automobile bearing Indiana license No. 390, was found early Thursday morning in front of L. H. McAfee's establishment on Wells street, near the Wells street bridge. The front axle was broken and it was otherwise badly damaged. The police did not learn the name of the owner of the car. It was ordered taken to the Ford service station.

BANDITS GET

Stahl, shortly before 9 o'clock when four men entered. Their faces were masked in black and each carried two revolvers. There were about ten persons in line at the cashier's wicket. Ten clerks, the bank officers and two strong-armed men were in the room. Three of the men threatened us with their weapons while the fourth entered the cage and took the money. As soon as they got the cash they backed to the door and ran to their automobile. The engines had not been started and they went down the street at about forty miles an hour. They got more than $12,000.

Municipal Judge Sheridan E. Fry was among the depositors who were forced to witness the robbery.

The bandits paid special attention to Mr. Stahl. Two revolvers were poked within an inch of his face and he was ordered to hold up his hands.

"I obeyed without any hesitation," said Mr. Stahl, "and the fellow kept his guns pointed at me and the cashier while his companion got the money."

Others Get Same Command.

The same command was given to all the others in the bank and not a hand was dropped until the last robber backed out of the door. Then there was a rush for the telephones to notify the police.

A. W. McAnuley, assistant cashier, ran quickly to the street and jumped into an automobile standing at the curb. He attempted to follow the robbers but they outdistanced him and turning several corners disappeared. Officials of the bank said that none of the robbers appeared to be more than twenty years old.

The bank is situated in one of the busiest sections of Chicago outside of the downtown district.

Declines Cross-Examination.
Efforts made by Mrs. Mary Beard, wife of a Columbia university professor, to cross-examine the president met with failure. He refused courteously to reply to her queries. The president apologized to the women for not seeing them earlier, but told them he had been at work since arriving in New York. He added that it "may be that my mind works slowly, but I have always thought that there were things which should be built slowly and therefore made more lasting. I may be a little old in fashion in my view that the suffrage question should be handled by the state."

The president frankly admitted to the suffragettes that he had promised several months ago to discuss with leaders of congress the suffrage question, but that other matters of legislation had come up which he thought should take precedence over everything else.

Must Be Deliberate.
"There are things that cannot wait," said the president. Action in great constitutional matters must be deliberate."

Mr. Wilson promised again that he would discuss the subject with members of congress as soon as possible. He declared, however, that he was still convinced that the suffrage issue should be worked out by the states. He added that he saw no reason for the women to be discouraged by the progress made.

Deep silence greeted his reiteration of his opposition to the federal amendment but other portions of his address were marked by applause.

Mrs. Tiffany Dyer, Mrs. Henry Bruere and Mrs. Beard spoke before the president. They asked that while he was working out his preparedness program he should remember that no scheme of defense would be adequate which did not include the mobilization of women.

While speaking in the middle west for national defense they asked that he also advocate woman suffrage. The president reminded the women that he had voted for suffrage in New Jersey and promised that if the question came to a vote there again he would again vote for it. As the president completed his address several women shook hands with him and he returned to his apartments.

READY FOR FIRST SPEECH.

New York, Jan. 27.—President Wilson arrived here at 6 o'clock this morning.

Altogether the president looked forward to a busy day. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, his secretary, Joseph Tumulty, and Dr. Cary T. Grayson.

The party remained on board the train in the Pennsylvania station until 8 a. m., when a committee from the railroad business association arrived to escort him to the Waldorf Astoria hotel. A delegation of women suffragists had promised to await his arrival at the hotel to ask him for his support for the Susan B. Anthony amendment in congress. They had been informed by associates in Washington that the president was willing to meet them, but had appointed no definite hour for the meeting.

Mr. Wilson planned to remain at the hotel until noon and then go to Aeolian hall to receive a large number of clergymen who desired to present an address expressing their appreciation for his efforts for peace.

The main purpose of the president's visit is to deliver before the Railway Business association tonight the speech which is to open his campaign for preparedness, the first of a series of addresses on that subject which he will make while on a trip through the middle west. Although only 1272 seats are available for the dinner at which he is to speak, more than five thousand applications have been received by the committee in charge.

After addressing the railway men the president has arranged to speak at a banquet of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. Mr. Wilson expects to leave New York for Washington at midnight tonight and to leave the capital for his western tour.

Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. George F. Peaser, of Toronto, Canada, are the proud parents of a baby daughter. Mr. Peaser resided in Fort Wayne up to one year ago. He is a half-brother of W. D. Stine, of the Indiana Lighting company.

by a card vote of 1,196,000 against 219,000.

The resolution follows: "Resolved, that this national labor party protests emphatically against the adoption of conscription in any form, as it is against the spirit of British democracy and full of danger to the liberties of the people."

When the delegates assembled today for the second day's session they found this resolution on their tables and also one on the military service bill, which were designed to take the place of the numerous proposals which have been made on these subjects. The other resolution placed before the conference was: "This conference declares its opposition to the military service bill and in the event of its becoming law decides to agitate for its repeal."

HEAVY FIGHTING IN WEST.

Berlin is Celebrating 57th Birthday of Emperor William.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—Reports from France and Flanders say that a favorable turn in the weather has been followed by active fighting on the entire western front. Along nearly the whole line the roar of artillery is heard but the heaviest fighting has been in the vicinity of Neuport to the north of Ypres and in the Argonne.

The German attack on the French positions near Neuville was resumed yesterday and according to the war office statement of today, between 600 and 600 yards of the French lines were captured.

Flags were out everywhere in Berlin today in celebration of the 57th birthday of Emperor William. The only formal observance consisted of religious services. The emperor granted amnesties in several cases. The principal celebration was held at the general headquarters yesterday. Congratulations were extended to the emperor by representatives of Austria, Bulgaria and Turkey. Emperor William thanked them for their felicitations and expressed conviction that final victory in the war would rest with the central powers. All the newspapers of Berlin published eulogistic articles concerning the emperor, recalling the fact that he was able to maintain peace for 25 years.

and Sheriff Gladieux will leave at 1 o'clock Friday morning for the same city to conduct an inquiry into the relations between the girl and Fields and to accompany her home with her father.

Yields, it was stated, was now playing an engagement in the Empress theater in Cincinnati. Should it prove that he enticed the girl to Cincinnati for immoral purposes he will be liable under the Mann white slave act. It is suggested that Fields might have come to Fort Wayne Wednesday morning and met the girl to accompany her away, but Sheriff Gladieux does not entertain such a theory. The girl met Fields at the theater here.

Started for School.
Rocella left home Wednesday morning ostensibly to attend the Clay school, where she is a pupil. She did not go to school, but is known to have been about the city with some companions about her own age during the forenoon, visiting some confectionery store. Mrs. Asbury says she thinks Rocella had money to the amount of about $7 when she left home.

At the Temple theater, about which the child had been loitering much recently, it is learned that she had been there about 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and had attempted to borrow $2 or $3 from some of the younger men employed about the play house, but had been refused by them and later was told by an employee in the box office to leave when she was loitering about the lobby. She is believed to have left Fort Wayne over the Grand Rapids railroad Wednesday afternoon.

Attaches of the theater state that the girl had been much about the theater lately and had attempted so frequently to visit the stage despite orders to the contrary, that she was peremptorily ordered out and told to keep away. It was while resorting about the theater that she met Fields. The men about the theater had come to regard the girl as not mentally sound, owing to her conduct and stories she told.

Absence is Reported.
When Rocella did not return home to luncheon at noon Wednesday and inquiry during the afternoon disclosed that she had not been in school that day, Mr. Asbury reported her disappearance to Sheriff Gladieux. The sheriff and his men could gain no trace of the girl and later Mr. Asbury reported his daughter's disappearance to the police department. A search about the city throughout the night developed no clue and the parents of the missing child were distracted.

Late Wednesday night Sheriff Gladieux learned from companions of the girl that she had been hanging much about the Temple theater and inquiries brought the information that she had made the acquaintance of Fields and of another vaudeville actor named

Frank Wilbur, a juggler, who went from here to Hartford (City) and thence to Toledo. The sheriff started inquiries for the girl through the police of that city and of Cincinnati, where it was learned Fields had gone. The result was the finding of Rocella in Cincinnati at the hotel where Fields was a guest. How she could so quickly have found the man without previous knowledge of where he was stopping raises an interesting question for the vaudeville dancer to explain.

Girl a Good Student.

The principal and teachers at the Clay school say that Rocella has been punctual in attendance this year and was making good progress in her studies. She is said by them to have been normal in all ways, though highly nervous. The girl had a severe attack of typhoid fever a few years ago and she is slightly crippled in one hip as a result. She is rather pretty and though not large, looks older than her thirteen years.

THE DEATHS.
HOFFER.

Frederick Hoffer, aged sixty-six years, died very suddenly Wednesday afternoon at the Hope hospital, where he had been removed several hours before after suffering a stroke of apoplexy. The deceased was employed by the city forestry department and when he returned to his duties after lunch he seemed to be in the best of health.

Mr. Hoffer was born in Decatur, but came to Fort Wayne with his parents when he was yet a very small boy. He learned the moulder's trade at the Kerr Murray plant and continued with the company until it dissolved. Since that time he had been in the employ of the forestry department.

Surviving he leaves four sisters: Mrs. John Robb and Mrs. Louis Wasserback, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Mary Schimp, of New Haven, and another sister residing in California. Henry Hoffer, of Cincinnati, is a brother. The deceased was a member of the Fort Wayne lodge of Elks.

ALLEGED FORGER WAS
JEFFERSONVILLE MAN

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 27.—Edwin I. Thacker, an alleged forger, located by wireless on a steamer which sailed from New York, January 20, for Buenos Aires, left his home in Jeffersonville, Ind., on the Ohio river opposite Louisville, twenty years ago. He was a bookkeeper in the employ of a Louisville firm. His father, William Thacker, was a ship carpenter, later employed by the quartermaster's department, U. S. A., at the army depot in Jeffersonville. Thacker, sr., died a number of years ago. His widow, the stepmother of Edwin Thacker, still resides in Jeffersonville.

Examination of police records fails to disclose that young Thacker had a criminal record here.

SHORT OF OFFICERS AND MEN, SAYS WOOD

Washington, Jan. 27.—The United States army is so short of officers and men, Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, commander of the department of the east, today told the house military committee, that were it ordered to invade Mexico at the present time, infantry, cavalry and artillery would take the field at less than half their full strength. "The standing army, he continued, should consist of 220,000 men.

"Before a reserve is enrolled," Gen. Wood said, "the army should be brought up to its full strength." Powerful invading forces, he continued, would find it easy to land on either the Atlantic or Pacific coast.

TELLS OF DOCTOR'S
DUAL PERSONALITY

Providence, R. I., Jan. 27.—The recall of her marital experience was continued today by Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr as a witness in her own defense against the charge that she hired two negroes to murder her husband, Dr. C. Franklin Mohr. Yesterday she told of the physician's attention to other women and the abuse she received when she accused him of faithlessness.

Today she explained her relations with the negroes, her alleged accomplices, which she said were innocent. She ascribed to her husband a dual personality—at his best a kind and generous husband; otherwise a drug-crazed wife center. Through it all she loved him she said, and remained firm in her faith that he would some time restore her to her proper place in his affections. She denied that she wished him any harm, had ever threatened him, or failed to love him.

MINERS "ADVISE" HOWAT.

Suggest That Accused Man Await His Vindication Before Action.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The United Mine Workers of America in convention today "advised" Alex Howat, of Pittsburgh, Kan., who has been re-elected president of the Kansas miners, and who is accused of taking money from coal operators in the negotiation of a wage scale in the southwestern coal fields, that he refrain from assuming his official duties and from participating in scale conferences in his jurisdiction until he is vindicated in the suits now pending in Kansas courts. The entire morning session was taken up with its consideration.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

DESCENDENT OF ROGER WILLIAMS

Dr. O. B. Williams, of Andrews, Dies at Age of 65.

Andrews, Ind., Jan. 27.—Dr. Orlando B. Williams, a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, founder of the colony of Rhode Island, almost three centuries ago, is dead at his home here, following an illness of eight years. Dr. Williams was born June 18, 1848, in Warren, Ind., to Dr. William H. and Susan Fox Williams. At the age of 15 years he enlisted in one of the companies that made up the regiment known as "Hovey's Babies" and served two years in the civil war. When he returned home he had saved about $400 and with this money to back him he determined to adopt the profession of his father. By exercising the strictest economy he managed to attend the Indianapolis medical school and a series of medical lectures during the winter of 1869 and 1870. When he had completed his collegiate course Dr. Williams located in Lancaster, where he practiced for three years and then went to Andrews. During the twenty-seven years of his practice in Andrews the doctor built up an extensive circle of friends. Miss Louise Shaffer became his bride February 12, 1871. There were no children born to the marriage.

YOUNG TEACHER IN TROUBLE

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 27.—Faced by the accusation of a fourteen year old pupil, Leslie Brown, teacher of the Loom Creek school in Lancaster township, has handed County Superintendent of Schools Clifford Funderburg his resignation. A short time before that he had been served with a warrant by Deputy Sheriff Edward Haley, charging him with assault and battery against Cecil Louthan, an orphan girl and a pupil in his school. Mr. Brown answered the summons by coming directly to Huntington and immediately went into conference with Superintendent Funderburg and Prosecutor A. H. Sapp. The resignation is understood to be the result of this meeting, which was held behind closed doors.

TOWN OF AVILLA WINS SUIT.

Kendallville, Ind., Jan. 27.—One of the important cases of the present term of the Noble circuit court was tried at Albion in a jury trial before Judge L. J. Wrigley, when the case of Joe Vanderbosch vs. Town of Avilla: a suit for an account of $800, was disposed of by a verdict for the defendant. According to the evidence introduced Vanderbosch was suing the town of Avilla for $800 on salary which he claimed was due him for his services as marshal in 1913. During the examination of witnesses it was shown that Vanderbosch was assigned the duty of looking after the waterworks plant at Avilla, according to the provisions of an ordinance. After assuming the double duty he later put in a bill for $800, which the town board refused to pay.

TO NURSE IN FRENCH HOSPITAL

Hartford City, Ind., Jan. 27.—Miss Crystal Parks, trained nurse, of Meroy hospital, Chicago, a daughter of Mrs. Nettie Parks, of this city, is to leave next Tuesday with a party of thirty-eight other nurses for French hospitals, where they will be engaged in Red Cross work. The agreement under which the Hartford City young woman is going to Europe is that, in case she does not like her work and the location, she can at once return to America if she pays her own expenses. In case she remains in the employ of the French government for a period of six months she will be given her expenses.

MANY SEEK DEKALB SHRIEVALTY.

Auburn, Ind., Jan. 27.—Henry West, of Auburn, has announced his intention of being a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff at the primaries, March 7, 1916. There are four candidates now that want the republican nomination—Roland Beards, of Spencer township; Felix Van Ande, of Garrett; and Henry West and Christine Johnston, of Auburn. H. B. Squires, of Spencer township, has withdrawn. Jack O'Connor, of Keyser township, has announced himself as a candidate for sheriff on the democratic ticket. The candidates for the place of sheriff on the democratic ticket now in the field are: Christ Fell of Union township; Frank Baltz, of Concord; M. W. Sweeney, William Duerk and Jack O'Connor, all of Keyser.

STROH MAN FATALLY HURT.

Goshen, Ind., Jan. 27.—John Harold Appleman, aged 23, son of Ira R. Appleman, of two miles south of Stroh, died in the Goshen hospital Wednesday from a fractured skull which he received presumably when he endeavored to get off a fast freight train. His body was found opposite the station here in the New York Central yards at 9:15 o'clock Tuesday evening. His brains were oozing from his fractured skull and he was hurried to the hospital with no hopes of recovery. His father has arrived from Stroh. The body will be taken to Lagrange Friday for burial.

HEAVY WASTE OF CRUDE OIL.

Montpelier, Ind., Jan. 27.—The Indiana Pine Line company is out about one hundred barrels of crude oil, as a result of a break in the pipe line leading from the local pumping station to Preble. The break occurred on the Mine Wort farm, just north of town. About 250 barrels of crude leaked out but the suction pumps were put into play as the leak was discovered and 150 barrels were pumped back into the lines. The leak has been repaired and the oil is now going through the lines as usual.

BIG FARM SALE IN WELLS.

Bluffton, Ind., Jan. 27.—The John H. Higgs sale, held Tuesday, was attended by a great crowd, the largest gathering reported for a sale this season in Wells county, and the total of receipts of the sale also were large, about $6,000, in round figures. It was practically a stock sale exclusively. Seventy head of sheep sold at an average of $8.70 per head; the top price of cows was $90, and the top price on hogs was $35. The ladies serving a lunch at the sale had sold out their supply of eatables at 12 o'clock and as much of the crowd still was hungry, the ladies sent to Bluffton for another load of eatables.

RAT'S GNAWING CAUSES ALARM.

Warsaw, Ind., Jan. 27.—A rat gnawing at the front door of the Leibrock & Gerard hardware store on West Market street caused considerable excitement for a time last evening. People passing the store heard the noise and thinking that burglars were working inside summoned the police. While a number of men stood guard at the front door, others broke in the back door hoping to catch the intruders red-handed, but a thorough investigation of the place failed to disclose anyone in hiding. Wednesday morning a thorough investigation was made and the work of the rodent was discovered at the bottom of the door.

KEPT CHILDREN FROM SCHOOL.

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 27.—Price Whitacre, a farmer of Huntington township, pleaded guilty yesterday in Squire B. M. Cobb's court to a charge of keeping his children from attending school, and was fined $10.35, fine and costs. The charges were preferred by County Trust Officer L. K. Fisher. The officer said that Mr. Whitacre's two children, Nellie and Ross, would average from eight to fifteen days each month in school. They are pupils in the Antioch school, taught by Thomas Ripley.

SEASON'S FIRST SNAKE STORY.

Huntington, Ind., Jan. 27.—Along with the May-day breezes and just before the spring sports bestir themselves always comes the annual snake story. This snake, however, made a mistake and believed that spring was here, so it ventured out near Markle, yesterday morning. At the same time Clarence Lantis, 11 years old, son of Oscar Lantis, was on his way to school and he spied the little snake. The meeting ended the snake's hopes for an early spring but the little boy proceeded in triumph with his trophy to school.

PUTS A CRIMP IN TRAMPS.

Delphos, Ohio, Jan. 27.—No more will the "weary willies" who seek shelter in the city tramp room have an opportunity to beg their breakfasts, due to an order just issued by Mayor Leasure. Hereafter the tramp room will not be opened until 9 o'clock, too late for the knights of the road to hit the back door for something to eat. Over 1,200 tramps were given shelter during 1915.

VAN WERT MEN MOVE TO SOUTH.

Van Wert, Ohio, Jan. 27.—C. L. Ireland, C. B. Ireland, C. E. Ireland and H. G. Ireland, will leave today for Birmingham, Ala., where they have acquired large stone interests. The company is capitalized at $20,000 and includes several large quarries in the state of Alabama. C. L. Ireland has disposed of all his interest in the France Co. Mr. C. E. Ireland and H. G. Ireland will remove their families to Birmingham during the coming month.

LOSES PART OF RIGHT HAND.

Montpelier, Ind., Jan. 27.—Ernest Fuller was badly injured at the steel mill Wednesday and as a result the physicians had to amputate the thumb on his right hand, and may later have to make further amputation. Mr. Fuller was working in the foundry, and stated that he walked across a short distance to get a light bulb and accidentally got into a large fan that is used in the plant.

Resinol Soap

Any soap will clean your skin—a bar of laundry soap will do it—you do not care what becomes of your complexion. But you know that laundry soap contains harsh, drying alkali that would ruin your skin and hair, so you never think of using it for your toilet.

Many ill-made toilet soaps contain this same injurious alkali. Resinol Soap contains absolutely no free alkali, and to it is added the soothing, healing Resinol medication, which doctors have used for over 20 years in treating skin troubles. Thus it comforts tender skins, and helps nature clear the complexion and keep the hair rich, lustrous and free from dandruff. Sold by all druggists.

Resinol Soap is the only soap that makes it most soothing to soap-soiled faces.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED! LOOK AT TONGUE

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out of sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without gripping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they thereby love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Proverbs 27:1-12.

- 1 Boast not thyself of tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.
- 2 Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth; a stranger, and not thine own lips.
- 3 A stone is heavy, and the sand weighty; but a fool's wrath is heavier than them both.
- 4 Wrath is cruel, and anger is outrageous; but who is able to stand before envy?
- 5 Open rebuke is better than secret love.
- 6 Faithful are the wounds of a friend; but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful.
- 7 The full soul loatheth a honeycomb; but to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.
- 8 As a bird that wandereth from her nest, so is a man that wandereth from his place.
- 9 Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart: so doth the sweetness of a man's friend by hearty counsel.
- 10 Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not; neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity; for better is a neighbor that is near than a brother far off.
- 11 My son, be wise, and make my heart glad, that I may answer him that reproacheth me.
- 12 A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself; but the simple pass on, and are punished.

Another Pennant for Fort Wayne.

The award to Fort Wayne for the second year in succession of the Indiana Class A pennant for the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals which supply much of the financial ammunition for the nationwide war on tuberculosis is a distinction in which this city may well have some degree of pride. The record of sales made here during the holiday season just closed placed Fort Wayne well in advance of Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Evansville and South Bend, the other Indiana cities with which Fort Wayne was clasped. The finding is based upon the per capita sales—that is while the actual total of stamps sold at Indianapolis was larger than that purchased by Fort Wayne people, the latter city in proportion to its population responded more generously in this good work than did any of her highly-esteemed neighbors.

With the pennant honors, also, comes the distinction, and the pleasure of entertaining the next annual convention of the Indiana Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, which has voted to come to this city next January. It will be the first time the convention has ever been held outside of Indianapolis.

The sale of Red Cross seals in Fort Wayne has always been strikingly successful because of the devoted effort bestowed upon it by the local society and the enthusiastic assistance of those who were quick to recognize it as a very worthy and very practical cause. It affords everybody an opportunity to make some contribution to the conservation of human life. The work has shown results here in the cure of no inconsiderable number of persons upon whom the White Plague had laid its deadly hand in threat, and the colony established north of the city has but fairly begun its splendid work. All this, as well as the work of skilled counsel, advice and direction given in the private homes and elsewhere, is but a part of the vast total of splendid return Fort Wayne is receiving in return for its generosity in the purchase of the Red Cross seals each year.

President Wilson announces frankly that the conditions arising out of the war have led him to change his views regarding the desirability of a non-partisan tariff commission, and that he now favors the creation of such a board to collect information for the proper guidance of congress in making tariff changes. He insists that the change does not involve his attitude toward the question of protection; that the commission should not deal with theory or policy, but with facts as experts may determine them. The president does not go far enough, of course, to completely satisfy those who believe the entire matter of the tariff should be placed in the hands of a commission and taken wholly out of the hands of congress, and they will contend that his plan will fail to meet the emergency. Whether this position be well taken or not, the candor of President Wilson in admitting his belief that changed conditions warrant a change in views, and that he has made the change accordingly will raise him still higher in public estimation. It shows again that he does not consider himself infallible, and that he is responsive to any demand that seems best for the country he is serving through very trying times.

The house has smilingly passed along to the senate the Shackelford good roads bill carrying $25,000,000 to be apportioned to the various states for highway improvement in proportion to the funds of their own which they expend in similar way. There is strong opposition to the measure in the senate, and that body will in all probability either kill it or mutilate it beyond recognition. Perhaps, too, that will be entirely satisfactory to the house, for it will save the money for the government and in no wise discount the profession of the house members to the folks back home that they did the best they could to provide the improvement. This is one of the standard tricks in legislative legerdemain.

It develops that there are occasionally still found those whose idea of a capital practical joke consists in turning in a false alarm of fire merely "to see the horses run." They doubtless fail to appreciate the fact that the act occasions not only expense to the city and unnecessary danger for the firemen who make the run, but that it leaves a section of the city unprotected while the apparatus is engaged in answering the fake calls. If the officers are successful in their quest, the law will doubtless provide an impressive lesson for those who tamper with the fire alarm signal system in this fashion.

The ballot to be used in the primaries in Allen county is going to be a whopper because of the large number of candidates for the various nominations, and as yet nobody seems inclined to get out of the race merely to save white paper and reduce the size of the ballot from that of a bed-quilt to that of merely an ordinary bath towel. There are some sacrifices which man accounts too great to be made for the public weal, after all.

GONE, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

To the Editor of The Sentinel:—Gone but not forgotten are the flood prevention propositions. With the will of a progressive people looked up behind the iron doors of state legislation and the key thrown in the well, the patient, law-abiding citizenship of a resourceful and would-be progressive city can only look upon the threatening cloud and wonder whether this week or next will demonstrate the inevitable fact that history repeats. Our dream of a repetition of 1913 is not all a dream, while preparation to meet the emergency is much more distant than the muttering of far-off thunder training its forces. We are simply waiting with idle indifference as to the result of witnessing an important part of our city domain converted into a devastating sea and her homes subjected to a pitiless element of destruction. Here let our readers stop short and, going over the valuable asset to our city, draw a picture of the ruin that is sure to follow the trail of procrastination. To some it may seem that the blockade is unsummonable. There is a way out. With an iron will ready to support the right we can easily conquer every obstacle, gain the right of way to success and save to our city a valuable asset in property, contentment and honor. Look well to the present.

WHERE NO COMPENSATION IS.

(South Bend Tribune).

The Indiana industrial board has just handed down a decision which should be considered by workmen with thoughtfulfulness. The board has held that where death or accident results from the drunken condition of the workman, the employer is not liable for compensation.

Few will care to question the validity of the decision. The compensation law says explicitly that "no industry shall be charged with the burden of indemnifying an injured employee whose injury is the result of his own intoxication." The provision, however hard it may bear upon the dependents of the injured man, is eminently wise and sound.

The import of the decision is that every man who drinks and goes to work runs his own chances. He has put himself, or is in danger of putting himself, to an extraordinary hazard. If a man will drink himself intoxicated he or his dependents must bear the burden, not the employer.

No workman can afford to fool with the stuff that robs him of his brains, subjects him to increased risks and then leaves him and his dependents alone to bear the burden of his death or incapacitation. Workmen should think this matter over carefully.

The street lighting bill of the city of New York for 1915 was $400,000 less than for 1914. A goodly part of the saving in said to have been effected by the use of nitrogen filled tungsten lamps in place of the arc lamps.

ADAIR SPEAKS AT LAGRANGE MEETING

Congressman Cline and Harry Hilgemann Also Are Speakers.

Lagrange, Ind., Jan. 27.—Congressman John A. M. Adair, democratic candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, was the principal speaker last evening at an enthusiastic democratic meeting held in the assembly room of the court house. Congressman Cyrus Cline and Harry H. Hilgemann also spoke.

Congressman Cline declared he was in full sympathy with the administration's policy in Mexico and that he favored a larger navy, but not a larger army. He gave it as his opinion that the people were going to stand by the administration and predicted democratic success at the polls next November.

Mr. Hilgemann was the first speaker. He also predicted a democratic victory next fall. Lewis Price presided as chairman.

Congressman Adair delivered the principal address of the evening. He declared that the republican senators who are censuring administration policies in Mexico are doing it purely and solely for political purposes.

Offering No Remedy. "They are not offering any remedy for conditions in Mexico," he continued. "Neither would any of them vote to declare war against that unfortunate country. Their action is unpatriotic. They are making the interest of their party paramount to the interest of the country. The American people, regardless of party, are already resenting the efforts of republican senators to make political capital out of an unfortunate situation over which the administration has no control and for which it can in no way be blamed. Some senators are but the mouth pieces of a few American millionaires who have large money interests in Mexico and who are willing to sacrifice the lives of our American boys and create a debt of millions of dollars for which the people would be taxed to pay in order that they may put value into their questionable investments and give them a title to property that does not rightfully belong to them. The American people are not so greatly interested in the investment of this mercenary class that they are willing to sacrifice our boys and our money only to add to the wealth of a few of our millionaires."

In closing Mr. Adair said: "I feel certain that we will carry Indiana by a larger plurality than we did two years ago—and because of our splendid record in both state and nation, we deserve to win and will win in 1918."

REFUSES TO PROSECUTE

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Irving and Herbert Uptake, recently indicted for conspiracy to murder their father, mother and sister, were released from the county jail in bonds of $20,000 each yesterday. Furman D. Uptake, the father of the defendants, and Henry C. Hanson were sureties on the bond. The father has asked State's Attorney Horne to quash the indictments as he does not wish to prosecute his sons.

The Doctor's Advice

The questions answered below are general in character, the answers will apply in any case of similar nature. Those wishing further advice, free may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Elmwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name, and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. pounds by the use of five-grain arbolene tablets.

"J. W." writes—"I seem to have lost my ambition and energy. My breath is short. I suffer with pains in my head and cannot stand the mental and physical strain I was formerly able to. I seem to need reinforcement, both physically and mentally."

Answer—Your system is run down. You need a good, bracing tonic and builder. You will find just what your system requires in three-grain cadomene tablets. These tablets exert an influence over the digestive and nervous systems. They should soon build up your strength and restore your lost vitality, animation and physical forces.

"P. W. R." writes—"I seem to be shrinking in size. I am very pale and thin. I do not feel sick, but I am very weak. I want to increase my weight."

Answer—You are anemic and the food you eat does not properly nourish your system. Three-grain hypo-nucleic tablets cause proper food assimilation and increase weight and strength by affording perfect health.

"Rural" writes—"I have a very severe case of kidney trouble, and ask that you please prescribe for me. I have been suffering for six months."

Answer—In six months you should have been completely relieved of your trouble with proper treatment. No I will prescribe what I have recommended thousands of times for kidney diseases. Get a tube of balmwort tablets, with full directions, from your drug store and begin using them at once. This is a most economical and effective treatment.

"Calro" writes—"I'm nervous, tired, constipated. My tongue is coated and my complexion sick looking. Even my eyes look dull and yellow. I have headache constantly and don't sleep well."

Answer—You have allowed your blood to get in an impoverished condition. Your whole system is affected as a result. Start at once using three-grain sulphur tablets (not sulphur), and they will clean your system, relieve constipation and purify your blood.

The Yanez family was asked to represent Chili during the coronation festivities.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your crown. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggy, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Advertisement.

WILL RECOGNIZE THE GIRLS.

Equal Suffrage Finally Wins at Purdue University.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 27.—Equal suffrage has at last won the day at Purdue university. It is announced that the student council, official board of the student body, has agreed to recognize the Purdue girls and give them a voice in student affairs. The girls are to be permitted to have one active member on the council and one associate member. The plan is to have the Purdue Girls' club appoint a senior "co-ed" as a representative on the board, entitled to vote, and to nominate a junior girl who is to attend the meetings of the council, but not vote. This is to enable the junior girl to get in touch with student affairs and thus qualify herself for a voting membership on the student council in her senior year.

The enrollment of girls at Purdue is growing so large the men could no longer refuse to give them recognition in student affairs. The girls have been taking more and more part in class affairs and have been demanding for several years that a place on the student council be given them.

The newspaper announcement that Utah is now in fifth place as a canning state probably has no reference to the rather recent turmoil at the state university when so many non-Mormon professors were ousted.—Springfield Republican.

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Back-achy or have Bladder trouble.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush out the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.—Advertisement.

EACH

Juanita Miller

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 25. "No woman should think of marriage until she has established economic independence."

"Matrimony is a business proposition, not a venture."

"The woman who marries on the impulse of the moment or because she has nothing else to do is poorly equipped."

"Home happiness springs first from an equality of the sexes in all things."

In these terse words Juanita Miller, daughter of the late "Poet of the Sierra," places her estimate on marriage.

"Leap year won't lure me into matrimony," declared Miss Miller.

"Not until I have proved my ability to be economically independent will I entertain designs upon any man."

"I have mapped out a career on the concert stage to test my capabilities," she explained. "Until I can accomplish this feat, I shall feel unfit to marry."

"I do not mean to say that the first duty of a woman is not to make a home and rear a family, but I do maintain she should qualify as a business woman before undertaking her life work."

A woman whose only idea of existence is to rely solely on the means provided by her husband is poorly equipped to bring up a family. She must be mentally and economically her husband's equal as well as physically.

"No woman should let her art interfere with her prior duty to her children, but mothers should not devote all their time to their young. Over-care and over-attention oftentimes suppress a child's individuality and unfit him for after life."

Miss Miller is to leave Oakland soon for a concert tour of the large eastern cities.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

When Gen. Robert E. Lee at Appomattox wished to make some marginal notes on the papers of the final surrender, he asked the bystanders for a pencil. Strange to say not one of the numerous officers of Lee's staff was able to offer him one. At last, an aide-de-camp extended a pocket inkstand and feather quill from his kit, and with the aid of these historic documents was written and the names of Grant and Lee affixed at the bottom.

The above bit of history was dug up by David W. Griffith during his stay at Lee's surrender to Grant, one of the most striking historical scenes in "The Birth of a Nation" now in its last performances at the Majestic theater.

General Grant is correctly represented in his fatigue uniform, dusty and travel-stained, whilst General Lee is shown in the complete panoply of military dress. "My aim," said Mr. Griffith in speaking recently of such scenes, "has been to introduce as little acting as possible. I have tried to be accurate in every detail and keep away from theatricalism."

The accuracy of the historical scenes in "The Birth of a Nation" has stood the acid test of criticism by the foremost critics and historians of the United States. Not a single flaw has been found and there have been none who have not written in eulogy of the faithfulness of the historical scenes. To see "The Birth of a Nation" is an education in itself besides being wonderfully entertaining.

The present engagement will be the last in this vicinity this season. The next two days will therefore afford the last opportunities to witness this superb spectacle.

"Bringing Up Father."

In the course of human frailty and emulation there is nothing more common than the aping of the newly rich of the foibles of their betters. This is particularly exemplified in the new singing and dancing comedy, "Bringing Up Father," which is to be the attraction at the Majestic on Monday matinee and night. The production, which is under the direction of that astute manager, Gus Hill, was suggested by the cartoons of George McManus, the well known artist. It is in three acts and the characters are those found in every-day life and not the exaggerated types one is accustomed to see in certain stage offerings. Constructively the piece is one of the best witnessed heretofore in seasons. The fun is fast and infectious, contains an interesting and plausible plot and in addition is interpreted by a cast voted for its competence and capability. At least a dozen special numbers are introduced during the action of the comedy.

Mrs. Jennie Dickey, of the White apartment, has gone to Columbus, O., where her niece, Mrs. Harry E. Townsend, will undergo an operation Friday at the Mt. Carmel hospital.

AT KEITH PALACE

Amusing Singing Novelty on the New Palace Bill.

The singing novelty by George Botford and Jean C. Hayes, entitled "The Volunteers," is one of the feature hits on the bill that opened a three day engagement at the New Palace this afternoon. It's a funny conversation with a "single," a looby, a stage hand and a leader mixed up in a jodge-podge of absurdities.

Wilmer Walter and company will present their celebrated laugh exciting skit, "The Late Van Camp," in which Walter is supported by Alice Parks Warren and a cast of three people. Grace Fisher, the sunshine girl in an abundance of songs and stories; the dancing Kennedy's, doing a series of whirlwind high speed dances; the LeGroba, sensational contortionist act, and the Kolb and Harland 1850 to 1920 evolution are other big features on this bill.

AT THE TEMPLE.

"Is Marriage a Failure?" will be seen at the Temple theater this evening. It opened with a well-filled house this afternoon.

The play is one of stock's best. It is full of life, human interest and a hundred and one of those little fine incidents that make up a play. It is not of the cloudy, rainy-day type, with a sob after each act, but full of humor and yet containing many a lesson.

Stock has been better received in Fort Wayne this week than for many months. "The Frame Up," the first bill of this week, drew large crowds, and still more is expected of the bill for the latter part of the week. Everybody likes comedy; that is, if it is produced properly. Fort Wayne stock lovers know that the play will be presented in the very best style, and with the assurance that the play is worth while, they are more than satisfied.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

A Splendid Production at Jefferson.

Life's problem vividly depicted on the Jefferson screen in the Paramount production, "The Ragamuffin," featuring Blanche Sweet in the role of Jenny, a child of the slums. This is a new departure for Miss Sweet, who heretofore has always worn "society clothes" and had "dressed up parts," but to her credit she acquires herself most admirably in her rag and makes a great impression. A child, a boy, is born in wealth and at an early age is left an orphan and is reared by an aunt. On the same day a child, a girl, is born in poverty and at an early age is left an orphan and is taken in by an old crook who teaches her to assist him in his unholy calling. In after years fate

WHAT'S DOING IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

ST. PAULS DEFEAT
SORIN HALL FIVE

Pugilistic Touch in the
Thrills.

St. Paul spilled the Sorin hall boys from Notre Dame all over the floor and took last night's game by a score of 35 and 17. Except for an affair of honor and flits between Kennedy and Coffall in the midst of a perfectly ladylike game, it was good sport, and both players were ruled off the floor after their little set-to.

The visitors opened with a basket but the St. Paul boys soon climbed up beside them and then passed them, remaining ahead practically throughout the game, and always keeping an upper hand of the stuff. The game was spectacular through-out, with a series of brilliant plays by White Gerberding predominating as the high spots.

But to return to the battle that really added the thrill to the match. Coffall snatched up to Kennedy and swung on him with his sturdy right, catching the Fort Wayne boy across the face. Those who know Kennedy need not be told that he swatted back. Referee Island ruled both of them off the floor. Island again last night proved his ability as a referee and bawled several players at the mere suggestion of rough stuff. The lineup and scores:

St. Paul, 35—Straup, R. F.; Gerberding, L. F.; Bauer-Benz-Trebra, C.; Dietrich, R. G.; Kennedy-Benz, L. G.
Sorin Hall, 17—Pitzpatrick, R. F.; Kennedy, L. F.; Coffall-O'Donnell, C.; Blackford, R. G.; Boujan, L. G.
Field goals—Straup, 2; Gerberding, 8; Bauer, 2; Pitzpatrick, 4; Kennedy, 1; Coffall, 1; Blackford, 1.
Foul goals—Gerberding, 9; Kennedy, 2. Referee—Island.

NATIONALS WIN.
In the preliminary the Nationals won from the Acollans. The lineup and scores:

Nationals—Hoffman-Adams, R. F.; Stenger, L. F.; Doerfler, C.; Minnemer, R. G.; Walda, L. G.
Acollans—Doriot, R. F.; Rulo-Loss, L. F.; McGuire, C.; DeWald, R. G.; Daley, L. G.
Field goals—Hoffman, 4; Stenger, 2; Doerfler, 2; Walda, 1; Doriot, 4; McGuire, 5. Foul goals—Walda, 3.

Indiana College Track and Field Meet to Be Held May 27.

Indianapolis, Jan. 27.—The Indiana College Athletic association track and field meet will be held at Lafayette, Ind., May 27. It was decided at a meeting of the organization here last night. Oliver Cutts, of Purdue university, was re-elected president. It was announced that T. C. A. L. rules would govern the I. C. A. L. colleges at the meet, while Purdue, Indiana and Notre Dame would be governed by western conference rules, which prohibit the participation of freshmen athletes.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—The exact status of Roger Bresnahan in baseball is still undecided today, although at a conference yesterday with Charles Weegman he was officially informed that he is no longer manager of the Chicago Nationals. Weegman said he would pay Bresnahan his salary as provided in Roger's contract, which has two years to run, but that Joseph Tinker would pilot the club. Bresnahan is said to have told the new Cub president that this arrangement did not meet with his approval and to have hinted at possible legal proceedings to force the fulfillment of his contract to the letter.

IT'S TIME TO TAKE

Zanesville Giants on the Job
Against St. Mary's
Tonight.

St. Mary's and the Zanesville busters meet tonight at the Shrine auditorium and one of the very best little battles of the winter ought to result. The local boys are ready for any brand of anarchy the visitors are likely to bring, and Louis Island, the referee, has been chosen because of his ability to keep dirt out of a game. If he wants to make a hit with Fort Wayne fans tonight, Island will keep the Zanesville boys down, not half way down, but all the way, making them play as clean a game as the next one. It has been the custom to forgive and forget some of Zanesville's small town stuff because it was Zanesville, but tonight if Island has a head on his shoulders he will see to it that rough stuff is absolutely barred from both sides.

The game will be good, no matter who wins, for both sides are going into it with the well known determination to win or bust.

Clothing for the poor of Fort Wayne will be received at 1029 Fairfield avenue, and distributed to worthy people through the Fort Wayne Mother's club and the various charitable organizations.

Jack Monroe, former fighter who enlisted in the British army, is in a London hospital recovering from an operation performed after a German shell took off his right arm at the elbow.
The arm was the one that gained fame for Jack when he knocked down Jim Jeffries while Jeff was champion. Monroe was sergeant in the "Princess Pat" regiment, which was almost entirely wiped out in the second battle of Ypres.

HASN'T YET DECIDED.
Governor Has No Successor for Wolcott on Tax Board.
Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 27.—Eben H. Wolcott, republican member of the state board of tax commissioners, has tendered his resignation from that office to Governor Ralston to take effect on April 3. The resignation was accepted as of that date. The governor said he would not take up the question of appointing Wolcott's successor until he returned from a trip to Miami, Fla., on which he and Mrs. Ralston will start next Friday.
Among the men who already have been mentioned to the governor for the appointment are W. H. Hart and James Henry, of Indianapolis, and Preston Smith, former state senator of Paragou, Ind. The name of Winfield T. Miller, of Indianapolis, also is heard in connection with the place.

ONE-ARMED BALLPLAYER IS STAR IN COLLEGE CIRCLES.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 27.—Dick Hooper, of Texas university, has only one arm, but is one of the best college baseball players in the country. He is captain of his team.

Hooper is an outfielder. He wears a glove on his right hand, the only one he has. After he catches a ball he tosses it into the air and slaps the glove under what is left of his left arm. Then he grabs the ball out of the air and throws it. Hooper goes through the whole operation with such speed he can get a ball started toward the diamond, after making a catch, almost as quickly as an outfielder with two hands.

Last season Hooper threw out ten runners at the plate. He had 105 chances in the field and did not make an error. He is a good batter. He uses a short, thick bat. Last season he hit safely in sixteen consecutive games, making a better record than most of his teammates. This is Hooper's last year at Texas university. He plans to enter Dartmouth next year.

SEEK TO ENJOIN TREASURER.

Suit Filed in Lake County to Prevent Collection of Taxes.
Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 26.—George A. Bittler, state treasurer, today received a letter from Newton A. Hembroff, of Indiana Harbor, county attorney, calling attention of state officials to a suit that has been filed at Hammond asking for a temporary injunction against the Lake county treasurer, to prevent the collection of taxes on a certain piece of ground, the appraised value of which was raised by the assessing officials of the township and county for taxation purposes in 1915.

Mr. Hembroff wrote Bittler that on the outcome of this case, he understood would depend to a large extent whether a general increase in property values in certain Lake county townships would be valid. The Lake county officials increased valuations of classes of property in Calumet township, Lake county, and the present suit, filed by Joseph, Fred, Frank and James Tittle, against Matthew J. Brown, county treasurer, is to test that increase, according to Hembroff.

Members of the state board of tax commissioners said today they had taken no official action in regard to the matter in question under the suit. The suit will be heard February 7 at Hammond. It seeks to enjoin the collection of state and county taxes.

My thoughts came true, for my opponent slipped me a lucky punch and it curtains for me. It's been that way since."

"I swore off fighting and got married. But, to my surprise, my wife thinks I can fight. She wants me to whip ten men just as a starter. I guess I'll have to, for her sake. QUARTER CENTURY CLUB ORGANIZING

Big General Electric Social Body Will Be Born at Banquet.

A Fort Wayne branch of the Quarter Century club of the General Electric company will be organized at an informal dinner and reception given at the Anthony tonight in honor of A. L. Rohrer, electrical superintendent of the General Electric company, of Schenectady, who is president of the parent Quarter Century club of that city. Mr. Rohrer, who arrived in the city this morning, came on business with the officers of the Fort Wayne Electric works and to deliver an address before the Electro-Technic club at the high school auditorium Friday night.

A year ago the movement for a Fort Wayne branch of the Quarter Century club was started, but was not carried to a completion, and when it was learned that Mr. Rohrer was coming here this week, men back of the movement conceived the idea of a dinner in his honor at which the thirty-one eligible people who had signed the membership roll for a local branch of the club would be the hosts. The dinner will be given at the Anthony hotel tonight, commencing at 7 o'clock, and following it the local Quarter Century club will be fully organized. At a preliminary meeting it was decided that Factory Superintendent E. A. Barnes will be the chairman and Mr. S. Wilson, William Schultz, and Harry Lewis a general committee to act until officers are selected. As stated this will be a branch of the General Electric Quarter Century club, whose membership is now over 100 and whose headquarters are in Schenectady, and it will not be necessary to have a complete roster as would be the case under different circumstances. The organization is a purely social affair, designed to keep old employees of the company in touch with each other, and the membership requirements are twenty-five years continuous service with the General Electric company or the companies absorbed and controlled by it. The list in Fort Wayne is as follows: E. A. Barnes, William Brennan, H. C. Deers, Samuel Brownberger, William Dannel, H. W. Driftmeyer, Harry J. Evans, J. E. Hall, J. E. Kiehlbauer, W. P. Keubel, John F. Kress, John Kress, Fred Miller, William J. Murphy, A. T. Miller, Darwin S. Myers, Herman P. Rehm, William R. Rids, S. W. Richards, W. Stuart, Robert C. S. Rehrer, William B. Schultz, James J. Wood, George E. Wood, M. S. Wilson, William C. Wurtle, A. L. Hadley, A. L. Schlatter, F. S. Hunting, Gus Kayser and Eugene McLaughlin.

Tomorrow night at the high school auditorium Mr. Rohrer will deliver a lecture under the auspices of the Electro-Technic club, his subject being "The General Electric Company." He will give a history of the big concern from its infancy to the present day and as this is a subject in which the employees of the local plant are interested, each is invited to attend the lecture.

FIFTY-TWO YEARS AT WORK.

John Shultz has spent half century on Wabash.

John Shultz, the veteran agent for the Wabash railroad at Danville, Ill., fifty-two years ago began his railroad career in Lafayette. He was at that time appointed chief clerk in the office of Samuel M. Vachin, master mechanic of the Lafayette and Indianapolis road, with headquarters in that city. Mr. Shultz was for some time timekeeper for the road. Later Mr. Vachin resigned and went to Philadelphia to take a position with the Baldwin Locomotive works. Mr. Shultz was for a time employed as an operator on a western road and later resigned to accept a position as cashier for the Wabash road at Quincy. He was later appointed agent at Africa, where he was stationed until 1881, when he was appointed agent at Danville. He was one of the best known agents in the employ of the B. & O. line.

NEW ASSEMBLERS AT LIGHTS.

Foreman W. H. Schultz, of the big dynamo assembling plant at the Fort Wayne Electric works, is one of the busiest men at that big establishment, so great is the demand on the department. Mr. Schultz has just added several assemblers to his force, and will probably take on others soon. In the list is W. A. Dickerhoff, who quit the works two years ago to take up farming. Other new assemblers are Alfred Noble, William Koestel, Fred Thompson, B. B. Timie, George Braun, August Busse and Ralph Latham. Victor Bradbury is a new messenger in the department.

REBUILT FOUNDRY IS OPENED.

The rebuilt foundry of the Western Gas works is practically complete and was thrown open to operations this morning, with all the force available. One hundred men are at work in the department now and forty more molders and coremakers and the necessary helpers will be set to work as soon as they can be secured. Supt. W. C. Kaiser states that the company has orders on the books now to keep the works busy several months and more orders are coming in.

SMALL STRIKE AT DUDLO'S PLANT

A misunderstanding regarding work conditions at the factory of the Dudlo Manufacturing company on Wall street, resulted in a strike of some of the employees. The trouble grew out of a notice that employees would not be paid for spoiled coils and fifteen of the men quit work. According to Manager G. A. Jacobs all but three have returned to work, after a conference with him, and he does not expect any further trouble.

Atlantic City, Famous Playground, Becomes Duelling Place Between God and the Devil

DEFENSE OF CITY BY JOY TOWN'S MAYOR

Atlantic City is essentially a resort for health and recreation, and the people want to be entertained, not lectured.

As to Dr. Stough, he is the most potent evangelist I ever met, because his heart is kind. He has a very difficult task here, and I await with interest the result.

It is difficult for him to accomplish much because Atlantic City is a Christian community, and everybody hit the trail long before he came.

All this talk about the wickedness of Atlantic City is "bunk." We have the happiest homes, the finest schools, the best churches, and the most devout people that I have ever lived with this side of Asbury Park.

—William Riddle, mayor of Atlantic City.

By Kenneth W. Payne

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 27.—Trapped in the tangle of what he calls the "world's widest-open city," tempted by beckoning beauties behind red draperies in a veritable palace of prostitution, outraged by his glimpses of the half-nude denizens of the notorious underworld in Atlantic City, America's gleaming pleasure isle, the Rev. Henry W. Stough, hailed as the country's greatest corner in evangelism, has just launched out scorchingly here upon the most thrilling drama of city saving ever staged.

Face to face we have a preacher who damns even dancing, threatens you with hell for touching cards, and a wealthy, brilliant mayor who thinks 25 per cent of life is good booze, and advocates enlivening Atlantic City during Lent with imported gamblers, boxers and loads of chorus girls!

That's the antithesis that makes the drama tense. The drama is colored by as picturesque a group of actors and onlookers as was ever assembled; and it's laid in America's gayest year-round play spot; and the denouement is bound to be a thriller, but nobody knows yet what it is going to be. For all these reasons the great Stough revival that is getting up headway here in the lee of the Boardwalk is sure to cause as startling a national sensation as Billy Sunday has ever pulled.

"A city built on the skulls of dead souls!" That is how Evangelist Stough described to me this garish pleasure spot, with its ocean front facade of impossibly elegant hotels, the most palatial in America, and its backtown of saloons and brothels.

And then, toward 11 at night, he took us out to probe in person the raw underworld of Atlantic City, which he had thus described. Within a few blocks of the station whence the last train for Philadelphia had left, we found the row of houses, alight, welcoming, displaying their names brazenly.

Dr. Stough wore an elegant fur colored overcoat; the girls picked him out as the prime prey of the party. From the porches of the dollar house, a regular mansion, they beckoned. And Dr. Stough went, for he was out to get the real dope on the town before he ripped it up on the back.

And so, amid the nightly drama of the tangle of what he calls the "world's widest-open city," he was out to get the real dope on the town before he ripped it up on the back.

At last the party was slackened and turned homeward.

Dr. Stough stretched out on a couch back at the hotel, while ex-fugitive Jack Cardiff, his trainer, tucked parts of him under a fancy coverlet and pummeled and rubbed and slapped the rest of him with alcohol—the only form in which any member of the party touches it—moralized to me upon his experience.

"This state of New Jersey is as vile as hell on the booze question!" he said. "It is one of the three blackest in the union, and when I came to Atlantic City I was told the job here was hopeless. It was a good, old liquor city."

"I won't attack the respectable hotels, in so far as they are respectable!"

"Atlantic City isn't responsible for all these old rakes. They come down from New York or Philadelphia, and put up in a swell suite at a big hotel with some chippie picked up back home, and they try to pass her off as wife or daughter. For them, there ought to be

PRaises Schools OF ALLEN COUNTY

Dr. H. A. Adrian Delighted With What He Has Seen Here.

Dr. H. A. Adrian, of Santa Barbara, Cal., who was one of the instructors at the Allen County Teachers' institute in 1913 and 1914, visited the Monroeville and New Haven public schools Wednesday and speaks of them in words that are highly complimentary. Especially does he mention the manual training department in each case and told how much more efficient the method is that is used here than the one practiced in his home state.

Dr. Adrian stated that he was surprised to see the work and although he had not been enthusiastic about visiting the schools Wednesday morning, he was very glad now that he had gone. "In California," said the interesting speaker to a party of people gathered in the county superintendent's office, "we have drifted away from the making of practical things in the manual training departments. There the boys are compelled to make small useless things over and over and not only do they lose interest in the work, but they are not being taught anything which will be beneficial to them in later years."

"I saw in your schools here that the boys are being taught to mend broken articles of furniture and take things that are worn out and make something new with the old material. That is why I am complimenting and recommending them so highly. The boy is learning something which can be used to an advantage when he owns property of his own. It teaches him economy."

Many of the county teachers may be pleased to know that Dr. Adrian, who is a very talented speaker, is now on a lecture tour and leaves Friday for Louisville. He told his friends Thursday that he was caught in the great Nebraska blizzard ten days ago and that he was forced to walk several miles after the train had jumped the track and was caught fast in the high snow drifts. He succeeded in reaching a farm house after freezing both of his ears.

It is understood that Michael Kinder will be a candidate for re-election to the state legislature on the democratic ticket.

Announcement is made by District Chairman A. L. Moody, of Waterloo, that the prohibition district convention will be held in the assembly room of the DeKalb county court house in Auburn at 1 o'clock next Saturday, at which time a candidate for congress will be nominated.

County Calls Attention to Coombs and Tennessee Bridges.

In a letter addressed to Mayor William J. Hoge and the board of public works, the board of county commissioners calls attention to the fact that approaches to the Coombs street bridge over the Maumee river and the Tennessee avenue bridge, over the St. Joe river, remain in need of approaches and that the county board would like to know what the city can do this year toward putting these bridges in condition for traffic. The Tennessee avenue bridge has been completed almost four years, but the west approach has never been constructed. Tennessee avenue, west of the bridge, has not been improved. The Coombs street bridge has been completed almost three years, but the approaches have never been constructed. The board has been waiting upon a settlement of the matter of elevating the Nickel Plate railway tracks at Coombs and Canal streets, because that improvement will affect the approach to the bridge. The board of commissioners state in its letter that it is not attempting to dictate to the board of works; but would appreciate some action that will put these bridges in commission for traffic.

Allen, formerly of Cleveland, had left a bequest of $100,000 for hospital purposes in Oberlin. Of this bequest $25,000 is to be spent to build the "Allen Memorial hospital" for the joint use of the village and the college, and $75,000 is to constitute the "Dudley P. TO SETTLE PAVING MATTERS.

Park and Public Works Boards to Have a Consultation.

The board of park commissioners and the board of public works are to have an immediate consultation to discuss the part each shall take in bearing the expense of paving three streets that city property abuts upon extensively. These are Crighden avenue, along the south side of which Reservoir park has a frontage of two squares (Greenwood square and Reservoir square) and a considerable frontage, and North Clinton street, where Lawton park has a frontage and upon which city property under jurisdiction of the board of works abuts. It is desired by the board to pave those streets this year and a controversy between the two boards as to the park board's obligation to pay for paving along park frontages has never been settled.

STILL WAIT ON DECISION.

The board of works is still "up in the air" as to the paving program for this year because it does not yet know whether or not it will be obliged to include the paving of St. Joe boulevard from Lake avenue to State boulevard. THE NATIVE PERSIMMON—METHOD OF PROPAGATING IT

The Persimmon Seems to Have Been the First Native American Fruit to Be Described and Praised by the Early Explorers—DeSoto Praised Its Food Value in a Published Account in 1557—John Smith's Narrative of the New World, Written Early in the Seventeenth Century, Included a Long Discussion of the Persimmon—He said: "If it Be Not Ripe, it Will Draw a Man's Mouth Awrie With Much Torment," Thus Well Characterizing the Puckering, Astringent Effect of the Immature Fruit.

By W. FLETCHER.

The persimmon tree has received more criticism, both adverse and favorable, than almost any other known species. Those who have discussed the food value of the fruit, from the earliest chroniclers to recent writers, have prophesied that the tree would soon be accorded a place in our gardens and orchards. Those people, on the other hand, who have been acquainted only with the immature fruit or with the young sprouts in cultivated fields have had nothing to say in its favor and have bent their energies toward its destruction rather than its propagation and cultivation.

There are several factors which are responsible for the slow progress of persimmon development in this country. One reason for the neglect of this fruit seems to be the erroneous yet oft-repeated statement that persimmons are unfit to eat until they have been touched by frost or frozen. Although this statement has been corrected by nearly every one who has studied the subject, nevertheless throughout the regions where persimmons are grown many of the best fruits are lost each year because they ripen and fall before frost or before they are supposed to be edible. The truth of the matter is that freezing is as detrimental to the quality of persimmons as to the quality of any other fruit. If persimmons are not edible and free from astringency before frost, it is because the variety is a late one and the fruit has not yet matured.

The development of the persimmon, whether for orchard or ornamental purposes, has been retarded by the difficulty encountered in propagating and transplanting it. One grower has characterized it as the only tree that he could not kill in his cultivated fields and the only one that he could not make live in his garden. Failure in transplanting is usually due to a lack of knowledge concerning the characteristic root development of the persimmon. Under natural conditions, the roots penetrate much deeper into the soil than those of most other fruit trees, and unless great care is exercised when the tree is taken up it is almost impossible to get more than a small percentage of the root system, thus reducing the chance of making the tree live when transplanted.

From time to time valuable trees have been discovered, cared for, and even in some cases transplanted or propagated. Most of these have been soon neglected or destroyed, until there are comparatively few varieties of marked value available for general distribution.

Both De Soto and Jan de Laet when describing the ripe fruit of the native persimmon call it a "delicious little plum," and John Smith and other writers of the seventeenth century speak of it as a plum with the favor of an apricot.

Roughly speaking, the persimmon is indigenous to the southeastern quarter of the United States, being found in large numbers in the fields and forests of that section. The more favored localities in Iowa and eastern Nebraska produce many fruits, but very few trees are found west of central Kansas. Scattering specimens in Connecticut and on Long Island mark the present northeastern limit of the species. A few trees in Rhode Island, New York, and Michigan which produce fairly well, indicate that the northern limit of cultivation may be extended whenever economic conditions (that is, the value of the fruit for food or of the tree for ornamental purposes) seem to warrant.

The zone of greatest productivity and adaptability, wherein appear by far the largest number of promising types, extends from Maryland, Virginia, and the Carolina westward through Missouri and Arkansas. The persimmon thrives equally well on the sands of the Coastal Plain, the shales of the Allegheny Mountains, the muck of the river-bottom lands, and the chert of the Ozarks.

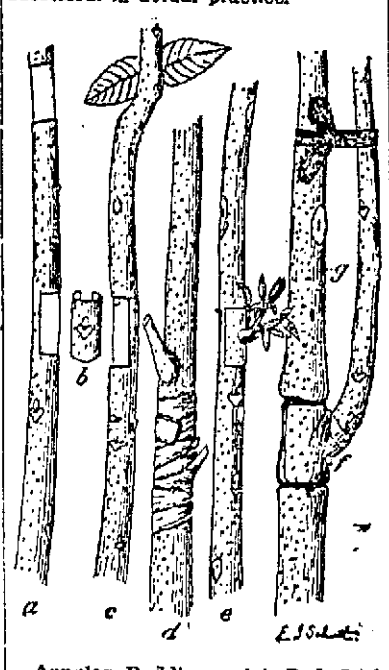

The season of the native persimmon is probably longer than that of any other wild fruit, both locally and over the country as a whole. In many sections the earliest and the latest varieties may be found growing side by side, or at least within a few miles of each other. The Bureau of Plant Industry has records for both early and late varieties from the southern part of Georgia and Florida. In the District of Columbia there are some trees which ripen their fruit in August and others on which it hangs until February.

Generally speaking, the best fruits are neither the earliest nor the latest, but rather those that ripen just before the beginning of the tree's dormant season. The latest varieties are still immature when the leaves fall or when they are killed by frost, and they must complete the ripening process within themselves instead of drawing nourishment from the tree until they have grown to maturity.

The largest as well as the best fruits are those that ripen about the time the trees shed their leaves. The early varieties are nearly all medium in size, and the late varieties which hang on until cold weather are generally small.

As is the case with most fruit trees, the persimmon does not reproduce its varietal characteristics through the seed, and other methods of propagation are, therefore, necessary to perpetuate desirable varieties. Propagation of the persimmon by the methods commonly employed with tree fruits is more difficult than for such fruits as the apple or the peach. The methods described herein have been found successful in actual practice.

Chip or Dormant Budding: (a) Bud Stick; (b) Bud Ready for Insertion; (c) Bud Inserted in Place; (d) Bud Securely Tied in Place.

temperature do not dry them unduly. Seeds which fall under the trees are usually too much exposed to the atmosphere and dry too much to admit of germination.

Seeds that are gathered for propagating purposes should be stratified at once. If they are allowed to dry out it is often necessary to soak them for two or three days before they are planted, the water being renewed each day at a boiling temperature.

The seed bed in which persimmon seedlings are grown should be located on well-drained land where the soil is rather light and well supplied with humus. The ground should be plowed deep with a subsoil plow unless the subsoil is friable enough to permit the ready penetration of the long taproots which characterize the growth of persimmon seedlings.

The seed may be planted either in the fall or spring, after being treated as described above. It is commonly planted in shallow drills and lightly covered with soil to a depth of one-half inch or a little more.

Method of Using a Bud Protector on a Chip Bud. The Protector May Be Used in a Similar Manner in All of the Different Forms of Budding: (A) Stock; (B, C) Waxed Cloth Protectors; (D) Chip Bud Fitted into Notch in Stock; (E) Protector in Position Over the Bud; (F) Protector and Bud Wrapped and Tied; (G) Scales of Buds Removed from Stock. (Adapted from Drawing in American Fruit and Nut Journal.)

The different methods of grafting admirably adapted to top-working the worthless trees about the place with the better varieties, thus changing them to useful fruitfulness.

Top-worked, or grafted, portions of old trees will bear two or three years earlier than trees which come from buds or grafts on 1 or 2 year old stocks. These seedling stocks, budded or grafted with a selected variety, will bear one or two years earlier than those produced from cuttings.

The scions to be used in chip budding, cleft grafting, and whip grafting should be cut during late winter. All scions should be kept cool and moist until used. The budding and grafting should be done as soon as the trees which are to be grafted start to grow.

When selecting scions or bud sticks care must be exercised, just as when propagating by wood cuttings, to procure wood with strong, well-developed buds. On twigs of the last season's growth the best buds are generally near the base, where they are supported on more mature wood than those near the tip. In wood more than a year old, most of the buds near the tip have already produced branches, thus making this portion of the twig unsuitable for use in budding or grafting.

The method employed in budding persimmons largely determines the character of the wood that should be selected as a source of buds. For the common shield or "T" bud, the basal half of the new growth is preferable because the bark is thinner than that on older wood and the buds fit closer and better than where wood with older and thicker bark is used. Moreover, the buds near the base of the new wood are better than those toward the tip, because the latter are so irregular in outline that it is difficult to fit them closely to the stock.

When the chip-bud method is used it is essential that the bud stick have sufficient body to allow the removal of the bud with a clean, solid chip adhering thereto. A bud stick should never be larger than the stock on which the buds are to be worked. If it is too large in relation to the size of the stock which is to receive the bud, the chip will be so broad and flat that it can not be properly fitted into any notch which is possible to make in the stock.

Whip Graft: (a) Stock Prepared; (b) Scion Prepared; (c) Stock and Scion Fitted Together Ready for Tying.

For annular or patch budding, the most satisfactory buds are those taken from wood that is 2, 3, or even 4 years old.

Annular budding is also known as "ring" and "flute" budding. It consists merely in transferring a ring of bark to which is attached a bud of the desired variety from a bud stick to the trunk or branch of another tree in place of a similar ring of bark previously removed.

Propagation by chip budding is performed in the early spring or late in the dormant period, hence is also known as "dormant" budding. With a sharp knife a downward cut is made below the bud on the bud stick to a depth of perhaps one-eighth of an inch. Raising the knife to a point above the bud, a long downward cut is made, which meets the lower end of the first cut, and the bud is removed from the stock, and the desired bud is put in its place. Cleft grafting is particularly adapted to large trees when for any reason it becomes necessary to change the variety. Branches too large to be worked by other methods can be cleft grafted. Cleft grafting has given satisfactory results with the persimmon, both on the branches and at the crown. Whip grafting is the style almost universally used in root grafting. It has the advantage of being well adapted to small plants.

The operation of grafting most fruits is generally successful if performed in the spring when the trees are still dormant, or even after growth has started slightly, provided the scions are entirely dormant. In the case of the persimmon, however, much more satisfactory results appear to be obtained when the grafting is delayed until the trees have definitely started into new growth. The scions must be kept dormant.

In all of the various methods of budding and grafting the persimmon it is of the utmost importance that the cut surfaces of both bark and wood be protected with as little delay as possible from chemical change due to exposure to the air. Protection is afforded by covering the wounds with grafting wax, waxed cloth, or similar devices.

The transplanting of the young trees may be done at any time during the dormant period when the roots can be protected from freezing temperature and evaporation and when the soil is in a suitable condition for handling. The pruning of the persimmon varies with the variety. There is a tendency for the tree to prune itself, as many of the fruit-bearing twigs die and drop off with their fruit, thus making the natural open growth of the trees still more open and reducing to a minimum the necessity for pruning.

The persimmon is exceptionally free from the attacks of diseases and insect pests.

Protect Useful Birds

The Arkansas Kingbird occupies during the breeding season the western portion of the United States from the Pacific Ocean eastward as far as Minnesota, Kansas, and Texas, though stragglers have been taken at points much farther east. In winter it retires southward entirely beyond the boundaries of the United States. It is a bird of the open country and avoids forests. A hilly country with frequent trees for nesting appears to be the most satisfactory location. It is said that it takes kindly to civilization and will live in the vicinity of gardens. For the investigation of the food of this bird, 109 stomachs were available. The food was found to consist of 90.61 per cent of animal matter to 2.35 per cent of vegetable. The harmful insects eaten far outweigh the useful beetles, and the bird should receive the fullest protection wherever found.

COMMON SENSE NECESSARY.

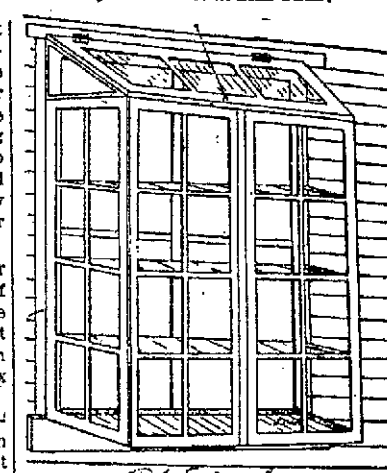

The sunshinest day the farmers of our country have ever seen will be the day when they awaken to the fact that it is not all of farming to dig in the earth. With our digging there must be mixed a lot of the good, sharp and of thought and common sense.

In Norway a bucket of water is always placed beside each horse's allowance of hay. After each mouthful of the hay he takes a sip of water, and it is to this fact that it is attributed that a broken winded horse is very seldom found in Norway.—W. R. Gilbert.

HINTS FOR WINTER WINDOW GARDENERS

By EBEN E. REXFORD.

Winter Window Garden.

An almost universal complaint among those who grow house plants is that their plants begin to flag along about midwinter when they should be at their best and from that time on they fail to give any adequate returns for the care expended on them. Few of them bloom. Some of them grow, or try to, after a weak and spindly fashion, but none of them have that fresh sturdy look which delights the eye of the woman who loves flowers and growing plants. What's wrong?

In answer to the question I have to reply that in all probability no one cause is responsible for the failure. There are several reasons why house plants do not do well in winter, and perhaps the best way to get at the bottom of the difficulty is to tell what kind of care to give to avoid the dangers in the way, and from this the owners of unsatisfactory collections may be able to discover wherein they have made mistakes in caring for their plants.

One very important thing is to give the plants plenty of fresh air. The wonder to me is that some plants live through the winter at all for they are kept in rooms heated almost to the stifling point, and in which there is little or no moisture. A noted physician has said concerning moisture in the house, that a room in which plants will not live is not fit for human beings to live in.

Plants must have air. This may be obtained by lowering a window from the top on one side of the room and raising one from the bottom on the opposite side of the room, and let them remain open for about five minutes. This may be done while the housewife is busy about her other duties and no one need be in the room at the time the airing is being accomplished. If the weather is too cold, fresh air should be admitted into the room for a short time every day, no matter what kind of weather it is.

Last season I answered a letter from a woman who complained of declining health among her house plants by giving advice similar to that in the above paragraph and here is an extract from a letter she wrote me six weeks later.

"I have given your fresh-air treatment a careful trial and it has proven a complete success. I know now just what my plants needed. In less than a week after I began letting air into the room they began to improve and now they are the finest plants I ever tried to grow. They blossom and all my friends say, 'What kind of fertilizer do you use?' When I tell them that fresh air is the fertilizer that has brought about the change they look at me as though they thought I was trying to have some fun at their expense. And let me say right here that we who use the room feel a great deal better than we did. The languid, spiritless feeling that we complained of every night is gone and we attribute the change to better air."

As a general thing, if the plants were reported in the fall no fertilizer will be needed by them before midwinter.

Turn your plants at least once a week to give all sides of them an equal chance at the sun. If you do this you can easily make them symmetrical in shape, but if it is not done they will become one-sided as their branches will grow toward the light.

Don't crowd your plants. It may oblige you to discard some of them if you attempt to follow this advice, but it will richly repay you to do it, for it is impossible to grow fine plants in a window where there is not room for free development. Do not have so many that there will not be room for each one to display its individuality. Most of us make jungles of our window gardens in our eagerness to have a little of everything. This is one of the most serious mistakes it is possible for the amateur gardener to make. Bear in mind always that a few really fine plants will afford a vast deal of pleasure, while a great number of inferior ones—such as we may expect to grow in a crowded window—are more disappointing than pleasing.

If your plants get frozen put them into a cool, dark room as soon as their condition is discovered and shower them—drench them—with cold water. If this is done promptly the frost will be extracted so gradually from them that there will be no bursting of delicate tissues and often many of them may be saved. But if heat is made use of in any way in an effort to draw out the frost the result will be almost sure death. Allow the frosted plants to remain in cold storage for a day or two then bring them back to the window, but avoid a high temperature for some time. If any stalks show injury, cut them off at once.

Of late complaints come in from all quarters about trouble with the foliage of house plants. Yellow spots appear on it. These, after a while, become brown and by and by the leaf dies. Gradually the entire plant becomes affected and death ensues. The trouble is a fungus one. Spores of fungi floating in the atmosphere settle on the leaves and where they locate themselves the yellow spot is seen. There is but one remedy that I have any knowledge of and that is Bordeaux mixture, the same thing that our growers of small fruit are using to counteract the harm that fungus is doing in their garden. A paste preparation of this mixture can now be obtained of most dealers in plants and it should be gotten and used as soon as the disease appears in the window garden.

If you want a little variety in your window garden get a bulb or two of the Gladioli. Plant them in pots or boxes six inches deep and three inches apart and place at once in the window.

Red spider and plant lice are the worst winter pests we have. The former may be dislodged by spraying with cold water and the latter by using kerosene emulsion. Care should be taken to spray on the underside of the leaves. The mistake of the window gardener in crowding his window now will result in disaster after. Plants that are crowded will not develop properly; they will be top-heavy, spindly or one-sided. They will throw up weak flower shoots which will hold but few flowers. One plant properly grown is worth a hundred poorly grown ones.

Ferns obtained from the florist for indoor culture should be placed in a strong light, although they will do well without sunlight. They should be kept moist at all times but watered sparingly. Most fern difficulties arise either from keeping the plants soaked or, on the other hand, permitting them to get too dry. When the fern is in a jardiniere, it is especially difficult to avoid overwatering. In spring and summer, ferns require three times the amount of water that they do in the fall and winter.

Field Peas as a Hay Crop

The field pea is commonly grown in Pennsylvania and New York for hay, and the larger part of the crop in the southern states is also used in this manner. When grown for hay the field pea is almost always sown in a mixture with oats or some other small grain. These mixtures with grain will stand up much better, causing less trouble in the harvest, and the presence of oats or barley in the crop also causes it to cure more quickly. The yield from a mixture of oats and peas is usually larger than that from timothy. The field pea works into a relation very nicely, because of the fact that when harvested for hay it is removed from the field early in the year, thus allowing time for a thorough preparation of the soil during the fall. The feeding value of pea hay is quite high, being apparently the same as that of alfalfa hay.

A Mower with an Attachment Designed to Raise the Peas Off the Ground and Allow the Vines of the Cutter Bar Beneath Them.

KEEP HOGS FREE FROM LICE.

I have found a very effective method of letting the hogs keep themselves free of lice. Set several short posts in the yards and pastures. Wrap the posts with old sacks; and then once a week saturate these sacks with crude oil or one of the coal tar dips. The louse bites the hog, he rubs the spot on the sack, and the oil or dip kills the louse. Simple, isn't it? The hogs soon learn to use the posts, and if the sacks are kept saturated, there will be little danger of lice eating up the profits in hog raising.—J. Grant.

The most profitable beef, pork or mutton is that which is put on the market early.

It is estimated that the average corn binder is in use not more than four days of each year, lasts about 11 years, and costs its owner 84 cents for every acre it covers.

FEAR OF WHEAT CROP FAILURE UNFOUNDED

Says County Agent C. Henry in Speaking of Weather Conditions.

The rumors that have been spread the past few days that the present weather conditions are having deadly effects on the stand of the wheat in the fields of the county and that if the warm wave should continue to remain longer that the crop would be a complete failure, have been dealt by County Agent C. Henry, who declares that they are wholly unfounded.

People who are harboring this pessimistic thought are basing it on the belief that the wheat will begin to grow and when the cold weather arrives again the tender plants will freeze. This is only a supposition as the wheat blades have not shown any signs of life as yet.

County Agent Henry states, however, that should the nights turn cold and then again during the day, that then the fears of many that the wheat crop would be ruined would be realized. "Freezing and thawing and freezing and thawing," says Mr. Henry, "is what is disastrous to the wheat plant and not this warm springlike weather."

You Can Now Make Dimples to Order

Elizabeth Jermaine.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 25.—Miss Elizabeth Jermaine, a Los Angeles high school girl, has invented a dimple maker.

Elizabeth and some of her school friends worried because the other girls had ravishing dimples. Dimples had a noticeable effect on impressionable youths, they noted.

"The dimple idea was on my mind," said Miss Jermaine. "I hunted up a ball from a lard bucket at home, put two corks on it and clamped it on my face where I wanted the dimples to grow. That was the start. A manufacturer friend of mine became interested and helped me complete the patent."

The dimple maker, now on the market, is made of a steel wire fitted with sanitary tips. It can be adjusted to the cheeks in any position desired. Girls who have tried it say they are "tickled to death about it."

Boys, too, if they desire, may use the dimple machine.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Profit-taking by holders continued today to weaken the wheat market. The disposition to make further realizing sales was largely due to reports from Liverpool that buyers were holding off in anticipation of reduced vessel rates, presumably from Argentina. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4c to 1 1/2c lower, with May at 1 1/8c to 1 1/4c, and July at 1 1/4c to 1 1/2c, were followed by a rally, but then a fresh decline. The close was steady at 1 1/4c to 1 1/2c, net advance, with May at 1 1/4c to 1 1/2c and July at 1 1/4c to 1 1/2c.

Unsettled weather then threatened to cut down receipts and to spoil the quality of some of the supply, made corn prices firm. After opening 1/4c off to a shade advance, the market scored moderate general gains.

Prices closed steady at 1/4c to 1 1/4c net advance.

Oats hardened with corn.

Provisions showed little activity.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Jan. 27.—Further reactionary tendencies were manifested on the resumption of trading today, although declines, except in a few specialties, were limited to fractions. Rails were again the heaviest features, but U. S. Steel was under pressure. Initial offerings of Erie, Southern Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and Westinghouse were large. Steel was three-eighths lower than yesterday's close, but immediately rose a half point. Secondary prices showed slight recoveries.

Selling was renewed on the first recovery, with increased offerings of railroad issues. Erie and Canadian Pacific being especially prominent. Later St. Paul, whose directors are expected to take action on the dividend today, also reflected liquidation, with recessions in Reading and other leaders. Union Pacific stood out for its relative strength and Mercantile Marine preferred and American Can were among the more active stocks. Feeble rallies occurred at noon.

Bonds were steady.

THREE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY AILED

Mrs. A. Dixon Tells Tanlac's Aid for Husband, Son and Self.

Three members of a well known Fort Wayne family are receiving aid through the use of Tanlac, the Master Medicine that has gained countless friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. A. Dixon, who lives at 619 Wagner street, and her husband and their 14-year-old son, are the three people of the same family being benefited by Tanlac. Mrs. Dixon, whose husband is a well known Fort Wayne man, recently said:

"My system has been in a run down condition for a long time. Frequently of late I have suffered from attacks of severe nervousness. My husband had catarrh and he also suffered from stomach trouble.

"Mr. Dixon knew of a man who had been greatly benefited through the use of Tanlac so we decided to try it. I feel strong and well since taking the medicine and I am not nearly so nervous as I formerly was. I sleep soundly now; my spirits have been improved and altogether I feel much better. I can see a great change for the better in my husband, too. His improvement is easily noticeable. Our 14-year-old son is starting to take the medicine now for catarrh.

"Tanalac is doing me a world of good and I am glad to recommend it to other women in a condition similar to that I was in."

Tanalac is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism, nervousness and the like and is a system builder and blood purifier.

Tanalac is now being introduced in Fort Wayne at the Wayne and Calhoun streets store of the Meyer Drug Co., where the Tanlac Man is explaining the new remedy. It also may be obtained at the other Meyer stores, Calhoun and Columbia, 1420 Calhoun, and Broadway and Taylor. Advertisement.

PETE DOENGES GETS TWO VIOLENT JOLTS

Thought He Was Being Condemned to Death at State Farm.

"If you send me down there again you are sentencing me to death—you are taking my life. I can never live through another term at that place," declared Pete Doenges with trembling voice while his cheeks paled with the thought of an ordeal so terrible.

"That's what I have decided to do with you, Pete; you're no good; you won't quit drinking and we'll have to keep you where you can't get anything to drink," said Judge H. Waveland Kerr in the city court Wednesday.

"My God, it is terrible! I will die—you'll be the death of me!"

"Well, I don't want to kill anybody and I am going to let you go. Clear out," said the court.

This shock was worse than the other and Pete came near falling off his chair but he gathered himself with heroic effort and trotted from the court room, fearing the judge might change his mind again. Doenges got back from a four months' term at the state farm Monday evening and promptly celebrated the homecoming by getting drunk. He had not been in the city two hours before he was under arrest.

Other City Court Cases.

Rensley Baker, a youth who said he resides at Ferguson, a hamlet a few miles south of Fort Wayne, was arraigned on a drunk charge and drew $5 and costs, going to jail. Officer Hecke who arrested Baker, said the youth had thrown a perfectly good ham into the discard, Wednesday evening, and tried to beat it. Baker denied having a ham.

Louis Johnson, aged 16, was charged with disorderly conduct and was turned loose after admitting that he ascended to the roof of the Keystone block on Calhoun street, Wednesday afternoon and was amusing himself by throwing pebbles picked from the gravel roof at pedestrians in the street below. He had pelted several persons, injuring one man in the eye, when Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner's attention was called to Johnson's sport and he went up to the roof and arrested the lad.

assault and battery on Nate Weinstein a foreigner, told his story and was turned loose. He said Weinstein had persistently annoyed and insulted Mrs. Parker and their daughter at the Parker home on Hayden street and, getting tired of it, gave Weinstein a beating Wednesday, after the latter had attempted to follow Mrs. Parker into a closet. Weinstein reported to the police that he had been murdered by Parker and swore out a warrant.

Homer Young, brought here from Toledo by Detective Sergeant Walter Linnel to face a charge of child neglect, was arraigned and continued until Saturday. His bond was fixed at $500.

Jim Cass, a repeater, was fined $1 and costs for drunkenness, and August Werten, another drunk, drew $5 and costs.

Harry E. Hill, a litany driver charged with assault and battery on Ed Hanley, into whom he ran his car at the transfer corner, was continued until February 16 under $200 bond. Hanley was worse injured than at first supposed and has had to undergo a serious surgical operation.

RESIDENCE IS BURGLARIZED.

The residence of Arthur Foellinger, 1117 Summit street, was burglarized Wednesday afternoon while all the family were absent and $30 in bills and the contents of the Foellinger baby's toy bank was rifled of its contents.

PREPARING FOR A GREAT WOLF DRIVE

Jasper County Farmers Call for Relief from Pests and Hunt is Coming.

McLaryville, Ind., Jan. 27.—Plans are being made here and in surrounding towns for one of the greatest wolf drives ever held in Indiana to take place Friday, February 4, in the wild swamps and timber regions in northern Jasper county near the Kankakee river. Word has been received here by local promoters, from hunters and sportsmen from all parts of Indiana and nearby states, expressing their intention of being present for the event, and taking part in this unusual form of sport that is disappearing so rapidly from the middle west. Further, moving picture men from Chicago have agreed to be present and photograph the roundup, while a trap shoot will follow in which all may take part in competing for a good purse.

The lines of the start will surround an area equal in extent to two townships. It is expected that at least two thousand men and boys will be on the lines at 2:30 a. m. ready to start promptly at 10:00 o'clock. Captains will patrol the lines to maintain their perfect formation, while the hunt will be in charge of Chas. W. Russell, Ben Turner, R. E. Davis, Frank Hirschman, George Miller and other famous hunters.

It has been arranged that hot lunch with plenty to eat and drink will await the hunters at the roundup.

There can be no doubt of the presence of scores of wolves in this locality, for not only have they been seen and killed recently, but they have wantonly preyed upon the flocks and poultry of the scattered farmers of this region, until the farmers have called for relief.

Enthusiasm is at a high pitch all through this section in anticipation of a hunt of so novel a character, and one that will soon be an impossibility in one of the central states.

RED MEN HAVE BIG DISTRICT MEETING

Session Closes With Love Feast and General Good Time.

The largest district meeting in years was held in the Aldine building Wednesday by the Improved Order of Red Men when visitors were here from all the surrounding counties.

Reports from the various tribes were heard Wednesday afternoon and with a few exceptions all of them showed remarkable increases in membership. Several good talks were given by the great officers in attendance.

At 4:30 o'clock the great council degree was conferred on fifty-three past sachems, the degree being put on by Great Sachem Frank McConaughy and assistants.

At 7:30 o'clock the council fires were again kindled and the adoption, warriors and chief degrees were conferred on a large class of candidates.

After the degree work was over the members participated in a love feast at which Sachem William S. Groves presided as toastmaster. Great Sachem McConaughy responded to the toast, "Fraternity." Great Senior Sagamore Clifford Crawford the motto of the order, "Freedom, Friendship and Charity," and Great Chief of Records Arch Hobbs on the condition of the order. Sachem W. S. Groves gave a splendid talk on the condition of the local order. C. E. Howard, chairman of the meeting, spoke on "District Meetings," and C. E. Christensen "Troubles of a Collector of Wampum." F. H. Kleekamp was next called upon, but stated that he had troubles enough of his own, and the floor was given to Ray McAdams, who spoke from the viewpoint of a candidate.

NEW YORK BROKERS HAVE WILD NIGHT

Wine, Women and Song Led Quotations at a Banquet.

New York, Jan. 28.—Following scenes of wild speculation at the stock brokers' banquet on the floor of Castle-in-the-Air, all last night, wine, women and song, preferred, which certainly led the list of quotations, suffered a ghastly slump at daybreak and today promises to be quoted at far below par for days and days.

When a heavily buttoned call boy chalked up Miss Margaret Edwards, a new listing at 100 par, the brokers were bulging eyeballs, the monetary favorite. But when the three hundred and fifty speculators saw what that Edwards stock was, saw that bare legged, dimly veiled bundle of ivory and action, that market went mad!

BEAUTIES IN THE MOVIES.

Pearl White, Pathe player, is from Missouri. She began a stage career at the age of five as "Little Eva." Then she became a bareback rider in a circus. After four years she went back to the stage. She is one of the pioneers of the screen, playing with Universal and Thanhouser before she became a star for Pathe. Her splendid work in "Perils of Pauline" and "The Exploits of Elaine" made her famous. She is a motor enthusiast and takes great enjoyment in her big yellow racer. She has beautiful red hair and admits her "eyes are green." Notwithstanding her dislike for publicity, she is one of the favorites of motion pictures.

ASSAULT CHARGE IS WHOLLY SHATTERED

Anton Riedt Acquitted on Testimony of Alleged Little Victim.

On the testimony of his alleged victim—little Katie Gendeh, aged 10 years—Anton Riedt, a Hungarian, was completely exonerated of the charge of assault and battery and was found not guilty by Judge H. Waveland Kerr in the city court Friday morning. Riedt was arrested last week and was at first charged with assault and battery with intent to commit criminal assault. This charge was later changed to simple assault and battery. Riedt boards at 1815 Weisser Park avenue with Mr. and Mrs. John Gendeh, parents of the little girl, working nights and sleeping days, whereas Gendeh and his wife, who are both employed away from home, work days. It was alleged that Riedt, while alone in the house with the child, abused her. In court the little girl testified that though Riedt often expressed and kissed her and bought her candy, he had never attempted anything unkind or improper, but called her a sweet child and said she made him think of his own little girl he had left behind when he came from the old world. There was no testimony of any sort that Riedt had misused the girl. He was defended by Attorney Stephen A. Callahan. The parents of the girl will be required to send her to school, it having been disclosed that she never has been in school during the five years she has lived in Fort Wayne.

Other City Court Cases.
William Hawkins and Tom Collins, drunks, were turned loose. Collins said he had taken no drink for months until Thursday, when he imbibed mildly of red liquor for his stomach's sake and was thrown down by it.
George Harris, the magazine agent arrested last Monday on suspicion that he might be the bandit who committed the sensational holdup murder in Chicago, when Policeman Bror Johnson was slain, was continued until Feb. 3 and his bond was maintained at $500. While it is known that Harris was in Fort Wayne at the time of the Chicago holdup and murder, it is thought from his talk he may be wanted somewhere and he is being held until word can be had from the national identification bureau and from the police departments of other cities.
Henry Beyers, arrested by Officers Galentine and Beyers on a warrant charging paternity, was turned over to a constable from a justice court. The warrant got into the hands of the police by an inadvertence.

ACCIDENT REPORTS DIFFER.

Accompanied by Officer Reginald Major, a jitney bus driver named W. M. Beatty, 806 Buchanan street, went to headquarters Thursday night to report that he had run into a boy riding a bicycle, that the lad was unhurt and that he could not learn his name. Wade Neisel was the boy's name, as was learned later when his father called at headquarters to report the mishap, and to state that after the lad had been knocked down Beatty gave the injured boy no attention but drove on.

231 IN VILLAGE FOR EPILEPTICS

Report Shows Many More in Indiana Than Admitted at Newcastle.

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—Two hundred and thirty-one patients are enrolled at the Village for Epileptics at Newcastle and 185 additional epileptics are held in the various county poor asylums of the state, according to figures compiled by the board of state charities. A large number of epileptics also are confined in the hospitals for the insane and the feeble-minded. The state board expresses the belief that the number of epileptics in their own homes exceeds the number confined in institutions.

Reports from the various penal and benevolent institutions of the state were received yesterday at the monthly meeting of the board of state charities. Governor Ralston, as an ex-officio member, attended the session.

"At the close of the fiscal year there were 231 patients in the Village for Epileptics at Newcastle," says the report concerning epileptics. "They represent seventy-six of the ninety-two counties in the state. Marion county, with twenty-five patients, had the largest representation. Vigo county had nine, Wayne and Madison each eight, Allen and Dubois each seven, Delaware and Posey each six. Women will be admitted as soon as the cottages provided by the last legislature are completed."

Many in County Asylums.
"Some of the counties have as many, or more, epileptics in their poor asylums as at the state institution at Newcastle. Marion county reports four in the poor asylum and thirty-seven in the county insane asylum at Juliette. There are six each in the county poor asylums of Carroll and Grant counties. Jay, Jennings and Shelby county poor asylums each report five epileptic inmates."

"Each of the state hospitals for the insane has patients of this class. The Central hospital at Indianapolis, 94; the Northern hospital at Logansport, 59; the Eastern hospital at Richmond, 24; the Southern hospital at Evansville, 75, and the Southeastern hospital at Madison, 91. At the School for Feeble-Minded Youth at Fort Wayne there are 235 epileptics."

"The whole number of known epileptics in state institutions mentioned and the county poor asylums is 994. Classified by age, 48, or 5 per cent, are under 16 years of age; 667, or 67 per cent, are between 16 and 45 years of age; 279, or 28 per cent, are 45 or over. There are 553 men and boys and 411 women and girls, the males outnumbering the females by 172. Ninety-nine, or 10 per cent, are reported as having no marked mental defect, while 379 are insane and 516 are feeble-minded."

MOONLIGHT SCHOOL
BLOW TO ILLITERACY

Remarkable Movement is Started by Woman Teacher in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 28.—The inspiration of one woman teachers has resulted in the most remarkable movement against illiteracy in the history of the world.

When in 1911 Cora Wilson Stewart was superintendent of schools in Rowan county, Kentucky, she found that there were three classes of adults who were denied happiness because they could not read and write—the aged mother whose children had gone out into the world, the middle aged man who otherwise might enjoy the world of books and magazines, and the young people whose talents were handicapped by illiteracy. So she launched the "moonlight schools" for grown persons, the sessions of which were held in the regular schoolhouses on such nights as the moon made travel over rough roads possible. The teachers of the public schools gave their services free. The first year saw 1,200 eager pupils enrolled in that county; the second year there were 1,600. The age of the students ranged from 18 to 87.
